“No Chance for Revolt in Germany Till Nation Faces Certain Disaster”

Carl Ackerman, Former Berlin Correspondent, in New Book, “Germany, the Next Republic. Says Call to Democracy Will Fall on Deaf Ears Till Present Leaders are Beaten and Discredited.

CARL W. ACKERMAN, a newspaper correspondent who was stationed in Germany until the outbreak of war with the United States, tells in his book, just issued by the George H. Doran company of New York, how it comes about that autocratic Germany hates and fears democratic America, and why we must defeat Germany. The title of the book is “Germany the Next Republic.”

“The title ‘Germany, the Next Republic?’” says Ackerman, is chosen because the author believes this must be the goal, the battlecry, of the United States and her allies. As long as the Kaiser, his Generals and the present leaders are in control of Germany's destinies the world will encounter the same terrorism that it has had to bear during the war. Permanent peace will follow the establishment of a republic. But the German people will not overthrow the present Government until the leaders are defeated and discredited. Today the Reichstag Constitutional Committee, headed by Herr Scheidemann, is preparing reforms in the organic law, but so far all proposals are mere makeshifts. The world cannot afford to consider peace with Germany until the people rule.”

General Staff Censored Film Showing How Kaiser Was Enjoying the War

LAST fall a young German soldier who had been in the United States as a moving picture operator was called to the General Staff to take moving pictures at the front for propaganda purposes. One week he was ordered to Belgium, to follow and photograph His Majesty. At Ostend, the famous Belgian summer resort, the Kaiser was walking along the beach one day with Admiral von Schroeder, who is in command of the German defenses there. The movie operator followed him. The soldier had been following the Kaiser several days so His Majesty recognized him, ordered him to put up his camera and prepare to make a special film. When the camera was ready His Majesty danced a jig, waved his sceptre and then his helmet, smiled and shouted greetings to the camera man—then went on along the beach.

When the photographer reached Berlin and showed the film to the censors of the General Staff they were shocked by the section of the Kaiser at Ostend. They ordered it cut out of the film because they did not think it advisable to show the German people how much their Emperor was enjoying the war!—CARL ACKERMAN.

“At the beginning of the war,” the author confesses in his preface, “I was sympathetic with Germany, but my sympathy changed to disgust as I watched developments in Berlin change the German people from world citizens to narrow-minded, deceitful tools of a ruthless Government. I saw Germany outlaw herself. I saw the effects of President Wilson's notes. I saw the anti-American propaganda begin. I saw the Germany of 1915 disappear. I saw the birth of lawless Germany.”

War Planned on Nine Nations.

Ackerman tells how he discovered, right at the outbreak of the war, that Germany expected to fight nine different nations. This was on Aug. 2, 1914, before negotiations between Germany and France and Britain had been concluded. On Aug. 1 Germany had declared war on Russia.

“In the Haupttelegraphenamt (chief telegraph office) in Berlin on a large bulletin board I read an original document relating to the events at the beginning of the war,” he writes:

“This was a typewritten letter signed by the Director of the Post and Telegraph. Because I was always watched by a soldier escort, I could never copy it. But after reading it scores of times I soon memorized everything, including the periods.

“This document follows:

“ ‘Aug. 2,1914

“ ‘Announcement No. 3.

“ ‘To the Chief Telegraph Office:

“ ‘From today on, the Post and Telegraph communications between Germany on the one hand and:

“ ‘1. England,
“ ‘2. France,
“ ‘3. Russia,
“ 4. Japan,
“ ‘5. Belgium,
“ ‘6. Italy,
“ ‘7. Montenegro,
“ ‘8. Servia,
“ ‘9. Portugal

on the other hand are interrupted because Germany finds herself in a state of war.

“ ‘(Signed) Director of the Post and Telegraph.’

“This notice, which was never published, shows that the man who directed the post and telegraph service of the Imperial Government knew on Aug. 2, 1914, who Germany's enemies would be. Of the 11 enemies of Germany today only Rumania and the United States were not included. If the Director of the Post and Telegraph knew what to expect, it is certain that the Imperial Government knew. This announcement shows that Germany expected war with nine different nations, but at the time it was posted on the bulletin board of the Haupttelegraphenamt, neither Italy, Japan, Belgium nor Portugal had declared war. Italy did not declare war until nearly a year and a half afterwards, Portugal nearly two years afterward and Japan not until December, 1914.”

This document, Ackerman thinks, throws an interesting light upon the preparations Germany made for a world war.

Taking for his text President Wilson's utterance before the American Bar Association that “The opinion of the world is the mistress of the world, Ackerman in this book traces how, since the war began, Germany, on the one hand, has been in an internal life and death struggle between the militarists who believe in terrorism, and the moderates, who did everything in their power to avoid a break with America. It almost amounted to an open rupture between Berlin and Kiel. He writes:

“Thus the first note which President Wilson wrote in the Lusitania case not only brought the quarrel between the navy and the Foreign Office to a climax, but it gave the German people the first opportunity they had had seriously to discuss questions of policy and right.

“In the Rhine Valley, where the ammunition interests dominated every phase of life, the navy found its stanchest supporters. In educational circles, in shipping centers, such as Hamburg and Bremen, in the financial districts of Frankfurt and Berlin, the Foreign office received its support. Press and Reichstag were divided. Supporting the Foreign office were the Lokal Anzeiger, the Berliner Tageblatt, the Cologne Gazette, the Frankforter Zeitung, the Hamburger Fremdenblatt and the Vorwaerts.

“The navy had the support of Count Reventlow, naval critic of the Deutsche Tageszeitung, the Taegliche Rundschau, the Vossische Zeitung, the Morgen Post, the B. Z. Am Mittag, the Muenchener Neueste Nachrichten, the Rheinische Westfalische Zeitung and the leading Catholic organ, the Koelnische Volks-Zeitung.

The Submarine War Row.

“Government officials were also divided. Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg led the party which demanded an agreement with the United States. He was supported by Von Jagow, Zimmermann, Dr. Karl Helfferich, Secretary of the Treasury; Dr. Solf, the Colonial Min-

“The Navy as a Career for the Enlisted Man”

—By—

WINSTON CHURCHILL.

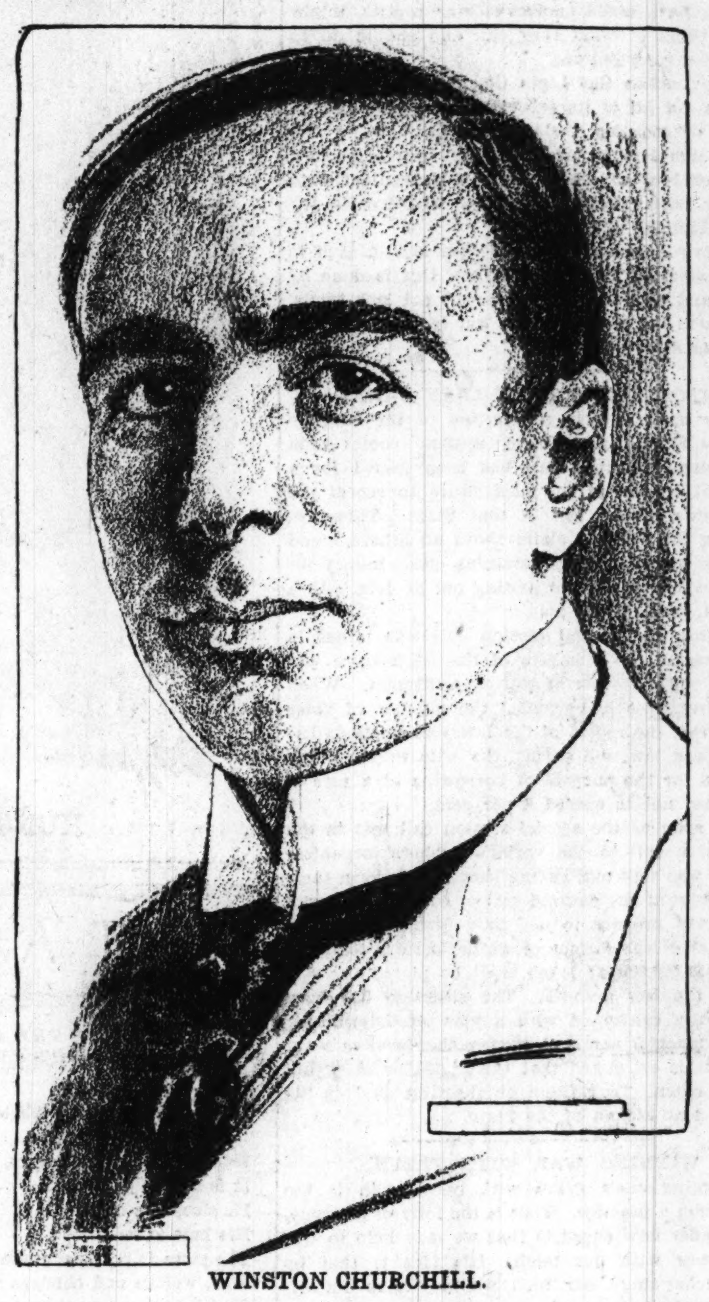
(Graduate of U. S. Naval Academy and Former Naval Officer.)

Noted Novelist Tells How the Discipline Acquired in the Service Cultivates Habits in the Seamen That Insures Demand for Their Services and Aids Them to Succeed in Civil Life if They Choose to Retire or How, if They Elect to Remain With the Fleet, the Accumulation of a Competence That Might Not Be Won Anywhere Else Is Assured, Together With Retirement for Age in Time on a Pension.

Every Year 100, Who Show Themselves Competent, After Thorough Examination, Are Appointed to Annapolis, Where the Officers of the Fleet Are Trained —Special Educational Facilities Are Provided for Those Not So Fortunate, So That All Are Constantly in a Process of Mental Elevation.

This is the fifth of a series of articles by the distinguished American author, dealing with America's part in the war against Germany. Mr. Churchill is a graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis and a former officer in the navy.

By WINSTON CHURCHILL.



WINSTON CHURCHILL.

SOMETIMES as I sat talking with the Captain in the cabin of the battleship his yeoman would come in. Yeomen, be it known, are the clerks and stenographers of the navy—but they are much more than that. Most of them have brains and executive ability in a marked degree, and all of them have a pride in their job—which is the characteristic of the navy that strikes one most forcibly. This yeoman was the Captain's private secretary; he always looked very smart in his double-breasted petty officer's coat with brass buttons with the cross keys of his rating on his arm, and he always gave me the impression that he wouldn't have exchanged places with the Captain himself.

The intercourse between the two never failed to delight me. When the commanding officer, after 12 more or less trying hours on the bridge of maneuvering with a green crew and a green engine room force, returned to the cabin at night, the yeoman would lay a basket full of the day's problems on the desk.

There were queries from the department, from the Admiral of the fleet, from the Admiral of the division; matters of desertion, of courts of inquiry, of material and personnel; there were appealing letters from anxious wives and mothers of enlisted men, each demanding, as the late Mr. William James pointed out, a considerable expenditure of energy for its decision.

And the Captain, as he took them up one by one, would try to stump that yeoman; it was a game played under the mask of dignity, but hugely enjoyed on both sides. I never saw the yeoman stumped. He had made himself master of every case down to the finger prints of a deserter. In the navy it is the pride in the job, the efficiency, the honesty and intensity of purpose that strike the civilian and leads him to believe that in this service, with all its insistence on discipline and respect for rank, there is an element of true democracy wofully lacking in the nation at large. The navy, it is true, is primarily a fighting force, but it is much more.

Among the best seamen we get in our navy—and, thanks to the material as well as the system, they are the best in the world—are those who come from the inland states. They are a new kind of tar, and in initiative, in discipline and intelligence a vast improvement over the swaggering, tobacco-chewing yet lovable bluejacket of tradition. He is becoming as rare as the buffalo, and tobacco chewing is almost a lost art. We have reason to be proud of our new personnel; we shall have more reason to be proud of them when they show their grit and their intelligence in action with the enemy. — WINSTON CHURCHILL.

Navy's Officers Chosen in Way To Insure Fittest for Service.

In the first place, the manner of selecting its officers is as democratic a system as can well be devised. The appointments by Congressmen and Senators are practically all made from the results of competitive examinations in every state and district; the best man mentally and physically is supposed to win and gain entrance to Annapolis. The President's appointments are generally reserved for the sons of those who have served their country.

To be an officer in the navy a man must have at least four years of a highly technical training, since it goes without saying that a modern naval officer must be a scientist and a specialist, and that the delicate and complicated mechanism of battleships costing millions of dollars or even of destroyers cannot be trusted to amateurs. That is one trouble with democracy today—we need fewer amateurs and more trained specialists. Jeffersonian democracy was a democracy of amateurs; modern democracy is one of efficiency, of leadership; and the navy, in choosing its officers, so far as possible puts this principle of leadership into practice—of leadership of the trained, of the fittest in their particular branch. And even after the weeding out by competitive examinations, the path through the naval academy itself is strewn with wrecks.

To return for a moment to the yeoman of whom I have spoken, he informed me that he has a brother entering Annapolis this year. That brother may be an Admiral of the fleet. But the yeoman is content and proud to remain in the service, performing his duties to the best of his ability. When he reaches the age of 47 he may retire with something like $20,000 in the bank and a pension that will support him comfortably for life. Lately I was talking to another yeoman, now on responsible duty in the Navy Department. Six years ago he entered the training school at Newport at the age of 18, went through the yeoman school, perfecting himself in typewriting, and, when volunteers were called for to take down testimony at a court of inquiry he came forward and acquitted himself successfully. Any stenographer knows what court work is. Today, at 24, he is chief yeoman with a salary of $66 a month above his living expenses. Not so bad a career!

Although the number of midshipmen at Annapolis has been greatly increased, it is obvious that every boy in the United States who desires to become an officer cannot do so. However, the youngsters entering the service as enlisted men (apprentices) are given opportunities for study on board ship, and are actually taught by officers of the line or the chaplain. Every year 100 of these, those who pass the best examinations, may be taken into Annapolis. In addition to this, which is a comparatively new provision, a certain number of men who have worked their way up from the ranks and served faithfully may also be taken in.

Annapolis Open Only to Few But Others Get Special Training

Regarded in its true aspect—one, so far as I know, that has not been dwelt upon—the officers of the navy are a permanent, responsible training staff for hundreds of thousands of youngsters who come into the service from 17 to 21, and after four years return again to civil life with qualities—democratic qualities—they did not possess when they entered. Some, indeed, choose the navy as a career, to find themselves before they are 50 able to retire with a competence. But the great majority go back into the country, broadened and hardened, to help leaven the lump of the community, to tell their younger neighbors what an opportunity the navy will give them.

From the interesting statistics compiled by the recruiting division of the Bureau of Navigation, I take at random a recruiting period from Oct. 1 to Dec. 1, 1913. Of the 5208 who entered the service in that period, 1256 gave as their chief reason “Friends in the service;” 1000 “To travel and see the world;” 711 “To better my conditions,” while only 414 were “out of work.”

Those Who Enlist Acquire Habits That Insure Success in Civil Life

According to an expert in that division, however, what is deemed most valuable consists in the habits of life acquired, alertness, self-respect, subordination without subserviency—all democratic traits, though they may not be recognized as such. He cited a typical case, one of many hundreds, of a man who is at the head of a large business today, and who had lately declared that his apprenticeship in the navy had been worth more than $10,000 to him. He learned self-control, he learned how to handle men; he was able, if anything went wrong, to go and attend to it himself. He knew how to give orders and to take orders. In the establishment which he entered after his discharge he was soon made a foreman, eventually a superintendent, and then president, and in the community in which he lives he is a leading citizen today. Democracy in civil life has much to learn from democracy in the navy.

The nation, owing to many causes that need not be entered into, is in certain respects slack, loose-fibered. Self-respect begins with an intelligent respect for others who deserve it. We lack as a whole the sense of good workmanship, the pride in the job. We do not sweep our rooms with the proper spirit, we worship and envy wealth—and no wonder wealth is insolent. We need socializing, we need national and international sense we have not got, and that is not old-fashioned patriotism, standing up when the Star-Spangled Banner is being played. We need the religion of service with which the navy is imbued. An intelligent stranger who goes to a big dinner in Washington, the capital of our democratic country, often remarks, seated on the right of the hostess, some Congressman or Senator who has bought or bullied or blarneyed his way to power, and farther down the cloth, in a more humble place, a man with intelligence and ability and convictions who would scorn an election by such means. The navy is truer than Washington to our traditions. There a man finds his place; he is watched and judged by his officers and mates, he is known for what he is, and rewarded accordingly.

The object of civilization appears to be the spiritualization of man. He starts from the brutes, he grows toward the gods. Competition, struggle are necessary for his growth; our high aim is to change the brute competition of a Hindenburg into the spiritual competition of a Pasteur, a Wilberforce or a Lincoln. But so long as Hindenburgs exist, armies and navies are necessary to protect democratic civilizations, and armies and navies must be harmonized with democracy.

In a military institution, in all institutions, discipline may not be dispensed with, but discipline is of two kinds. In monarchy, as in the old-fashioned religion that went with it, discipline is imposed from above; by a Hindenburg, who commands under an Emperor's divine right, it is dealt out with an iron hand. Under discipline of this sort a man has no right to think for himself, and the man who does not think for himself never de-

Real Power in Russia Now in Hands of Workmen's Council Which Holds Factions Together

When It Voted to Support Provisional Government, Serious Split Was Averted—Who's Who and What's What in Complicated Organization in Which All Classes are Represented.

By Arno Dosch-Fleurot.

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

PETROGRAD, May 18.

THE Russian revolution, having been brought about by a people with genius of their own, has produced institutions peculiar to it. Some of these are but passing phases, but a good many of them are bound to appear in the news for months, until everything in Russia goes into the pot to be boiled and served anew by the Constituent Assembly, which probably will be held in September. Meanwhile, the names of these institutions recurring in the news again and again are likely to be rather vague in the public mind, though each represents a living, vital force of a very vivid and vital people.

The Provisional Government was appointed by a Committee of Safety named by the Duma in the heat of the revolution. The Committee of Safety itself was appointed by President Rodzianko of the Duma when it became apparent the revolution was a reality, the empire had fallen to pieces like a house of cards, and the only safety for the State lay in a quick, firm hand on the part of the only organized vital force, the Duma.

ALL the leadership of the revolution was bourgeois. The people who cultivated the spirit of revolution, the Intelligencia, all are bourgeois. But as used, the word has come to mean that part of the population which is not actively bestirring itself to bring about complete Socialism. The Socialists are losing a lot of possible support by the defiant use of that loose term, bourgeois. — ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT.

President Radzianko was told by the members of the revolutionists (soldiers and workmen that they left to him the organization of the new temporary Government, while they drew up and established the principles of the new democracy. The Committee of Safety he appointed contained several members of the Duma, who were a few days later made Ministers and became part of the Provisional Government. Two of the most active members of that original and important Committee of Safety, President Radzianko and President Shidlovsky of the Progressive bloc of the Duma, did not go into the Provisional Government.

“Never Miss a Bet,” Comment on Provisional Government

The wisdom of choice of Ministers for the Provision Government shows the caliber of men who made up the leadership of the Duma. In the first trying days following the revolution we used to comment here how the Government “never missed a bet.”

In making Prince Lvoff Premier they turned over to the new Government, at a stroke, the whole organization of the Zemstvos, the local government boards created by the liberal Emperor Alexander II. As Prince Lovff said to me on his second day in office: “I had only to remove the old imperial Governors and appoint the Presidents of the local Zemstvos in their place, and as I being National Zemstvos President, have been in constant relation with them, the administration of the Government of the whole of Russia has been able to go right on. In fact, it has been able at once to go on better, because the old Government was so indifferent, the Zemstvos have had to be good enough to combat it and still make progress organizing for the prosecution of the war.”

Shift of Power Made Easy by the Zemstvos Organizations

These Zemstvos had been saving the army from disease, lack of munitions and general bad management for many months, so their chief, Prince Lvoff, was the logical man for Premier.

Guchkoff was also an active Zemstvos man, and, besides, was head of the independent committees organized by the Duma to turn all Russia's resources to the war. He was the unofficial Lloyd George, but being a capitalist and a rich man, did not later prove palatable to the controlling Socialists. But he did his work as Minister of War well until the strain became too much for him.

Miliukoff, named Minister of Foreign Affairs, really began this revolution by a daring speech he delivered against the old Government and its Premier in particular, Stuermer, last November. He told of all the old rottenness. He even had what had then seemed the transcendent audacity to mention the name of the former Empress as the center of the “dark forces” working against Russia's good. He gave the keynote to the revolution and the agitation kept growing from that day until the actual revolution took place.

Miliukoff's personality is so charming I could hardly credit it six weeks later when the agitation arose against him personally for sending to the allies the note saying Russia under the democracy would live up to all its old treaties, open and secret. It shows the regardless ways of revolution. I regard Miliukoff as one of the greatest democrats I have ever met. I can only speak of him in terms of the warmest affection as a great patriot, a true friend of mankind. He is a good deal like another great idealist democrat, Venizelos. Venizelos has had a people not sufficiently revolutionary, to deal with. Miliukoff had a people who are, perhaps, too much so.

But the man who has made the greatest record and done the difficult work of making the Provisional Government acceptable to even the sailors of Cronstadt (who thought for a while they had an independent republic), is Kerensky, a young lawyer who occupied himself before the revolution taking up cases and defending the interests of individuals and communities who felt the injustice of the old regime. He was made a member of the Provisional Government to represent the Socialist party. He is a thoroughgoing, conscientious radical, without being a fanatic.

For weeks Kerensky was everywhere, his finger in every trouble. From straightening out the fleet's wrong conception of what a revolution is, he delivered train-end speeches telling the Finns they were going to get what they wanted, arranged the arrest of the former Emperor and turned up bright and smiling to meet exiles returned from Siberia. Everybody in Russia owes Kerensky a debt of gratitude, the fullness of which they probably will never appreciate.

The Council of Soldiers' and Workmen's Deputies, or the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Deputies, according to taste, is the crystallization of the revolutionary spirit in Russia. Actually it came into being as a central force directing the mutinied soldiers and the revolutionary Socialist workmen who did the physical work of upsetting the old Government. It just grew. Its leaders were mostly recognized Socialists who had been active in 1905 and 1898, but there were plenty of new natural leaders who forced a hearing.

These Organizations Are the Revolution Makers

First, there was the Petrograd Council of Soldiers' and Workmen's Deputies, the revolution makers. Now there are similar councils in every section, every city or center, in Russia. They are planning an all-Russia Council of Soldiers' and Workmen's Delegates, and when that meets it will be the strongest political force in the country. Meanwhile the Petrograd council, by force of location and because it is in the hands of the best known Socialists, is speaking for all.

There are, besides, the Council of Soldier Delegates in each army, each division. These councils also have sent representatives to Petrograd to hold a joint meeting. It was in addressing them that Kerensky delivered his “I wish I had died two

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Commercial Submarines.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

For some months the German submarines have sunk the merchant ships of the allies. The loss of only one ship is not very material, but the constant loss of merchant ships, which the Germans have sunk one by one, day after day, has reached a total that is astounding and which must be checked immediately if the war is to be carried to a successful conclusion.

With great respect for the members of the Federal Shipping Board, their plan to build merchant ships faster than the Germans can sink them is wrong. That is not the way to fight. Why continue constructing vulnerable vessels? Why not build submarine merchant ships? They can be constructed as rapidly as the merchant ships and they will be practically immune from attack.

The Federal Shipping Board must build ships faster than the Germans can sink them or the allies will have no means of getting supplies and the German empire will have won the war and conquered the larger part of continental Europe.

Or if the ships cannot be built faster than they are sunk by the Germans the allied armies will have to win a decisive land victory in order to win the war. That, apparently, is impossible. Also, it appears that the allies will not endeavor to demolish the home and base of the submarine at one blow.

Submarines have not successfully sunk submarines. The merchant submarines would be safe from attack from enemy submarines and the battle fleets of the central Powers would continue to be bottled up in port, as has been the case in the past by the allied fleets. LANDSMAN.

Missouri's Misrepresentatives.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

It would seem that the two Senators from Missouri have a grudge against their constituents as well as against the entire American people. They are constantly opposing our President. They opposed universal military service; now food control. One is a corporation lawyer, the other a gum shoe politician, who has been catering to foreign opinion. Their patriotism was sunk long ago in the sea of selfishness. How long must Missouri stand these men? AMERICAN VOTER.

Socialists Always Late.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

June 17 circulars were distributed by the Socialists, petitions to Congress, asking Congress to submit the draft law to a vote of the people, to decide whether they approve of conscription. The Socialists urge the people to sign this petition and then send them to Washington. How is it that the Socialists are always late on everything? This should have been done some time ago, when the bill was up for debate. Where were the Socialists then? Why did they not get the voice of the people then?

Everyone knows that the Socialists oppose war, especially with Germany, for although it is denied it seems they are very much pro-German.

America does not like blood shed and has never borne any ill-will toward any people, but peace at any price is only a coward's choice. ONE FROM MISSOURI.

Price of Wheat and Flour.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In Sunday's Post-Dispatch your editorial in part said: "Measured by the highest prices for which wheat has sold this year, and allowing for milling, transportation and reasonable profits for everybody concerned in manufacture and distribution, flour should sell for $9.00 per barrel."

In reply I wish to say that a barrel of flour weighs 192 pounds and a bushel of wheat 60 pounds. Several times this year wheat has sold above $3.30 per bushel or about 5½ cents a pound. So that at that time you could not buy 192 pounds of wheat for $9.00, much less make enough out of it to pay for grinding, sacking, loss for bran and shorts which must be sold for stock feed at a lower price.

It takes 4½ to 5 bushels of wheat to make a barrel of fine flour such as is demanded by the average housewife. Wheat is now about $3.00, so that it comes nearer taking $12.00 worth of wheat to make a barrel of flour than $9.00, as you stated would be a reasonable selling price.

American Resources.

From the Nashville Tennessean.

May 1 the assets of the country's national banks aggregate over $16,000,000,000—an increase since March 5 of $2,000,000,000. This money does not belong to the banks, but to the people—the depositors and stockholders in these banks. In deposits alone there are held by the national banks over $13,000,000,000, which is a gain since March 5 of $118,000,000; and a gain over a year ago of $1,944,000,000. These figures stagger the human mind to comprehend them.

SENATOR REED PLEADS PRECEDENT.

Senator Reed says that the food-control bill is unparalleled by any legislation in history. Of course, this is only a half-truth, because food supplies are being controlled and its consumption regulated in European countries far more drastically than is anticipated in this country under the food-control bill, should it pass.

The situation, however, is unparalleled in history. Never was such pressing necessity for food control to win a war and save millions of people from suffering and starving.

Senator Reed should open his vision, broaden his mind and endeavor to comprehend the unparalleled conditions and the necessity for unprecedented action by the United States. If we follow precedent in this war we will get an unprecedented whipping and pay an unprecedented penalty in blood, money and misery.

Food control is intended to hurt none but the food sharks and the foreign enemy. It is intended to help the American people and their allies. If the powers it grants are misused or abused they can be abolished. There is a supreme necessity that something be done to protect the people. The Lever bill, which Senator Reed and the money-grabbing food sharks are fighting, is the best thing that has been offered.

HOME WRECKERS' EXCUSES.

When a man or woman, as in the Lusk-Roberts case, persists in a course which will in all probability result in the wrecking of a home, the plea of love cannot be allowed by society, if the institution of the family is to endure.

The idea embodied in the lines, "I had not loved thee, dear, so much, Loved I not honor more," must be applied to such cases. It is dishonorable, not to say dishonest, to give way to intrigue on account of love for another person's wife or husband. Should society condone the actions likely to result from such giving way to one's feelings, even if no crime results, it would encourage promiscuity in the marital relation. If living together is not endurable, there is the divorce court.

And when the one who seeks to wreck a home goes to the extreme of arguing that the obstacle in his or her way must be removed by violence, infatuation and dishonesty have borne their natural fruit. Murder is not far off in such a case.

FOUR LEGISLATIVE GRAND JURIES.

Grand juries in St. Louis, Jefferson City, Springfield and Kansas City either now are conducting inquiries or are about to conduct inquiries into suspicious transactions reflecting on the conduct and public motives of members of the Legislature. With so many engaged in the wholesome work the people ought to be assured of much light on the manner in which their legislative business is carried on. The information collected may be followed by consequences providing deterrents on betrayal of the public interest, shiftiness and double-crossing for many legislatures to come. Facts showing the reason for the many sins of omission at the late session may be as interesting and important as facts showing the reason for the fewer sins of commission.

Credited with all the good things it did, the record of the 1917 Legislature was as a whole extraordinarily disappointing. One of its mysteries is why it dared to flout the people and brazenly violate a pledge by which every member was bound by defeating the workmen's compensation measure.

WOMEN'S SHOES AND NATIONAL DEFENSE.

With the object of saving leather and labor, the Commercial Economy Board of the Council of National Defense urges manufacturers of women's shoes to eliminate extreme styles and confine production to staple lines. The board's action is in accord with the British policy of limiting the heights of women's shoes to seven inches.

Will the fair wearers co-operate in this reform? They might as a measure of war economy give up shoes of exaggerated height for the pumps they persisted in wearing only a few years ago through winter's cold and summer's heat. If they will serve their country in this particular with half the zeal they once served fashion the board's problem will be solved offhand.

In the matter of cloth conservation, at least, it must be said that women have all along been doing their bit with credit to themselves and their country. Their skirts are as short and filmy as the law allows, and the decollette of their waists as deep. If now they will return to the low shoe, and if the manufacturers will refrain from putting temptation in their way in the form of freak novelties in footwear, much material can be conserved for military uses.

POLAND'S DEATH AND RESURRECTION.

In the British reply to the Russian Government's request for a statement of war aims occurs this interesting paragraph:

> They heartily rejoice, therefore, that free Russia has announced her intention of liberating Poland, not only Poland ruled by the old Russia autocracy, but equally that within the dominion of the Germanic empires. In this enterprise the British democracy wish Russia godspeed.

In the three partitions of Poland by Prussia, Russia and Austria in 1772, 1792 and 1795, which extinguished the ancient kingdom for the aggrandizement of the three Powers, not a voice of protest was raised anywhere in Europe. The contemporary historian, Von Genz, remarks this, when he writes:

> The silence of France and England, the silence of all Europe, whilst such an alarming measure was contrived and carried into effect, is still more astonishing than the measure itself. The imbecility of the French cabinet, at the period when the evening shades began to gather round the life of Louis XV, explains but does not justify this silence. From England alone, and still less from the other powers, could any effectual opposition be expected whilst France was dumb; but that no public demonstration, no energetic remonstrance, no earnest protestation, no audible disapprobation should have followed—these manifest symptoms of general relaxation and decay of strength will not surely escape the observation of the future historian.

To understand the British silence during the perpetuation of this high crime of European autocrats against Poland a century ago, it is only necessary to bear in mind that the three partitions fell within the long reign of that last of the autocratic German rulers of England, George III, whose acts have become odious to the English, no less than they are to us. George I and George II were content to dwell in Hanover, and reign in England without ruling. George III, however, reigned and ruled, to the lasting injury of England and her people.

The present desire of the British democracy to behold Poland re-established within her old frontiers is but another instance of the readiness of a people to right the wrongs of their erstwhile monarchs when their hands are free to do so.

WHEN EVERY AMERICAN GIVES.

August A. Busch has given an example of what the big profitable corporations can and should do for the Red Cross by adding $100,000 for the brewing company to his personal subscription. Some of the great corporations of the country are giving large sums direct or through Red Cross dividends.

While the Red Cross campaign is being pushed among the earners of modest salaries and wages the officers of St. Louis corporations, some of which have made enormous war profits, might well think of what they can and should do to equalize contributions.

The Laclede Gas Light Co. has offered opportunity for all of its subscribers to contribute in cash or monthly installments through its bill collection department. Thus many may be reached and enabled to contribute in a convenient way. Other corporations and firms will handle the subscriptions of employes.

Every American who can give should give to the extent of his means. When this is done by rich and poor the Red Cross will not lack funds. Nor will the victims of the war lack any needful care or attention.

RECOGNIZING FARM LOAN BANKS.

The most notable recognition of the benefits of the Farm Loan Bank system comes from Louisiana, where a call has been issued for a special session of the Legislature to repeal the "widow's dower" law of that State. This law, giving the widow a claim above all others, stood in the way of farmers obtaining cheap money for improvements and for getting out of debt. As a result, the law will go.

Before the special session call was issued, a canvass of the members of the Legislature was made with a view of testing sentiment. When the responses had equaled the number of votes required, the repeal of the law was assured. The proposed law will permit the wife to waive her rights for the purpose of borrowing at a rate of interest not to exceed 6 per cent.

As soon as the special session call was in the mails, a call to the various farmers' organizations was sent out, asking that they inform their members of the assured action, so that the farmers may prepare to negotiate farm loans. The leaders of the farmer organizations are planning that $1,000,000 of loans shall be placed the day that the law permits. The situation has been carefully canvassed with a view of determining how much 5 per cent money the farmers want and it is estimated that the $1,000,000 is within easy reach. "A million on the first day" is the farm loan slogan of the State.

WINNING WAR WITH TEETH.

Digging one's grave with one's teeth is too common a practice. That is the folly of gluttony. A reader now suggests that we may help to win the war with our teeth. His idea is that by "Fletcherizing" our food we may save six-sevenths of what we eat.

The theory of Fletcherism is that food, as usually eaten, loads the body up with large quantities of material which have to be eliminated. The conscientious devotee of Fletcherism must carefully and slowly masticate every particle he puts in his mouth and, after extracting all that has any taste, eject the remainder. The books don't say what he should do with this, or how he can dispose of it, say, in a restaurant or other public place, without putting himself in danger of being summarily "bounced."

There is a film being run in a local naval recruiting station. One of the scenes shows the "rookies" at their first meal. The way they dispose of sections of pie is certainly the reverse of Fletcherism. They don't appear ever to have heard of the cult.

However, the suggestion is not without value. We can save by more careful attention to chewing. We shall not require such heavy meals if we make the most of every mouthful.

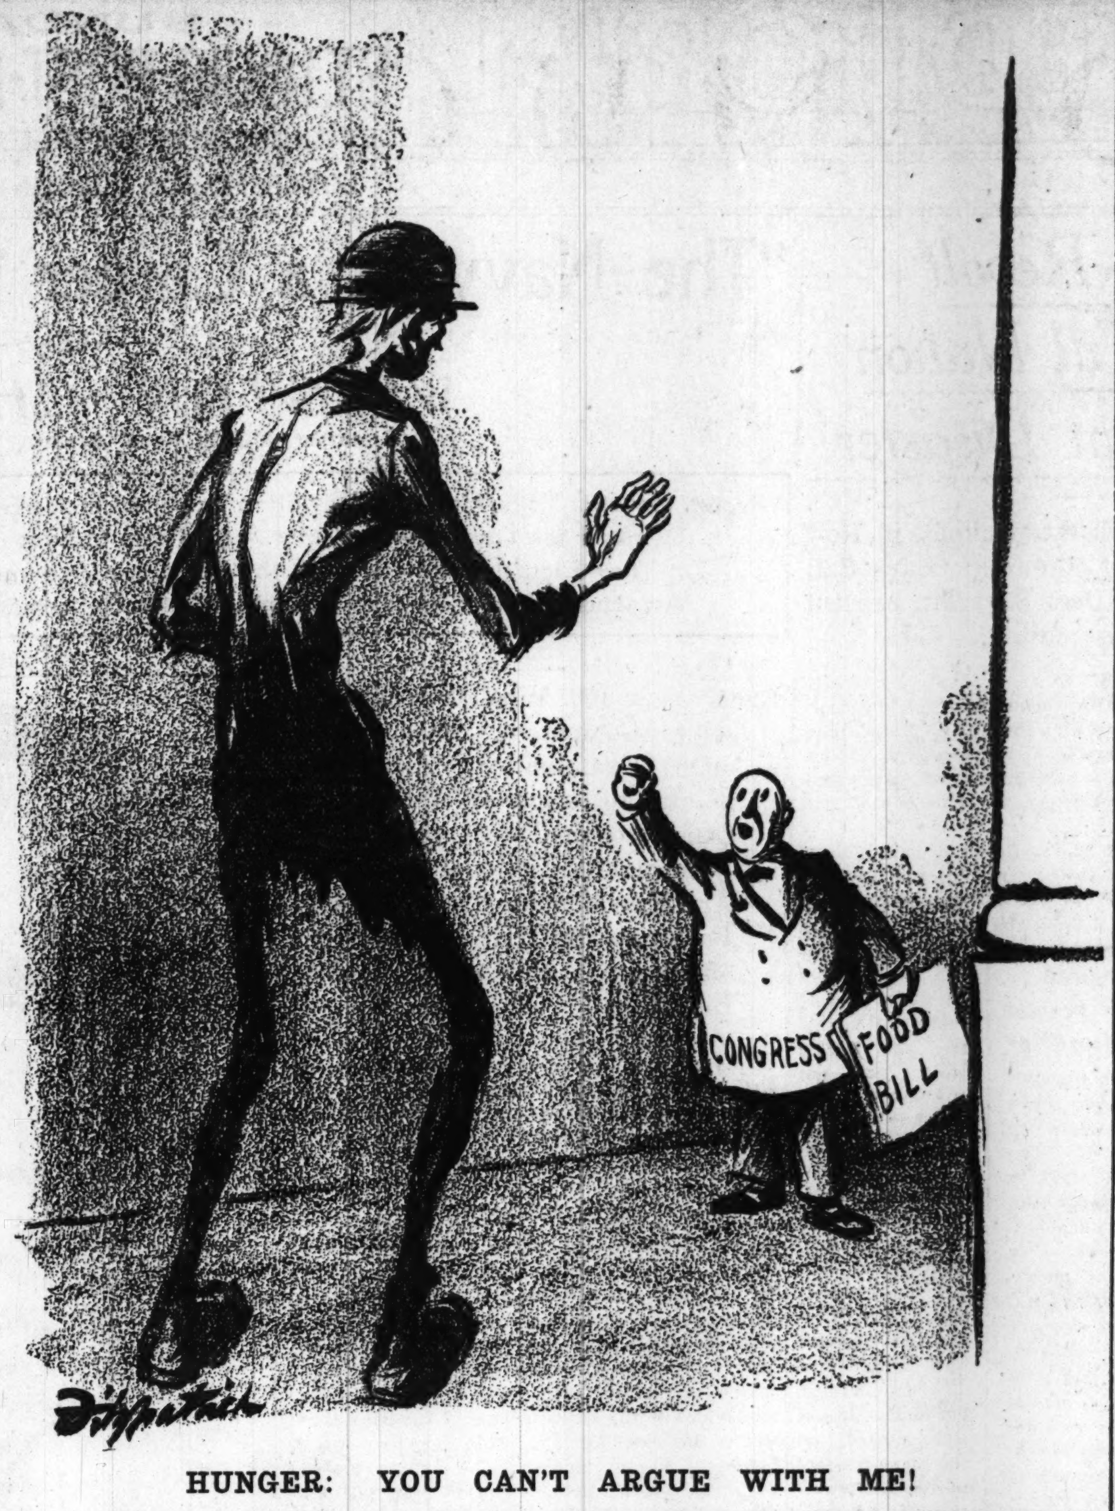
BURYING BLUE LAWS.

The municipal Judges of Des Moines have brought to an abrupt end the effort of Attorney-General Havner to enforce the blue laws in that State. Judge Mershon, speaking for the municipal Judges, ordered the police to make no more arrests for offenses for which acquittal had been ordered by the courts and to pay no more attention to the orders of the Attorney-General. The decisions so far rendered by municipal Judges affect sales in drug stores, confectionaries, garages and grocery stores and other "necessaries." The Judges have made their rulings on each class of cases brought before them according to their view of "necessaries."

The blue law enforcement in Iowa has run the usual course of such reforms. When the plan of the Attorney-General was announced, all retailers closed for one Sunday, thinking the public would object. But the public appeared to think the affair a huge joke and, confessing annoyance as to bread and gasoline, let the situation pass without protest.

Then the retailers opened and courted arrest. Soon they had the lower courts clogged with cases and the Judges resorted to the "class" ruling, by which, when one druggist was acquitted, all cases against druggists were dismissed. In this way, five or six cases on Monday would clear the docket. But the Judges tired of this. Judge Mershon says that the police are needed for other purposes than for "persecution." He says repeated arrests where convictions cannot be obtained is "persecution." In the meantime, some cases arranged by business organizations as tests are on their way to the Supreme Court of the State, unless they should be forgotten, now that the storm is over



HUNGER: YOU CAN'T ARGUE WITH ME!

JUST A MINUTE . . .

Written for the Post-Dispatch
By Clark McAdams

IN THE GHETTO.

It is a very pink shirt.
He smokes a cigar.
His hair is red.
The store is the background.
Men, women and children want to see this,
And Isador wants them to see it.
They crowd in upon both sides,
And Isador, waving his two fat little arms,
Shoos them off.
They must but rim the picture as the admiring public,

He stands like some conqueror upon his pedestal,
Forever looking down upon those who are to admire him.
Need one ask of Isador his story—
How out of nothing he arose to this?
No, gentle reader;
That is all well told in Isador's pose.

All is ready.
The photographer has clutched the bulb.
Perfectly still, Isador—
Head up—eyes flashing—glowing with self satisfaction—
The crowd pressed back—the shoe store showing—
Isador alone in his triumph:
Yesterday a poor immigrant from Russia—
Click! It is done.
The crowd disperses, and presently there is only Isador,
Glowing like a pouter pigeon in the door of his store.

He has been photographed in the midst of his success.
Does he feel good about it?
Well, rather.

What almost no summer landlord explains in his literature is the particular pest which preys upon one there. Inasmuch as we are certain to be harassed by something, no matter where we go, why cannot we be frankly told what to expect and therefore exercise a choice? In our own opinion we are not so unreasonable as to expect that there will be nothing. Neither are we so unsophisticated as to believe there is nothing because not a word is said of it. Are the summer landlords right sure their silence does not cost them money for leaving us to construe it beyond the truth? We are afraid that is the case. We have in mind as a model for advertising of this sort the line carried upon his letterhead by the keeper of a fishing resort on one of the rivers of Colorado. It said:

There ain't no mosquitoes when there ain't none.

We are told that the list of prohibited words and expressions attributed to Charles A. Dana and the New York Sun was really the hobby of William Cullen Bryant and the New York Post. Very well. We are quite as glad to see that the Post has gotten over it.

HE DIDN'T CARE FOR IT.

A ST. LOUIS negro who showed up at one of the registration places wanted to know what the Government meant to do with him.

"You will be put into rescue work," someone said.

"What is that?"

"The rescue workers are the men sent out to the front to rescue those who fall in No Man's Land, the strip between our own and the German trenches. Just as soon as one of our men is seen to fall, a rescuer goes out and gets him."

"You have nothing to be afraid of," the wag continued. "Your wife will get a pension of $100 a month if you are killed."

"Ain't there nothin' over there my wife kin do, boss?" the negro presently asked.

"Yes. She can be a nurse."

"Would that pay me a pension of a hundred a month if she got killed?"

"I suppose so."

"All right. I'll jes' let the Gover'ment pass me up an' send the ol' lady over," the black man concluded.

We are even with the French for not being able to pronounce Joffre. They cannot pronounce Pershing. These two notables remain in our respective countries pretty much, we are told, as Joffer and Persheeney, everything else having proven impossible..

WHEN WE'VE PUT AN IRISH KAISER IN THE PALACE OVER THERE.

WHEN the war is over, Laddie,
Just take the tip from me,
There'll be no German submarine
A-diving in the sea.

For the Fatherland of Kaiser Bill,
The guy we're going to lick,
Will have a brand-new Kaiser,
And, b'gosh, he'll be a Mick.

We'll change their song, "Die Wacht Am Rhein,"
Into an Irish Reel,
And make the Prussians dance to it,
If that's the way we feel.

For the coppers there in Berlin,
Will be boys from County Clare,
When we've an Irish Kaiser
In the Palace over there.

Sure, in every German parkway
You'll find a sweet colleen,
And the fields of waving sauerkraut,
We'll plant with shamrocks green.

No liverwurst, no sausage
When the Dutchman drinks his suds;
He'll get corned beef and cabbage
And some good old Irish spuds.

Their murderous guns and gas bombs
We'll throw them all away,
And make them use shillalahs
Or bricks of Irish clay.

They'll sport no iron crosses—
Sure, 'tis shamrocks they will wear,
When we've put an Irish Kaiser
In the Palace over there.

SOME LIGHT ON "FIRSTS."

SUB.—E. W. Handlan writes that the first electric light was used in this city Au. 24, 1877, by M. M. Buck & Co., at 209 North Third street, and that the first telephone in regular use here was from the same firm. This telephone communicated with the Old Fair Grounds in 1876. * * * In 1878 Tony Faust lighted his restaurant with arc lamps. Streets were electrically lighted in 1889. * * * Oc. 3, 1881, the Union Depot on South Twelfth street was lighted by electricity for the first time, and it was said that visitors to the Fair would have no trouble in finding their trains. The hotels were filled to overflowing and all trains arriving were overcrowded with visitors to the Fair. * * * First Easton aveenue electric cars Ja. 1, 1895. First electric car in St. Louis was run on Fairfax and Finney avenues, between Vandeventer and Taylor, 1889. First practical use of electricity in carrying passengers in St. Louis was by the old Union Depot Railroad Co., in March, 1890. The narrow-gauge road was made electric in 1891. The Courier-Journal says: The first electric car in Louisville made its first trip Sep. 1, 1889. * * First automobile in St. Louis was William A. Stickney's. He says: From memory and the best data I have at hand it was in 1897. The machine was of German make, imported by a friend of mine, Mr. Oscar Reinach. He brought it to Indianapolis and from there sent it to me on trial in charge of a mechanic (chauffeurs unknown then). The "little thing" was as obstinate as a mule, occasionally starting off like a skyrocket, but most of the time declining to budge without considerable humoring and assistance. When stopping it gave out a noise resembling a clock running down and while in motion it wheezed like a wind-broken horse. The finish of this auto was unlike any I have ever heard of; the order of things was reversed. It was run over by a dray team on Eighth and Olive and completely put out of commission. The mechanic took the wreck back to Indianapolis and, never hearing from it again, I presume it was buried in a scrap pile there, a disgrace to the auto family, being the only member known to get knocked out by a horse.

SAVE THE VEGETABLES.

U. S.—Three methods of drying are sun drying, artificial heat, and air blasts, as before an electric fan. Trays for drying, as well as tray frames for use over stoves or before fans, can be made satisfactorily at home. Frames and trays for use with artificial heat may be purchased complete if desired. Homemade trays may be made of side and end boards three-fourths of an inch thick and two inches wide, and bottom boards of lathing spaced one-fourth of an inch. If desired, ¼-inch galvanized wire mesh may be tacked to side and end boards to form bottoms of trays. Frames for use before fans may be of wood of convenient size. Frames for artificial heat should be made of noninflammable material to as great an extent as possible. Six trays may be placed one above the other when artificial heat is used. In drying before fan the number of trays may be placed one above the other and depend, to a large extent, upon the diameter of the fan. In drying in sun, trays as described may be used or the products to be dried may be spread on sheets of paper or muslin held in place by weights. Vegetables and fruits will dry better if sliced. They should be cut into slices ⅛ to ¼ inch thick. If thicker, they may not dry thoroughly. While drying, products should be turned or stirred from time to time. Dried products should be packed temporarily 3 or 4 days and poured daily from one box to another for thorough mixing, and so that the whole will have uniform moisture. If pieces of products are found too moist, return to trays and dry further. When in condition products may be packed permanently in tight paper bags, insect-proof paper boxes or cartons, or glass or tin containers. Spinach and Parsley: Spinach in prime condition for greens should be prepared by careful washing and removing leaves from roots. Spread leaves on trays and dry thoroughly. They will dry much sooner if sliced or chopped. Beets: Select young, quickly grown, tender. Wash, peel, slice about ⅛ inch thick, and dry. Turnips should be treated in the same way as beets. Carrots should be well grown, but varieties having large woody core should be avoided. Wash, peel and slice crosswise into pieces about ⅛ inch thick. Parsnips should be treated same way as carrots. Onions: Remove outside papery covering. Cut off tops and roots. Slice into ⅛-inch pieces and dry. Cabbage: Select well-developed cabbage; remove all loose outside leaves. Split cabbage, remove hard, woody core, slice remainder of head with kraut cutter, or other hand-slicing machine. All products under this heading should be "conditioned" as described above. Beet tops: Tops of young beets in suitable condition for greens should be selected and washed carefully. Both leaf stalk and blade should be cut into sections about ¼-inch long and spread on screens and dried. Swiss Chard and Celery: Prepare same as beet tops. Rhubarb: Choose young and succulent growth. Prepare as for stewing by skinning stalks and cutting into pieces about ¼-inch to ½-inch in length and dry on trays. Raspberries: Sort out imperfect berries, spread select berries on trays, and dry. Don't dry so long that they become hard and rattle. Stop drying as soon as berries fail to stain hand when pressed. Pack and "condition."

MISCELLANEOUS.

GIFFORD.—"October hay," in your answer of the 17th, was a misprint for oat hay. The linotype had never heard of oat hay.

WALES.—Alien soldier of Spanish war, or any United States war, may be naturalized without first papers. Must prove one year's residence in this country.

M. M.—When soap-grease is impure, and germs have not been killed by boiling it, soaps may smell. Insufficient boiling of water may leave too much water in it, causing soap to shrink.

ARLETTA.—Penalty for putting a very small consideration in a warranty deed to avoid paying the war tax is a fine of not less than $50, or imprisonment for not more than 6 months, or both.

THOMPSON.—Preserving furs and skins: Following is Dr. Lettsom's recipe for a mixture found to answer both for animals in cases and skins in the open air. For birds it is equally good and effective: Corrosive sublimate, ¼ pound; saltpeter, prepared or burnt, ½ pound; alum, burnt, ½ pound; flowers of sulphur, ½ pound; camphor, ¼ pound; black pepper, 1 pound; tobacco, ground coarse, 1 pound. Keep in a glass-stoppered bottle. Give the skins two or three good rubbings with it. Use carefully, as the corrosive sublimate renders the mixture very poisonous. A simple method of preserving skins of any kind is to first stretch them on a board with tacks, as soon as taken from the body; then cover them with wood ashes; let them remain a fortnight, and renew the ashes every three days. The following soap is recommended by Ward, the celebrated furrier of London, England: Yellow soap, 1 pound; lime, 1 pound; camphor, 1 ounce; arsenic, 1 ounce; alum, 1 ounce; well mixed together. The skins must be well scraped and divested of all fat, and then well rubbed with soap.—Scientific American Cyclopedia. To tan skin of unborn calf: Boil till dissolved, half pound salt and quarter pound alum and let cool, then add enough water to cover the skin. Leave for 5 or 6 days, then hang up to dry. After drying, take it down and moisten it with a damp rag, then work it with a blunt knife until it is soft and pliable. Remove all flesh.

TOO MUCH EFFICIENCY

By E. J. RATH

Author of "When the Devil Was Sick," "One-Cylinder Sam," "The Man With the 44-Chest," etc.

CHAPTER XIX (Continued).

HE studied her until the scrutiny became a trifle embarrassing. There was a penetrating and inclusive quality in his survey that caused her to flush faintly. She wished H. Hedge was not quite so thorough in his examination, yet she was conscious that his painstaking interest was not displeasing.

"I think you need a set of furs," he said.

She beamed at him in sudden bewilderment. How could he be so wonderfully human? And why—oh, why, couldn't he always be like that?

"You are a mind reader, Mr. Hedge," she affirmed. "You almost frighten me."

"No, I am not a mind reader," said the efficiency man positively. "But you see, the other day I noticed that your muff and boa might easily, even profitably, be replaced with a set more in harmony with your fur coat."

"When in the world did you notice that?" she asked in surprise.

"On the back stairs."

Constance turned pink. It was the first time he had even alluded, in the most indirect manner, to the morning when he had robbed Tommy Treadwell of a bride. She herself had brought up the subject once, by mistake, but H. Hedge had never reopened it.

"I did not know you were so observing," she said for the sake of speech.

"It is my business to observe. Where do you buy your furs?"

She gave a direction to the chauffeur and presently the efficiency man found himself in one of those Fifth avenue shops that resemble nothing so much as a palatial private home.

Half an hour later, truly dazed, Constance emerged with a silver fox skin around her neck and a great muff that matched it. Furtively she pinched herself to make sure it was not a fantasy of the brain.

What it cost she had not the least idea; that was a matter between the effiency man and the furrier. While she knew it was a splendid triumph for the campaign, she was somewhat troubled about it. She wondered if there was a counter campaign under way, conducted by H. Hedge. She made a mental memorandum to be careful, watchful, always cautious.

"It's 5 o'clock," announced the efficiency man. "Shall we drive in the park or take tea?"

"You decide," she murmured.

"We'll drive."

It would have seemed logical, after his amazing afternoon's record, that the efficiency man should be in gay and trifling mood. He was not. He indulged in long silences, broken only by monosyllables, yet marked by frequent and disconcerting inspections of Constance. Sometimes he glowered at the bundles on the front seat. There was something grim in his mood.

Once he turned to her abruptly and said almost sharply:

"I wish you would wear blue more frequently."

Constance widened her eyes, then stammered:

"Wh-why?"

"Suits you."

"And—and do you like it, Mr. Hedge?"

He did not appear to hear, having relapsed into another of his silences.

The number of parcels which were removed from the car as it stopped at last in front of the Brooke mansion caused Horace to display a surprise that is inexcusable in any experienced butler. H. Hedge did not notice this, however.

He walked directly to the library and began going through the afternoon mail. Constance hurried to her rooms, where she soon had Matilda bringing out for inspection every dinner gown that she possessed.

She chose a blue one.

The efficiency man had little to say during the evening meal. He did not fail to observe the gown, but he made no comment, as Constance rather hoped he would. He was unnaturally preoccupied, so that he forget to tell Horace that he took seven unnecessary steps in walking from the sideboard to the table.

In the library, after dinner, Hedge was so unsociable that Constance presently drifted to the music-room, where she played for an hour or so. The efficiency man sat at the big desk working furiously over books and reports. He did not once send for his secretary.

When finally he reached the matter of accounts he took his memorandum-book from his pocket and began a swift tabulation.

The result astonished him so that he checked it up twice, only to become annoyed at the time wasted in verifying a simple sum in addition.

"Economy, just the same," he muttered, scowling at the figures. "It was a matter of need. I made that perfectly clear to her. There is no possibility that she misunderstood. If I find that she did I'll not fail to make it absolutely plain."

He chewed an unlighted cigar for several minutes, still scowling.

"It's just possible she got the idea," he said, "that money was being spent in the same old reckless fashion. She won't have it long. I'll get it out of her head. I'll do it now!"

He arose with decision and strode across the hall in the direction of the music-room.

Constance was still sitting at the piano, her back toward him. The efficiency man halted on the threshold, listening and watching. She was quite unconscious of his presence. What she played he did not know. It was alternately lively and melancholy.

Her body swayed slightly with the music, rhythmically, buoyantly, sometimes droopingly, as though she were a part of the melody itself. H. Hedge swayed likewise, although he did not know it. Then, after a little, as the music began to quaver and die away, the efficiency man turned noiseless and tiptoed back to the library.

"I'll tell her tomorrow," he said.

CHAPTER XX.

A Matter of Color.

BILLY BROOKE walked into the office with so little of his old-time swagger that the efficiency man instantly noted the change.

"See here, Hedge, I want to talk to you," he said.

"All right, Brooke; sit down."

Hedge and Brooke faced each other.

"This is as man to man," said Billy.

"Very good. But you're not much past 21."

Billy stared straight into the eyes of the efficiency man.

"You can cut that out," he said with an angry flush. "I know I'm not as old as you are. But for this talk, forget it."

"Right. It's man to man," said H. Hedge.

"I don't like you, Hedge," observed Billy, after a short pause.

The efficiency man nodded, and instantly liked Billy better than he had before.

"None of us like you."

This was acknowledged with another nod.

"You've raised the devil in this house."

H. Hedge considered this briefly, then smiled.

"I don't admit it, Brooke. But we'll not argue it. Go ahead."

"You've been particularly rotten to me. I've stood for a lot. I guess I'm easy going. I threatened to throw you out—and I didn't. Maybe you thought I was afraid."

The efficiency man made a deprecatory gesture, but said nothing

"I don't know whether I can lick you or not," added Billy with fine frankness. "You licked Tommy Treadwell, and he licked me—once. But that doesn't mean I wouldn't have a try at you."

"Of course not."

"On my own account, I'm willing to let things stall along. The old man'll be back before a great while, and I guess maybe I can stand it till then."

H. Hedge nodded understandingly.

"But I'm talking on Connie's account now."

"Oh."

Billy paused and studied the efficiency man through slightly narrowed eyes. He was unaccustomed to much serious speech, and the effort was plainly embarrassing to him. Yet he kept resolutely on.

"You treated Connie in a way that was shameful. It makes me sick when I think that I stood for it. And Alice, too; but I'm talking about Connie now."

"Sure. Go on."

"And Connie's the finest girl in the whole world," blurted Billy, leaning forward in his chair.

H. Hedge made a sign of assent.

"But you don't treat her that way any more!"

"Now—this is what I'm getting at—why don't you treat her that way any more.

"Because," answered H. Hedge, "to quote your own remark, she's the finest girl in the whole world."

"Ah—I thought so."

Billy settled back in his chair with the air of a lawyer who has just performed an expert piece of taxidermy upon a witness. The efficiency man preserved his calm.

"Yes, I thought so," repeated Billy, wagging his head. "That's the reason you've been letting her have whatever she wants. I've been watching you, Hedge. Now, listen; I don't care anything about that part of it. Anything Connie can get she's entitled to.

"She isn't getting half enough, anyhow. And whether I get anything or not doesn't make any difference. Or Alice, either. But you don't want to get any fool notions in your head about my sister. Understand?"

"I don't have fool notions," observed H. Hedge placidly.

"Well, you just admitted that you thought she was the finest girl in the world."

"Is that a fool notion?"

Billy flushed.

"Oh, well; you know I don't mean it that way. I'm not always very good at expressing myself. Of course it's not a fool notion—but what business have you got to have it?"

"I never looked at it from that standpoint," admitted the efficiency man in a judicial tone. "Let's debate it."

"No, we won't. You don't get me tied up into anything like that. Just see here: even if you were friendly with the family, you're not in Connie's class."

"Hum," remarked H. Hedge with the slightest trace of a flush in his face. "That sounds a trifle snobbish. Are you a snob, Brooke?"

Billy shuffled his feet and frowned.

"I didn't mean it exactly that way, either," he said. "I don't intend to be a snob—I'm not. But what I'm trying to get at is, Connie's used to going with a different kind of crowd—not your kind at all. So it won't do you any good to get foolish over her. That's what I mean."

"I'm not foolish over her."

"You can't bluff—I know."

"Oh, all right, if you know."

"And I don't want you to annoy her."

H. Hedge betrayed sincere surprise.

"I wasn't aware that I had," he said. "Did she say so?"

"No, of course not. Girls don't talk about those things. But anybody can see."

"I get you. Tell me some more."

"Well, that's about all. I'm just giving you warning, Hedge."

"Good of you, Brooke. What do you want me to do—bark at her?"

"No!"

Billy almost shouted it.

"I just want you to leave her alone. that's all. Keep away from her."

"Well, we're both living in the same house and eating at the same table. So that will be somewhat difficult," observed the efficiency man.

"She's in here all the time, working," growled Billy.

"I can't force her to work if she refuses."

"Maybe she is—but she hasn't any use for you, Hedge."

The efficiency man pondered the observation in calmness.

"That's quite possible," he said cheerfully. "But if your sister wants to keep up her secretarial work, I can't prevent it. Rather, I don't intend to. It's excellent training for her."

Billy remained silent for a minute, wrestling with his soul.

"Look here, Hedge," he exclaimed suddenly. "If somebody has to do this work, I'll do it myself—anything to keep Connie from being bothered."

"Well, Brooke, that sounds fair enough. But there's this about it: at present your sister's work is satisfactory, and I'm not justified in discharging her without cause. If it becomes unsatisfactory, I'll fire her. Then the job is yours. Or if she chooses to resign, it's yours, too. You can't expect any more than that."

Billy was stumped. H. Hedge's offer surely sounded fair, yet it was unsatisfactory.

"Why don't you give her some other job?" he said.

"What, for instance?"

"Oh, anything—bossing the servants."

The efficiency man shook his head.

"That's part of my job," he said. "I love it too much to surrender it. Your servants are a joy, particularly the cook. No; I can't give that up Has your sister suggested a transfer "

"Certainly not. You don't think I'd talk to her about this business, do you "

"I imagine not."

"Not much," continued Billy, shaking his head. "But you've got to find some way out of this, Hedge. I won't stand for it. You've admitted you're getting sweet on my sister."

"I? I don't recall admitting it. I merely adopted a phrase of your own. It wouldn't have been polite for me to have disagreed with you on the point."

"Seems to me you're getting polite all of a sudden."

The efficiency man smiled enigmatically.

"Well, I've given you notice. You know what I mean," said Billy significantly. "We're only standing for you because you've got control of the money; that's all. You don't want to get the idea that any of us have any use for you, Hedge, or for the way you've been running this house. You're a bug on one subject, but it doesn't belong here. And you understand I've got to look out after my sisters, don't you?"

"It's certainly your duty, Brooke," assented the efficiency man.

"And I'm going to do it!"

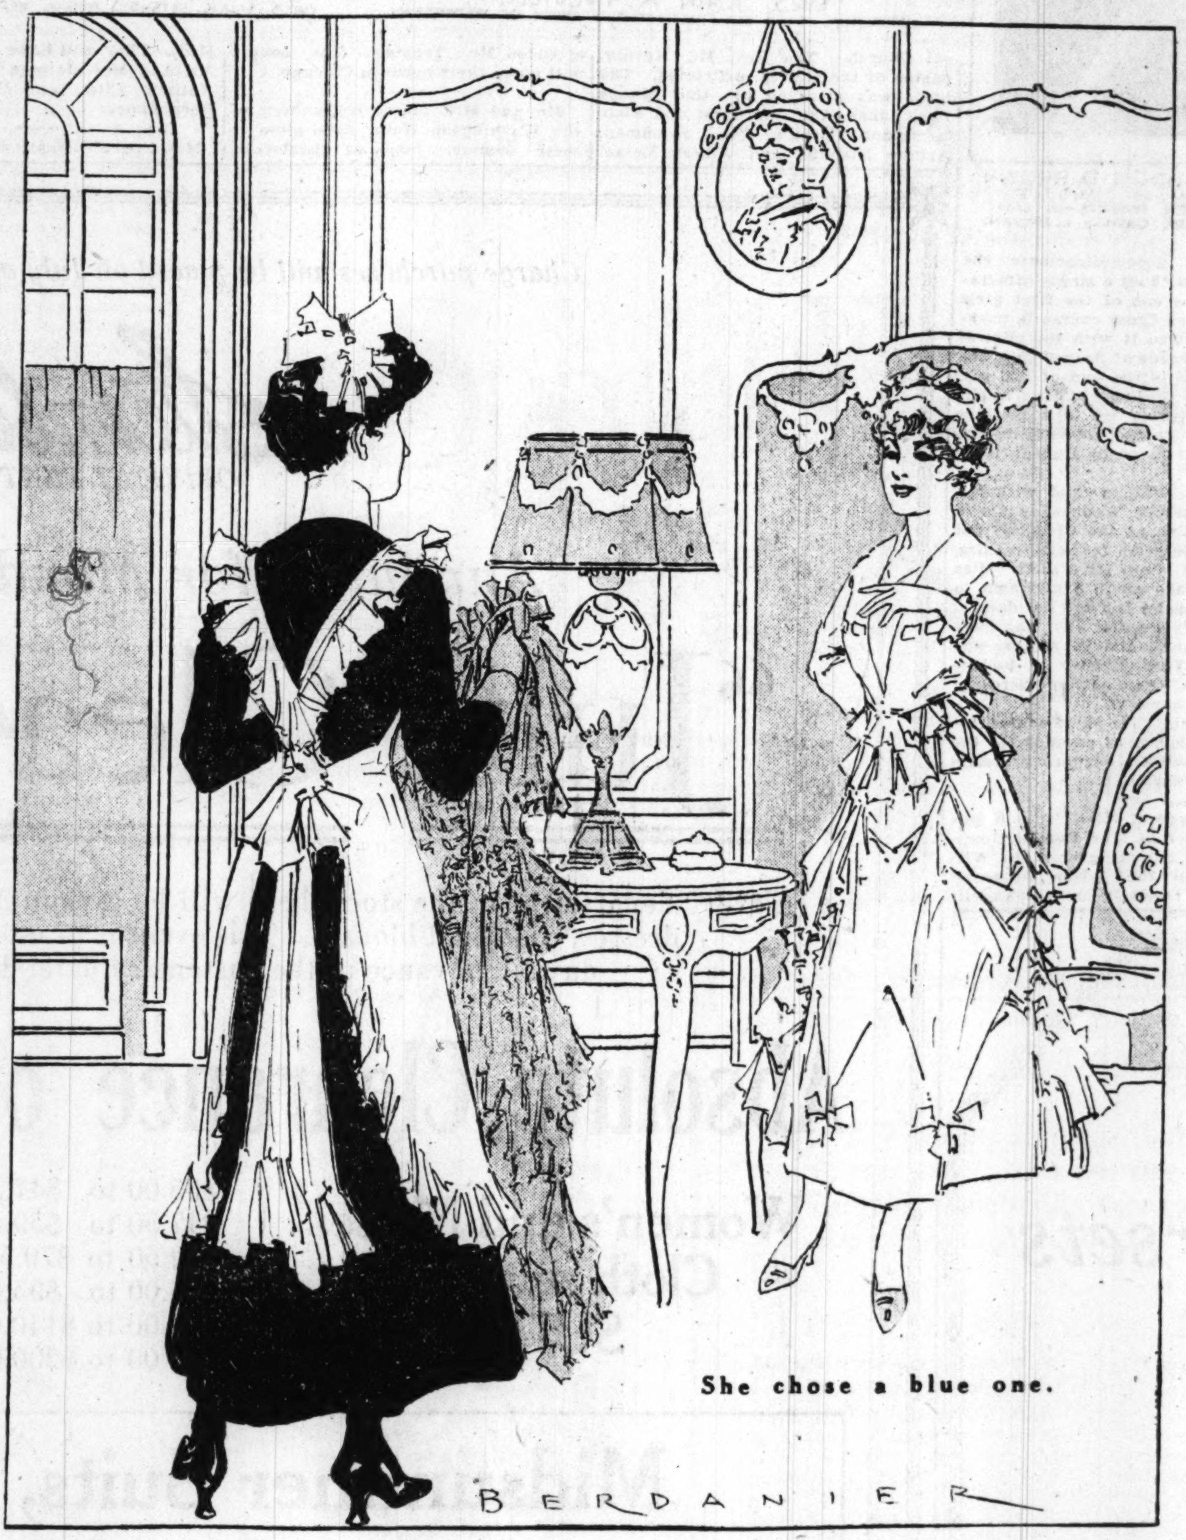
"Good"!

Billy arose and stood irresolute for an instant. Then he shrugged his shoulders.

"You understand now?" he asked.

"Quite."

As Billy turned toward the door he found himself face to face with Constance. There was a look of plain inquiry in her eyes, as their glance shifted rapidly from her brother to the efficiency man.



She chose a blue one.

Billy coughed in his embarrassment.

"What's the understanding about?" she asked pleasantly. "Or is it a secret?"

"Oh, not at all," answered H. Hedge.

Billy Brooke glared at him.

"Work? You, Billy?"

"Well, why not?" he demanded defensively.

"I—oh—no reason at all, of course," said Consance quickly. "Only"——

"I can do all this sort of stuff," added her brother, with a grand wave of his hand in the direction of the filing cases and the desk.

"Oh, can you?" she challenged. "Don't be too sure, Billy."

"Bet you I can."

Constance shook her head and laughed.

"Not while I hold the job," she said. "You wouldn't have a poor working girl lose her situation, would you?"

Billy sighed heavily.

"What sort of work is he going to do, Mr. Hedge?" she asked.

"Oh, we hadn't reached that. Just a general talk, Miss Brooke."

Billy cast a look of scorn at his sister and a final scowl of warning at H. Hedge. Then he stalked out of the library.

Constance was puzzled. She knew they were hiding something from her, and she had a misgiving that Billy had been indiscreet.

"Is my brother really going to work, Mr. Hedge?" she asked, as she seated herself at the opposite side of the desk and picked up a pile of report cards.

The efficiency man was studying the manner in which her hair was waved about her ears and the singular steadiness of her serene, gray eyes, so that for the moment he did not answer. Then, remembering, he roused himself.

"He wants to go to work," he answered.

"That's encouraging. To work at what?"

"He offered to be my secretary."

"Really?" This is a subject for thought, and Constance devoted a little time to it. "Am—am I to be discharged, then?"

"Not while you are efficient," he assured her.

"And am I efficient?"

This was disconcerting, even to an efficiency man, particularly one who has just been warned by a big brother.

"Medium," he answered.

Constance frowned. She had expected something better than that, and wondered if the campaign had struck a snag. It is annoying to apply for a reference and obtain only a half-hearted one. As for H. Hedge, he realized that he must be cautious. The business discipline of the Brooke household was a thing to be maintained at all costs.

"I hate being medium," she said, as she began checking up a report card, upon which Giovanni had noted the presence of clinkers in the coal. "I want to be very good or very bad."

"Why such extremes?"

"Because being only medium is colorless. Am I colorless?"

"Eh? Who said so? No!"

"Well, you inferred it. Then what color am I?"

"Pink," said the efficiency man as he watched her cheeks. "And gray"—that was for the eyes—"with a dash of chestnut." He was looking at her hair. "And some blue." It was her gown now. "And a bit of"——

Constance glared at him.

"I didn't ask for an inventory," she interrupted sharply. "Or a card index. You're always putting down items and adding them up—and I don't want to be added."

H. Hedge came nearer to wearing an expression of despair than at any time since his invasion of the Brooke household.

"Well, what on earth do you want?" he demanded almost irritably.

Constance knew what she wanted, felt angry at herself for wanting it, and still angrier at the efficiency man for not knowing what she wanted. She wanted a compliment. She flushed, too, when she realized that perhaps she had been guilty of fishing for one.

"I don't want anything, if you please," she retorted. "I'm busy with the reports."

He made a gesture of helplessness and became busy himself.

Constance did not remain in the library long. After 10 minutes or so she laid aside the report cards on a pretext and started for the door. She was almost on the threshhold when the efficiency man called for her, in a desperate voice:

"You're the color of 24-carat gold'!"

She affected not to hear, and did not turn her head in acknowledgment. H. Hedge sighed and shook himself irritably.

"Well, how in blazes do I know what color she wants to be?" he muttered.

Constance straightway sought her brother. She proposed to have an explanation of something that disturbed her mind.

"What were you talking to Mr. Hedge about?" she asked abruptly.

"Work," answered Billy, taking his cue from the efficiency man.

She waved a hand impatiently.

"Were you talking about me?"

Billy hesitated and thus supplied an answer.

"Who started it? she questioned swiftly. "Did he?"

Billy remained silent

"Of course not; I knew he didn't," Constance affirmed with a nod. "You started it. What was it about?"

"You," answered Billy gruffly, thus completing the circle.

"Well, what about me? What's wrong with me? Why do I have to be discussed? What business"—

"Look here," blurted her brother; "I'll talk to H. Hedge whenever I please. And if I don't want him to hang around you, I'll"——

Billy paused, flustered and annoyed. Constance eyed him for a brief interval, with the color rising in her cheeks.

"So that was it," she said slowly. "And by what right do you go to Mr. Hedge on such a matter? It's humiliating. I forbid you ever to do it again. And he does not 'hang around' me, as you say. Mr. Hedge is a gentleman, and"——

"A gentleman!" echoed Billy. "Why, you're defending him'!"

"I'm not!" she retorted hotly. "You are unbearable, Billy."

"But I thought"——

"Then stop it! It's bad for you. And hereafter don't you ever dare to say a word to him about me."

She flung herself out of the room, leaving her brother bewildered and starting. Fate had it that Alice should encounter her at the worst possible moment.

"Well, how's the great campaign going, Connie?"

Constance made no answer.

"It seems to be going all right for you," remarked Alice bluntly. "You're rolling in riches. But where do I come in?"

"At the finish," said Constance sharply.

"Not before then?"

"Have a little patience, Alice."

"When is the finish?"

"Alice, you're stupid."

"Maybe. But with you the only one getting the swag"——

"That's vulgar!"

"Why, I'm still from Joplin, Mo., said Alice imperturbably.

"Alice!"

But the younger sister was unimpressed She laughed jeeringly.

"Oh, I guess you think E. E. is O. K.," she trilled.

"—I don't!"

"Huh. But I notice you hesitated."

"I—I didn't!"

Didn't!"

"Did."

Constance seized Alice by the shoulders, ejected her from the sitting-room, and slammed the door.

"They're insufferable—all of them!" she exclaimed to nobody. "And he—he is the worst of all. And yet"——

She sauntered to a mirror.

"He said I was all gold," she mused, studying her image. "Well, I don't know."

CHAPTER XXI.

A Little Love-Making.

H. HEDGE, with his maddening habit of discovering things, came upon an extraordinary performance in the dining-room. On one side of the circular table stood Ruth, one of the house maids, her cheeks flushed, her eyes bright. She was palpably out of breath. On the other side stood Frank, the chauffeur, with a grin of resolution on his face.

It was not so much the fact that neither of them belonged to the dining-room as it was their maneuvering which astonished the efficiency man.

Frank made a swift sally to the left, moving around the table. Ruth, with suppressed shriek, duplicated the movement. Frank halted and darted in the other direction. So did Ruth. Back and forth they dodged a half a dozen times, while H. Hedge stood in the doorway and watched.

"Oh, I'll get you!" cried Frank jubilantly.

"Never! You go 'way!"

"Ha!" laughed Frank, as he made a new dash.

"You stop."

The chauffeur chuckled and continued the pursuit.

This continued for a full minute, while the efficiency man stood unobserved. He rather marveled at Ruth's fleetness of foot and at the discomfiture of Frank over her nimbleness. Then Ruth discovered the audience, and promptly yelled in dismay.

"What's the idea?" asked H. Hedge, advancing.

Frank became tongue-tied and fumbled with the strap of one of his leather puttees.

"He—he was chasing me," panted Ruth.

"I got that much," observed the efficiency man. "But why?"

Ruth looked significantly at Frank, whose face was now a dull red.

"He"——

"Well?"

"He—he wanted to kiss me!"

"Is that so, Frank?" demanded H. Hedge.

Frank shrugged his shoulders, then nodded faintly.

"And why did you want to kiss her?"

Foolish question! If he had not been an efficiency engineer, he might have understood. Ruth was prettier than a whole lot of magazine covers.

She looked at Frank expectantly, then tossed her head and frowned as he made no answer.

"Frank, you are discharged!"

The chauffeur was sullen and unmoved. Ruth uttered a little cry, and her hand leaped to her throat.

"Oh, please, Mr. Hedge," she pleaded.

The efficiency man eyed her in surprise.

"What's the matter?" he demanded. "He was annoying you, wasn't he? I take it that you didn't want to be kissed, inasmuch as you were running away. If you did want to be kissed, why didn't you stand still?"

Ruth blushed furiously.

"I do not approve of kissing," continued H. Hedge coldly. "And I do not allow it among employes of this house—in business hours. Frank is discharged for attempting it, and you, Ruth, are retained only because of your manifest endeavors to escape."

There was utter misery in Ruth's face.

"Please, Mr. Hedge, he—he didn't mean anything. Honest!"

"I did," blurted Frank, recovering speech for the first time.

"I want to marry her."

Ruth gasped and covered her face with her hands. Frank squared his shoulders and glared defiantly at H. Hedge.

"Have you asked her?" inquired the latter abruptly?

"I was trying to."

"Is that the way you ask a young woman to marry you?" Hedge queried. "By chasing her around a table and trying to kiss her?"

Frank shuffled his feet and made no answer.

"Such a performance is absolutely without sense," continued the efficiency man sharply. "It is a waste of time, a waste of energy. It is an attempt to accomplish something by indirection rather than by direction. I do not aprove of it It is unscientific."

Ruth was peering at the efficiency man through her fingers.

"Frank," said H. Hedge, 'do you still want to marry this young woman?"

"Uh-huh."

"All right. Ask her."

Frank was dumb again.

"Say, 'Will you marry me?' That's the shortest form.

Still the chauffeur hesitated. Ruth had removed her hands from her face and was regarding him with curious eyes. Unconsciously, perhaps, the pair edged toward each other.

"Go ahead and say it," commanded H. Hedge sternly.

But still Frank said nothing. One of his hands groped helplessly along the edge of the table. An instant later it met one of Ruth's, groping in the opposite direction. And then——

Ruth was smothered in a clumsy but wholly efficient embrace. She put her blond head against Frank's coat and began to cry. Then Frank began to whisper back. By and by she lifted her head and slipped her arms around his neck. Then they began to kiss each other.

The efficiency man stood staring, but they paid not the slightest attention to him. He endured a full minute of it, and then cleared his throat.

"Well, what does this mean?" he demanded.

Ruth suddenly came out of her dream and twisted her head in the direction of H. Hedge.

"It means we're going to get married," she said defiantly.

The efficiency man shook his head in annoyance.

"It is a most ridiculous performance," he remarked. "You have wasted probably 10 minutes over a matter that could have been easily concluded in 10 seconds. Frank, do you interpret this rigmarole as an engagement to marry?"

"Uh-huh," answered Frank, as he kissed Ruth again.

"Very well. I give my consent."

They gazed upon the efficiency man with undisguised astonishment.

"I—I did the consenting," flared Ruth.

"That will do," said H. Hedge, raising a warning hand. "As the head of this house, I do the consenting. Frank, inasmuch as you are going to be married, you will need a job. Therefore I reinstate you."

Ruth beamed at the efficiency man and kissed Frank.

"And now, when do you want to be married—today?"

Frank looked startled and Ruth uttered a cry. Then she hid her face against Frank's coat.

"We—want to be engaged a while," she said in a muffled voice.

"More nonsense," snapped H. Hedge with a look of annoyance. "However, I have no further time to waste with you. I have at least accomplished an engagement. When you want to be married, let me know. And no more kissing during hours, understand. I will prepare a notice for the bulletin in the servants' quarters. Send Horace for it in five minutes.

He wheeled and marched out of the dining room by the shortest possible route, leaving Frank and Ruth resolutely clinging to each other.

"I am beginning to realize for the first time," said the efficiency man to himself, as he reached his desk, 'to what an appalling extent inefficiency and archaic methods have invaded our whole social structure. This affair is at once shocking and illuminating. Getting engaged! Bah! Why in heaven's name two separately sane people spend such an amount of time and energy in concluding the simplest form of contract in the whole world is beyond my comprehension. I said it could be handled in 10 seconds; in reality five would be amply suficient. Here is a case for standardisation, if ever one was."

He began writing on a sheet of paper.

"I suppose, however," he mused, "that Ruth was entirely justified in endeavoring to escape, not having the least idea of Frank's intentions. It is well that I arrived and pointed the way to a solution."

Presently Horace entered, and the efficiency man handed him a paper, to be duly posted. It said:

Frank and Ruth to marry. Approved.
(Signed) H. HEDGE.

"They're wanting to keep it a secret, sir," he ventured.

"A secret?" echoed the efficiency man. "For how long?"

"I couldn't say, sir. But you know how it is with girls, sir. They just sort of like to—— Oh, you know, sir."

"It is evident that I am beginning to find out. Of course, it is absurd. A secret! For what good reason? It's nonsense. I shall probably order them married next week. However, do as you please with the notice."

H. Hedge dismissed the butler with an impatient wave of the hand. Horace bowed his way out and, having reached the hall, carefully folded the paper and tucked it into his pocket. Horace, being of mature years and benevolent disposition, felt an indulgence toward youth. Let them have their secrets if they wanted to.

But in the kitchen he found that it was no secret. Mary, her hands on her hips, was surveying two young people, whose guilt was stamped on happy faces.

"So 'tis done at last, is it?" she observed. "May God give the two av you sinse. Ye've been palaverin' an' meanderin' for this year past, till I'm sick and sore watchin' the pair av ye. An' now ye're gettin' marri'd. Frank, ye're a fool. Ruth, ye're a bigger wan. Come here, the two av yez, an' kiss an' ould woman."

In the library that evening H. Hedge was in a strangely preoccupied mood. Billy was out somewhere, probably at a poker party. Alice, still oppressed by the 10-o'clock rule, had retired to her room. Constance alone represented the Brooke family. She was sitting with her feet on the fender, a book in her lap, but her eyes staring idly into the dancing flames of the driftwood fire. The efficiency man rose abruptly from his desk, after drawing several diagrams on a pad, and approached the fireplace.

Two Big Out-of-Town Weddings Will Claim Attention of St. Louisans This Week—Miss Alice Fairleigh Davis Will Wed Jarrot McCord in St. Joseph, Mo., on Wednesday, and Thursday Miss Mary Willis Will Marry Frederick Berthold Ewing at Roland Park, Md.

By Frances Cabanne Scovel.

TWO big out-of-town weddings this week will claim the attention of the social set and take a number of persons away to attend them.

In St. Joseph, on Wednesday, Miss Alice Fairleigh Davis and Jarrot McCord will be married, and so often has the bride visited St. Louis and so much of belle has she been that her wedding is of as much interest as that of a St. Louis girl. Then, besides, the bridegroom has many relatives in St. Louis—the Robert Floyd-Jones ,the Scanlans, Mrs. George S. Tiffany and Mrs. Howard A. Benoist and numbers of others.

Thursday Miss Mary Willis, who has so often visited Mrs. Eugene Pettus, will be married to Frederick Berthold Ewing, the fifth son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Auguste B. Ewing.

The wedding will be an afternoon affair at 5 o'clock, at the home of the bride's brother, Luthur Willis and Mrs. Willis in Roland Park, Md., near Baltimore. Miss Willis was maid of honor for Mrs. Pettus, who was Miss Marguerite Tower, at the latter's wedding May 17, and Mrs. Pettus will be matron of honor Thursday. Mrs. Luther will be the other attendant.

Charles G. Ewing will be best man for his brother and Luther Willis and Mark Ewing, another brother of the bridegroom, will be bridegroomsmen.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Tower Jr. will go to the wedding, as will Mrs. Ira E. Wight and Mrs. Samuel Plant, the bridegroom's sisters, and Mr. and Mrs. Auguste B. Ewing Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel W. Ewing.

Miss Davis' wedding will be in the evening at 8 o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Davis. Miss Amy Hunt Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Augustine B. Jones' daughter, will be maid of honor and the bride's other attendants will be Mrs. Henry Hartwig of St. Joseph and Miss Mary McCord, the bridegroom's cousin, of Denver.

Randolph Davis, the bride's brother, who will be best man, and the bridegroomsmen, Doyle Barrow, C. C. Burnes, Hamilton McCord and Henry Hartwig, are at the officers' reserve training camp and will have a furlough so they can serve at the wedding. The bridegroom also was at the training camp.

New Hats for Sport, Sea Shore and Traveling. Sally Meagher Millinery Co., 801 Century Bldg.—ADV.

THE engagement of Miss Isabel Capen to John A. Scudder is one of the most interesting of the unusually large number announced within the last few weeks, because, not many girls have been as popular as Miss Capen.

Since her debut, two seasons ago, when she was a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet's Ball, no important social affair, whether for debutante or dowager, has been complete without her, and in every charitable entertainment she has taken a leading part.

She is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel D. Capen of Wentworth terrace, on the Clayton road. She is a graduate of Mary Institute, and a member of the Junior League. She is one of the best amateur dancers in town; can sew, golf, ride and has all the accomplishments she should have, without a single affectation. She was one of the first girls to take the Red Cross course in nursing, and followed it with the clinical work in the wards of Barnes Hospital.

Mr. Scudder is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Scudder of 3833 Washington boulevard. He is a member of the Coast Patrol, attached to the Ojen, the boat given by Duncan Houser.

Miss Capen will go East with Mr. and Mrs. Scudder Wednesday for a motor tour, and as the Ojen has put into East Greenwich for some repairs, they will stop there for a visit. Miss Capen will then go to Jamestown to visit Mrs. Duncan Joy and her daughter, Miss Mary Francis Joy, who have a cottage there, and in August she will go to York Harbor to be the guest of Mrs. Clay Arthur Pierce at her summer home.

The marriage date is, of course, indefinite. It has been planned for the autumn, when Mr. Scudder probably can obtain a furlough.

The marriage of Miss Paula Hoppman, daughter of Mrs. Bertha Hoppman of 3440 Illinois avenue, to William Treptow took place yesterday afternoon at the Holy Cross Evangelical Church. The Rev. Mr. Koenig, pastor of the church, officiated. The bride was attended by the Misses Erna Linse, Adelaide Gerst and Elsie Herrmann. Messrs. Fred Hoppman, Arthur Niebuhr and Albert Motzel attended Mr. Treptow. The couple will make their home in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Moses Schoenberg of the Washington Hotel have gone to their summer home at Charlevoix, Mich. They will have as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Bernheimer of Kansas City, and their son, Earl Bernheimer.

Mrs. Fred J. Niehaus of 5781A McPherson avenue, will entertain with a reception Wednesday, from 2 to 5 o'clock, in compliment to her niece, Mrs. Parnell Quick, who was married June 4, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. James, formerly of St. Louis, in Camp Hill, Pa. Mrs. Quick

Her sister, Miss Mary Little, was maid of honor, and Miss Louise Willing, the bridegroom's niece, was bridemaid. The attendants wore gowns of pink satin and pink picture hats and carried bouquets of pink and white sweet peas. Alexander Atkins was best man.

Women! Stop Corn Pain! Few Drops and Corns Lift Out

Your high heels have put corns on your toes and calluses on your feet, but why care now?

This tiny bottle holds an almost magic fluid. A genius in Cincinnati discovered this ether compound and named it freezone. Small bottles of freezone like here shown can be had at any drug store for a few cents. Don't limp or twist your face, but get a bottle of freezone and apply a few drops on your tender, aching corn or callus. Instantly the soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn or callus so shriveled and loose that you can lift it off with the fingers.

Just think! You get rid of a hard corn, soft corn or a corn between the toes, as well as hardened calluses without suffering one particle. Freezone is magic!—ADV.

POSTOFFICE EMPLOYES LIBERTY BOND BUYERS

Amount of Subscriptions Probably Will Exceed $5,000,000, Estimate 50 Per Cent.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Volunteer reports to the Postoffice Department from postmasters throughout the country indicate that Postmaster-General Burleson's original estimate of $3,000,000 in subscriptions to the Liberty Loan Bonds by postal employes will be exceeded by 50 per cent and perhaps by 100 per cent.

A skeleton report shows that, out of approximately 2300 first and second class postoffices, the employes in 31 first-class offices and 59 second-class offices subscribed $1,756,550. There are 583 first-class offices.

The following are subscriptions from some of the larger offices from which reports have been received: New York City $539,700, Philadelphia $235,000, Boston $225,250, St. Louis $126,000, Brooklyn $125,000, Baltimore $103,250, Atlanta $21,500, Des Moines $12,000, Louisville $26,250, New Orleans $32,500, Kansas City $30,000, Omaha $30,000, Nashville $15,000, Milwaukee $35,000.

Every Employe Subscribed.

Many offices reported that every employe had purchased a bond. Others reported from 60 to 98 per cent. Austin, Tex., the home of the Postmaster-General, reported that every employee had subscribed, the total being $6,350. Philadelphia reported a fraction more than 80 per cent of the employes of the office had subscribed.

Among first-class offices which reported every employe as having subscribed are New Haven, Des Moines, Dubuque, Oshkosh, Vicksburg, Jackson, Charlotte, Fort Wayne, Columbus, Ga., Bloomington, Ill., and New Orleans, all except two.

Through assistance of Postmaster Selph of St. Louis, the Letter Carriers' Mutual Benefit Association subscribed, through the St. Louis office, $10,000, for the account of the investment fund of the Association, and the local carriers' association subscribed $1000. Information has also been received that the National Association of Postmasters of the United States, of which the Postmaster at St. Louis is president, has contributed a considerable sum out of the funds of that Association for Liberty Bonds.

Division of Subscriptions.

In the present estimate made by the Postmaster-General, it is figured that the subscriptions will aggregate $4,500,000 among those employes under the First Assistant Postmaster-General, including postmasters, clerks and carriers, and that the amount from the rural carriers under the Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General and the railway mail clerks under the Second Assistant Postmaster-General will reach approximately $3,000,000, thus bringing the total to $7,500,000.

A report from the Postmaster at Emporium, Pa., states that 13 employes subscribed $6250, which includes his own subscription of $1000; that his wife's mother's family subscribed $800; his wife's sister's family, $4200; his wife's brother's family, $750; his wife's niece, $400, and his two minor children $300, aggregating $11,600.

BLEACHING SAID NOT TO ADD GREATLY TO COST OF FLOUR

Apparent Erroneous Inference Drawn by Food Expert on Cost of Manufacture Corrected by St. Louis Miller.

The Sunday Post-Dispatch Magazine in printing a summary, June 3, of a publication issued by the University of Chicago entitled "Food Poisoning," and prepared by Prof. Edwin Oakes Jordan, chairman of the Department of Hygiene and Bacteriology, quoted one paragraph, as follows:

"The artificial whitening of flour with the poisonous nitrogen peroxide seems hardly worth the extra tax of 10 cents to a dollar a barrel."

This assertion was challenged by a St. Louis miller, who stated that "the most expensive process costs about one-half a cent a barrel and the most-used process costs less than one-fourth cent a barrel."

When the attention of Prof. Jordan was called to this matter he cited as his authority a book written in 1916 by Prof. Folin of Harvard, "Preservatives and Other Chemicals in Foods." Prof. Folin gave several pages to the question of bleaching flour, the essential statement in this question, being the following:

"The only purpose of the bleaching was to make the flour from dark wheat look as white as the best patent flour. To accomplish this purpose had been the aim of commercial chemists for many years, and they finally succeeded. The reward for their success was contributed by the consumers of the bleached flours at the rate of from 10 cents to a dollar extra a barrel."

It is quite evident that Prof. Folin did not mean that the actual, mechanical process of bleaching flour was the amounts named but that the makers, at that time, were able to find a market for flour so whitened at a considerably increased price.

50,000 BIBLES FOR SOLDIERS

Sunday school attendants will receive envelopes and cards today for their contributions next Sunday, when an effort will be made to get enough money for 50,000 New Testaments to be given to the soldiers living in St. Louis and those who are here for training. Next Sunday has been designated as "Patriotic Sunday" and churches have arranged special programs.

With each envelope will be a card which the donor will sign and place in a testament. Each person will be expected to give enough for one testament, and it is hoped that some will contribute for several. Twenty-five cents will buy a testament.

ST. LOUISAN PUBLISHES PLAY BASED ON WA

Edith Cavell Frankly Implied Heroine in Work of Charles V. H. Roberts.

A three-act tragedy of the war by Charles V. H. Roberts of St. Louis, in which Edith Cavell is frankly implied as the heroine and the prologue is laid in hell, with Satan conceiving the great struggle, has just reached local bookstands. It is called "The Sublime Sacrifice."

The prologue opens with the spirits of Nero, Attila, Bismarck and others gathered about the arch fiend. Satan tells them that civilization on earth has lasted long enough, and unfolds his plan to bring it to an end. Among those who welcome the suggestion is Attila, who says:

Master, how I greet thy words!
To Chalons-plain again send me. The world
By massacre, as well should now be ended;
And in the loss of infants' blood be drowned.
Chorus of devils: Aye—aye—let him go forth—let him go forth!

Assured and right speaks this scented Hun.
The stock is rare and easily collected.
In foul proportion let me take a part;
My memory gloats within conspiracies.

Beelzebub: No shop on earth is better for our task,
Forthwith to all our ends, than Hun-begotten.
Prussia; his artilleries attuning-glowing,
Ripe to strike our haughty adversary.

Their haughty adversary is God, who seems about to conquer the earth. At any rate, they are agreed—except for Bismarck. He speaks:

Satan, I dream not in the thirst for blood;
Nor zest acute, nor wish that war return.
I would not have my country thus involved.
I see thy motive and thy prophecy!
(Hisses.)
Unconfirmed, Prussia is prepared for war;
In that alone am I responsible.
Such preparation best upholds the peace;
True for all the world and all mankind.
For conquest further, I will not be part,
Though loud and fierce in blame thy hate may be.

Satan protests against this, and asks Bismarck if that is his gratitude. Bismarck replies:

No—not
At all. I see the circling splendor of
My work, as I do see the ruin there
Combined—this hostile evil thou wouldst hatch.
My one regret to shame, my plans do give
To thee such scope, to reek this wider carnage.
For that alone thou shouldst be very thankful.

Satan responds that he is thankful, but nevertheless means to be crowned king on earth. He commands Attila:

With wiles and thy resistless ways, benumb
The reason of that Prussian dynasty.
(Glaring and pointing his scepter at Bismarck):
Worse of all destroyed will be their ends!

Slaughter babes, cathedrals batter down!
Rape mothers, daughters, both—beneath the moon!
Rise, massacre, passion, madness, force and fury!
If not a final victory over heaven,
On earth shall we reek frightfulness unknown!

The first act of the play is laid in the home of the heroine, Edith Arnold. Edith announces her determination to go to Belgium as a nurse. Her mother seeks to dissuade her. The father has already died in France. Edith persists, and when her lover comes she announces to him her determination as well. He also tries to dissuade her, but finally gives in. He is himself off for France. The act ends with troops passing in the street below, and the lovers saying farewell on a balcony.

The second act is laid in the tent of the Germany Military Governor in Belgium. This is Von Hofer, implying Von Bissing. Edith is brought there, and Von Hofer attempts to turn her over to a German officer who is enamored of her. She scorns the officer, but is left alone with him. She is struggling with this frenzied fellow when her lover is brought in. He has been captured. He begs permission to deal as a man with the tormentor of his sweetheart, and this leave is granted. Sir John, the lover, and Capt. Harrach, the officer, fight a duel with swords in Von Hofer's tent. Harrach is slain. Dying, he exposes Edith as a spy.

The third act is laid in the prison where Edith awaits her execution. By the intercession of the American Ambassador, permission has been granted for Sir John, who has also been sentenced to die on the same morning, to bid Edith farewell. The play ends as dawn flushes the east sky.

The lover is an invention, as are the German officer and the duel. Nor is it true that Edith Cavell's father died in France. Those are the interpolations with which the poet rounds out his play. The lines are at times very beautiful, and the construction of the play is good. Roberts hopes to have it produced.

ONLY DISASTER WILL BRING REVOLUTION IN GERMAN EMPIRE

ister; Dr. Siegfried Heckscher, vice chairman of the Reichstag committee on Foreign Relations, and Philip Scheidemann, leader of the majority of the Socialists in the Reichstag."

The opposition was led by Grand Admiral von Tirpitz, supported by Gen. von Falkenhayn, Von Mackensen and all the other Generals and army and navy leaders. For a time the party of the Chancellor and Foreign Secretary were successful. The opposition, however, took up another line of action. They began and fostered the campaign of hate against America, especially against President Wilson. They also aided to the utmost the German-American and German spies and plotters in the United States.

After the sinking of the Sussex it was seen that President Wilson was at the end of his patience, and the Kaiser called a conference of Ministers, Generals and other leaders at Great Headquarters, in Charleville, Northern France. The advocates and opponents of unlimited submarine warfare mobilized all their forces at this meeting. The Kaiser, at this time, was inclined toward peace with America and was very much impressed by the arguments which the Chancellor and Dr. Helfferich presented. But, at this meeting, while Helfferich was talking and pointing to the moral effect which the ruthless torpedoing of ships was having upon neutral countries, Von Falkenhayn interrupted with the succinct statement:

The Kaiser Rebuked Von Falkenhayn.

" 'Neutrals? Dam the neutrals! Win the war! Our task is to win. If we win we will have the neutrals with us; if we lose we lose.'

" 'Falkenhayn, when you are versed in foreign affairs I'll ask you to speak,' interrupted the Kaiser. 'Proceed Dr. Helfferich.'

"Gentleman that he is, Von Falkenhayn accepted the imperial rebuke, but not long afterward his resignation was submitted."

As will be remembered, Germany promised, then, to respect international law as to the warning, searching and saving human life, in connection with her submarines. As to the downfall of Tirpitz, Von Falkenhayn and their policy of frightfulness, Ackerman remarks:

"Von Tirpitz and Von Falkenhayn, who, shortly after the war began, became the ringleaders of Germany's organized Might, had fallen not before the armed foes on the battlefield but before an unarmed nation with a President whose only weapon was public opinion. First, Von Tirpitz fell because he was ready to defy the United States. Then came the downfall of Von Falkenhayn, because he was prepared to damn the United States and all neutrals. Surely a nation and a Government after 13 months of patience and hope had a right to believe that after all public opinion was a weapon which was sometimes more effective than any other. Mr. Wilson and the State Department were justified in feeling that their policy toward Germany was after all successful not alone because it had solved the vexing submarine issue, but because it had aided the forces of democracy in Germany. Because, with the downfall of Von Falkenhayn and Von Tirpitz, there was only one recognized authority in Germany. That was the Chancellor and the Foreign Office, supported almost unanimously by the Socialists and by the Liberal forces which were at work to reform the German Government.

"But this was in May, 1916, scarcely eight months before the Kaiser changed his mind and again decided to support the people who were clamoring for a ruthless, murderous, defiant war against the whole world, if the world was 'foolish' enough to join in."

How Germany, due to the menace of Russia's armies under Gen. Brusiloff, obtained the military control of Austria, Ackerman tells as follows:

"In July Gen. Brusiloff attacked the Austrian forces in the neighborhood of Lusk, succeeded in persuading or bribing a Bohemian army corps to desert and started through the Austrian positions like a flood over sloping land. Brusiloff not only took several hundred thousand prisoners. He not only broke clear through the Austrian lines, but he thoroughly demoralized and destroyed the Austrian army as a unit in the world war. Von Hindenburg, who had been made chief of the German general staff, was compelled to send thousands of troops to the Wohlynian battlefields to stop the Russian invasion. But Von Hindenburg did not look with any degree of satisfaction upon the possibility of such a thing happening again and informed the Kaiser that he would continue as chief of the general staff only upon condition that he be made chief of all armies allied to Germany. At a conference at great headquarters at Pless, in Silicia, where offices were moved from France as soon as the Field Marshal took charge, Hindenburg was made the leader of all the armed forces in Central Europe.

"Thus by one stroke, really by the aid of Russia, Germany succeeded in conquering Austria-Hungary and in taking away from her command all of the forces, naval and military, which she had. At the same time the Bulgarian and Turkish armies were placed at the disposal of Von Hindenburg. So far so good for the Prussians."

The period between May and November, 1916, was a time of discussion, pamphleteering and conflict of opinion in Germany. The press called it the New Orientation. It came to a climax on Dec. 12, when the Chancellor proposed peace conferences to the allies. As everyone knows, they were rejected.

Food Control in Germany.

Of food control, the author writes:

"The most important step the Government took in food control was to organize the Zentral Einkaufgesellschaft, popularly known as the 'Z. E. G.' The first object of this organization was to purchase food in neutral countries. Previously German merchants had been going to Holland, Switzerland and the Scandinavian countries to buy supplies. These merchants had been bidding against each other in order to get products for their concerns. In this way food was made much more expensive than it would have been had one purchaser gone outside of Germany. So the Government prohibited all firms from buying food abroad. Traveling agents of the 'Z. E. G.' went to these countries and bought all of the supplies available at a fixed price. Then these resold to German dealers at cost.

"Such drastic measures were necessitated by the public demand that every one share alike. The Government found it extremely difficult to control the food. Farmers and rich landowners insisted upon slaughtering their own pigs for their own use. They insisted upon eating the eggs their chickens laid, or, upon sending them through the mail to friends at high prices, thereby evading the egg card regulations. But the Government stepped in and farmers were prohibited from killing their own cattle and from sending foods to friends and special customers. Farmers had to selling everything to the E. G. Z.' "

How Long Can Germany Hold Out?

"When Americans ask, 'How long can Germany hold out?' I reply, 'As long as the German Government can satisfy the vanity and stimulate the nerves of the people, and as long as the people permit the Government to do the nation's thinking.'

"Germany is today in the position of a man on the verge of a nervous breakdown; in the position of a man who is undernourished, who is depressed, who is weighed down by colossal burdens, who is brooding over the loss of friends and relatives, but of a man who feels that his future health and happiness depend upon his ability to hold out until the crisis passes. * * *

"When the Berlin Foreign Office announced, after the sinking of the Sussex, that the ruthless torpedoing of ships would be stopped, the German statesmen meant this method would be discontinued until there were sufficient submarines to defy the United States. At once the German navy, which has always been anti-American, began building submarines night and day. Every one in the Government knew the time would come when Germany would have to break its Sussex pledge.

"The German navy early realized the need for trained men, so it recalled, temporarily, for educational work, the man who sank the Lusitania.

" 'But who sank the Lusitania?' you ask.

" 'The torpedo which sank the Lusitania and killed over 100 Americans and hundreds of other noncombatants was fired by Oberleutnant zur See (first naval Lieutenant) Otto Steinbrink, commander of one of the largest German submarines.'

" 'Was he punished?' you ask.

" 'Kaiser Wilhelm decorated him with the highest military order, the Pour le Merite!'

" 'Where is Steinbrink now?'

" 'On Dec. 8, 1916, the German admiralty announced that he had just returned from a special trip, having torpedoed and mined 22 ships on one voyage.'

" 'What had he been doing?'

" 'For several months last summer he trained officers and crews in this branch of warfare, which gained him international notoriety.'

"It is said that Steinbrink has trained more naval men than any other submarine commander. Concluding, Ackerman says:

"Germany's defeat will be the greatest event in history because it will establish world democracy upon a firm foundation and because Germany itself will emerge democratic. The Chancellor has frequently stated that the Germany which would come out of this war would be nothing like the Germany which went into the war and the Kaiser has already promised a 'people's kingdom of Hohenzollern.' The Kaiser's Government will be reformed because world opinion insists upon it. If the German people do not yet see this, they will be outlawed until they are free. They will see it eventually, and when that day comes, peace will dawn in Europe."

Does your complexion stand the test of bright lights?
Crème Tokalon
ROSEATED
Banishes every complexion blemish in three nights
In many instances

How a wrinkled, coarse, sallow skin can be made fresh, youthful and beautiful through simple osmosis of the skin produced by warm water and roseated cream.

By Mlle. Simone Mareix, France's Great Prize Beauty.

"She seemed beautiful until I saw her under the bright lights—then all the imperfections of her skin and complexion stood out so that she looked positively ugly"—— Have you crowsfeet or pouches around your eyes, sagging cheeks, deep lines or furrows in the forehead or about the mouth? Is your skin coarse, sallow and mottled? Are enlarged pores, blackheads and other complexion blemishes making you homely and causing you to be neglected and shunned? The following wonderful, simple method has enabled many a wrinkled, aged-looking woman to "come back" and make herself look most beautiful, youthful and charming in from two to three weeks' time after she had vainly tried vaunted soaps, creams and lotions and given up all hope of ever regaining her girlish attractiveness. Merely wash your face in warm water at night and rub in a teaspoonful or two of Creme Tokalon Roseated, which is entirely different from every other cream. In the morning wash the face with cold water and rub in more roseated cream. If you have wrinkles, get a box of Japanese Ice Pencils from your druggist and use them in connection with the cream, and you can get quick action on the deepest wrinkles, no matter of how long standing. There is no reason why most any woman between thirty and sixty cannot make herself look from five to fifteen years younger by simply following these directions.

The above is one of a series of articles on beauty specially written by Mlle. Simone Mareix of Paris, winner of two great international beauty prizes—one in Paris, the other in England. Mlle. Mareix personally guarantees success in every case with the products recommended in her newspaper articles or will refund the amount paid for them, provided you take your dealer's receipt at the time you make your purchase. Her American address is Simone Mareix, 20 West 22d Street, New York. Creme Tokalon Roseated and the Japanese Ice Pencils mentioned can be obtained absolutely fresh and guaranteed pure from Wolff-Wilson, Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney, Johnson-Enderle-Pauley, Judge & Dolph, B. TONIC FOR GROWING GIRLS

Most growing girls need a tonic, especially during the years when they are springing up most rapidly and when their appetites are most fickle.

A diet of tea and candy will ruin any girls' chances of future happiness. A plentiful and scientifically correct diet might meet all requirements, but this is next to impossible. Hence the need for a tonic. Almost every doctor's daughter is given a tonic during her period of rapid growth, but because your daughter does not actually break down you do not call a doctor and she gets thin and pale, fidgets so that she cannot sit still on a chair, eats the wrong things, eats too fast, gets too little out-of-door exercise and perhaps faces St. Vitus' Dance, or a nervous breakdown.

A great responsibility rests on parents and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best and most convenient tonic to aid them in bringing their daughters to healthy and happy womanhood. They supply needed elements to the blood, and enable it to meet the unusual demands upon it and help to lay a foundation for future health.

The price of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is fifty cents per box. Your own druggist sells them, or they will be sent on receipt of price by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.—ADV.

If you have

Gray Hair

You should learn that proper treatment with "Canute Water for Gray Hair" has been found to be the ideal preparation for communicating color to gray, faded, bleached, or dyed hair in the shortest possible time, taking usually from five to ten days; the darker the hair the longer it takes. "Canute Water for Gray Hair" is clear as spring water. It is absolutely harmless, not being sticky or greasy and having no sediment on the bottom of the bottle. The natural color it supplies to the hair will neither wash or rub off. It is there to stay. It does not give the hair a dyed appearance, being very beneficial and having such a revitalizing effect on the hair, naturally making it soft and fluffy. Washing or curling with hot iron will not affect the color. Moreover, Canute Water will not stain the hands or scalp.

After the first few applications, if you find the hair is slowly turning a light brownish shade (especially so if the hair has been almost white) you may know that the hair is regaining its youthful color in a healthful and beneficial manner. The hair will go slowly from one shade to another (like a babe's) by the continued use of Canute Water, until it will have regained its entire color. It will then remain that way and simply require a retouching once every week or two as the hairs grow.

TODAY'S AID TO BEAUTY

Hair is by far the most conspicuous thing about us and is probably the most easily damaged by bad or careless treatment. If we are very careful in hair washing, we will have virtually no hair troubles. An especially fine shampoo for this weather, one that brings out all the natural beauty of the hair that dissolves and entirely removes all dandruff, excess oil and dirt, can easily be used at trifling expense by simply dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox (which you can get at any druggists) in a cup of hot water. This makes a full cup of shampoo liquid, enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just the top of the head. This chemically dissolves all impurities and creates a soothing, cooling lather. Rinsing leaves the scalp spotlessly clean, soft and pliant, while the hair takes on the glossy richness of natural color, also a fluffiness which makes it seem much heavier than it is. After a canthrox shampoo, arranging the hair is a pleasure.—ADVERTISEMENT.

MOVING PICTURES TO TELL STORY OF BABIES' MILK FUND

Film to Spread Vital Information in Campaign to Save Needy Infants.

CONTRIBUTIONS.

Show, 3934 Flora boulevard	2 80

The method and meaning of the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund are to be clearly and forcefully illustrated for the St. Louis public through the agency of moving pictures.

By the end of the present week a 1000-foot film, taken by the Industrial Film Co., will be complete and ready for screens in motion picture houses of the city. Before the close of the campaign season in behalf of the destitute and heat-menaced infants, it is expected that the film will carry its wealth of vital information to thousands of men and women who have hitherto given the subject of infant-life conservation little serious thought and. therefore, have but vague knowledge of what is being accomplished through the enthusiasm and energy of girls and boys of St. Louis and neighbor communities, with whom the Post-Dispatch finds co-operation a genuine and increasing satisfaction.

Real Life Pictures.

Every essential detail of the Fund's operations is to be presented in real life pictures. These include baby clinics at the St. Louis pure Milk Commission, the nursing system in charge of trained nurses, preparation and distribution of the pasteurized milk, distribution of free ice, and groups of children in active arrangement of benefit entertainments and other means of upbuilding the Fund.

The motion picture has already established itself as an entertainment medium, and it is also steadily demonstrating its value as an agency in fostering the more vital public undertakings. It has been utilized with splendid effect in promoting some of the great war enterprises of this and other nations, stimulating enlistments of fighting forces and subscriptions for their maintenance, and generally arousing patriotic spirit. That it will serve an equally vital purpose in emphasizing the appeal of the destitute and imperilled babes for a chance to live and serve the country in future years is not a matter of doubt.

Next Saturday evening in the Memorial Congregational Church, Victoria street and Graham avenue, there will be produced in behalf of the poor babies, Louise Alcot's famed two-act play, "Little Women," by little women and men who have been faithfully preparing for the heavy undertaking for several weeks. These young people have been mastering the drama under the direction of Dorothy May of 3130 Crescent avenue, a little miss whose capacity for achieving success in that line has been often demonstrated.

Program of Vaudeville.

In addition to the play the children have arranged a unique miscellaneous program of the vaudeville type, including tableaux, vocal and instrumental music and recitations, for all of which the company is rich in capacity. The admission charge will be 5 and 10 cents.

The Vortex Club, composed of more than 100 business men, is applying proved methods to the arrangement of a river excursion for the benefit of the milk and ice fund on the evening of Aug. 3. Each of the main details is in the hands of a carefully chosen committee, the members of which are imbued with the spirit and purpose to enhance the reputation of the organization for setting standards high. The outing is to be on the steamer Belle of the Bends.

DISCIPLINE OF THE NAVY IS EXCELLENT TRAINING FOR MEN

velops. Democratic discipline is harder to achieve, but its ultimate results is to make self-respecting individuals. A man understands w hyhe must obey, and obeying, rises. By doing one job to the best of his ability, he gets a better job—whereas the shirker buries his talent in the ground.

France, I am told, has achieved a democratic army. The captain of a company is the best man in the company, or he does not remain a captain. He is also the father of a family. When he speaks to them, he used the familiar "thou," and they take their problems and troubles to him. Is discipline relaxed? The achievements of the French army are a sufficient answer. Here is the democratic principle of voluntary, enlightened submission which, by the way, is the very core of the new American system of education as set forth by John Dewey. And such is the practice of the American Navy. I have no doubt it holds good for an army also. In the navy a good officer is the father of his division, he studies his young men, seeks out the individual qualities in each and develops them. For the secret of democracy is the secret of scientifice organization—of putting every man into his proper job. Then, and only then, he ceases to be an idler and a waster. And this is true religion.

And the Captain, as he stands on the bridge looking down over the busy forecastle, his eye upon all—if he is a good Captain. If he is not a good Captain somebody sees to it that he does not get his promotion. What might be called service-public-opinion sees to it—his fellow officers. There have been, indeed, cases of injustice in the navy—but gradually conditions are improving; year by year fewer injustices are done, and those who have suffered them do not complain. The Captain with whom I sailed had an orderly, a boy but recently enlisted, and one evening, as he entered the cabin to make a report he coughed. The Captain looked at him sharply. "Have you been to sick call with that cough?" he asked. "No, sir," said the orderly. "Then don't fail to go tomorrow," the Captain admonished him—and he went.

New Type of Seamen From Inland States Improving Navy.

That same Captain, when a division officer, called upon a bosum's mate to drill the division in setting-up exercises, at the time those exercises were inaugurated in the service. But the bosum's mate was of the old-fashioned sort of bluejacket, secretly regarded the exercises as antics, and said he didn't know how. "Very well," said the officer, "is there any man here who knows?" A second-class seaman stepped forward and began the drill. Three days was all the bosum's mate could bear; at the end of that time he took charge himself—he wouldn't have a second-class seaman drilling him. I cite this as an instance of applied phychology and sound democracy.

Among the best seamen we get in our navy—and, thanks to the material as well as the system, they are the best in the world—are those who come from the inland states. They are a new kind of tar, and in initiative, in discipline and intelligence a vast improvement over the swaggering, tobacco-chewing yet lovable bluejacket of tradition. He is becoming as rare as the buffalo, and tobacco chewing is almost a lost art. We have reason to be proud of our new personnel; we shall have more reason to be proud of them when they show their grit and their intelligence in action with the enemy.

WORKERS' COUNCIL IS THE REAL POWER IN RUSSIA NOW

months ago" speech. Their power is not generally political and they occupy themselves with army matters.

The Petrograd Council of Soldiers' and Workmen's Deputies was hard to define for a long time. It remained plastic to new ideas, new influences, also new members, until it attained a membership of 2800. Then it began to cut down into committees, with an Executive Committee at its head. The Executive Committee was itself unwieldy and divided into bureaus to get work done, but continued to act as a whole in important matters. It decided as a body, for example, to change its own mind and join the provisional government almost immediately after it had decided not to.

Real Power in Russia.

There are all grades of radicals represented in the council and in its Executive Committee as well. It became apparent very early that they were the real power in Russia. For the first few days following the revolution it was not at all sure even the country wanted democracy, but the revolution then began fermenting. Since then it has been more and more apparent that the Slav temperament, which is the directing influence, will not be content with anything short of basic social revolution. The leaders were willing to await the end of the war for gradual expansion of social equality, but the people have been more radical than any organized expression, so the Council of Soldiers' and Workmen's Deputies, being plastic and responsive to popular will, has become its expression.

Changes Come Quickly.

Theirs was an untried power until the outcry against annexation and indemnities in the war began the first attack on the Provisional Government. Up to that time the Provisional Government itself quick and ready, had changed repeatedly to meet the will of the people, but they felt they could not yield on a point that affected the interests of their allies in the war. The whole Council of Soldiers' and Workmen's Deputies thrashed out the matter and decided to support the Government. Thereby it became apparent that if they had no so decided there would have been a serious split, with the possibility of civil war. From that time it was recognized generally that they were the power.

For two weeks the Government held the responsibility and the council the power, so that Russia was literally falling to pieces for lack of cohesion, with fermenting going on all the time. So they found it necessary to accept the responsibility of forming a Coalition Government. The new members of the Provisional Government coming from the Council of Soldiers' and Workmen's Deputies are Socialists. They represent the majority in the council, who are moderate Socialists, or Minshiviki (less demandful). Opposed to them are the Bulshiviki (more demandful), who live up to their name.

The Moderate Group.

The Minshiviki are the Charles Edward Russells, the Morris Hillquits, the Ernest Pooles, the Meyer Londons of Russia. And just as each one of these Socialists represents a somewhat different angle of Socialism, based on personality, the Minshiviki is composed of a large group of men with varying shades of opinion, but much alike in spirit. Allan Benson would also be a Minshiviki in Russia, simply because he would be waiting to take a practical route. Theirs is the type of mentality injected into the Provisional Government by the coalition. They are working with the men whose mental types can be roughly expressed by naming Franklin K. Lane, Gifford Pinchot, Senator La Follette, Senator Cummins, Gov. Whitman and Louis Brandeis in one breath.

The Bulshiviki are the I. W. W. They include the most radical, from those who are simply very radical in spirit, the Upton Sinclairs, to the Bill Haywoods—further yet, to the convinced anarchists. Before the revolution I used to wonder where one could find the typical Russian revolutionist, the kind that turns up in New York. I never saw him until the day of the revolution. Now he is everywhere, particularly in the Tauride Palace. The idealists, the fanatics, the long-haired, sallow men, the short-haired, enthusiastic women—they are all Bulshiviki. They run true to type here, just as they do in New York.

The anarchists half belong to the Bulshiviki, but hold themselves apart. They have tried to carry out anarchy by seizing temporarily unoccupied palaces, but this was mostly swank and has had a certain comic aspect which has made

Instant Hair Stain Better Than Slow "Restorers"

Some folks would have you believe that they have discovered some marvelous combination that will "restore" the color to gray, streaked or faded hair, without staining it. No such preparation has ever been discovered.

There is only one preparation so far as we know that is entirely free from sulphur, lead, silver, mercury, zinc, aniline, coal tar products or their derivatives. That preparation is called "Brownatone." It is so easy and safe to apply that the wonder is that anyone ever uses anything else.

"Brownatone" instantly tints the hair to any shade of brown (or black) that may be desired. If the gray shows on your temples or is streaking your hair—if the ends of your hair are lighter than the balance, or if for any reason you wish to stain all or part of your hair—use "Brownatone."

A sample and a booklet will be sent you (from manufacturers only) upon receipt of 10c. Mention shade desired.

All of the leading drug stores sell "Brownatone." Two sizes, 25c and $1.00. Insist on "Brownatone" at your hairdresser's.

Refuse to Give Up Arms.

Red Guard—A suggestive term likely to be in the news. It refers to the armed workmen who refuse to give up their arms, maintaining it is the right of every free citizen to arm himself singly or by organization. They are openly armed "for the war against the bourgeois." It is under the sway of the most anarchistic teachers and is not to be laughed aside. It began in a small group of 87 workmen who banded themselves together when the revolution began and decided to seize and hold all possible arms.

They engaged in the dangerous work of driving out the police who, paid to remain hidden and shoot on the crowds, shot from roofs with machine guns and, when chased, took refuge and gave battle in dark attics. Several of the small band were killed routing them out, but they made a good haul of machine guns as well as rifles. Among other things, they boast of having hidden an armored auto truck—apparently against the day of reckoning with the bourgeois. They say they do not intend to shoot up the bourgeois, but to exercise moral force and the force of machine guns on them. Their number in Petrograd is believed to be 4000. They are not exactly a secret organization, as they have held meetings in the city hall, but they refuse all coaxings to give up their arms.

The bourgeois as a term is used in Russia just as it is used by radicals everywhere. The looseness of the term, the insult heaped upon the harmless citizen so pointed out and scorned, here as elsewhere, hurts the cause of Socialism. The Russian bourgeois are a particularly amiable lot and want to see the revolution bring about as complete a leveling of human rights as possible. They were responsible for at least half the success of the revolution, but with that fanaticism with which forward movements seem to be fated, they are looked upon as enemies to Socialism. In fact, they are much less "bourgeois" that our own bourgeois.

For 50 years the best bourgeois families in Russia have been losing sons and daughters exiled for their revolutionary actions.

All the leadership of the revolution was bourgeois. The people who cultivated the spirit of revolution, the Intelligencia, all are bourgeois. But as used, the word has come to mean that part of the population which is not actively bestirring itself to bring about complete Socialism. The Socialists are losing a lot of possible support by the defiant use of that loose term, bourgeois.

Canadian to Describe French Life in Address at Church.

Harold R. Peat, formerly of the Canadian infantry, who was with the first Canadian troops to be sent to the trenches and was a member of the brigade which made the stand at Ypres where more than 10,000 of his countrymen were killed with gas by the Germans, will speak at the First Presbyterian Church, Washington avenue and Sarah street, Sunday night at 8 o'clock.

Peat gives a vivid description of the life in the trenches and of his own experiences in battle, and retains a sense of humor in spite of the fact that his right shoulder and right lung were shattered, and he lay 56 hours on the battlefield before the Red Cross rescued him.

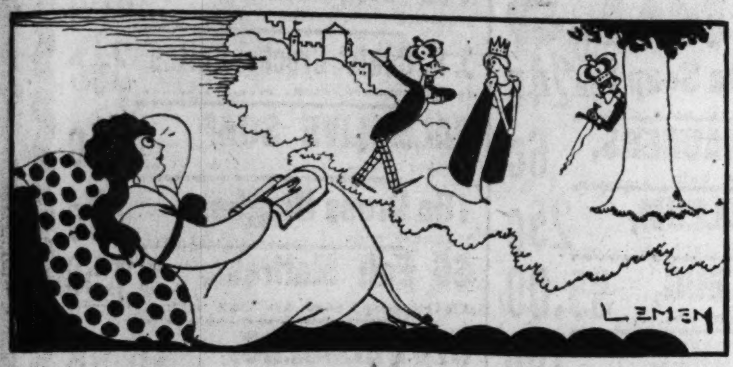
ARABELLA'S WORRY.



MISS ARABELLA SIMPKINS BROWN is fond of summer fiction,
And safely we may set it down to be her pet addiction.
She loves a lurid, swift romance, through tangled maze progressing
With many turns of Fate and chance to keep the reader guessing.
But now, alas, we hear her sigh in doleful contemplation
Of what may happen by and by to every warring nation
When democratic rule's the style, a thought at which she winces
And one may travel many a mile and meet no charming princes,
No Phillips Oppenheimish plots with gallant Dukes a-fighting
Through pages all tied up in knots, enthralling and exciting.
World-wide democracy is great for thwarting royal schemers,
But it will surely seal the fate of summer fiction dreamers.
Princes, princesses and all, the heroines and heroes,
When Freedom sounds her bugle call, will be a bunch of zeros.
Each man will be a Mister then, each dame a Miss or Mrs.;
No more the smooth and facile pen will deal with royal kisses,
And it will be a prosy world for those whose pet addiction
Is lying with their hair uncurled and reading summer fiction.

U. S. N.

AN S O S in a strange, far sea
Where the Irish coast is gray.
Up anchors all, my jolly tars,
There's work to do today.
There's murder doing on the main,
The pirate Hun's amuck,
And laughs with fiendish glee to see
The wreckage in his ruck.
Break out the flag; full speed ahead,
And man the lookout nest!
Be ready with the davits there!
We lay our course due west.
The sky is strange and the coast is strange,
But not a whit care we.
When S O S cracks out to tell
Of murder on the sea.
No saving hand the Hun puts forth
For strugglers in his wake
And never tear-drop dims his eye
For simple pity's sake.
His ruthless hand is made to slay,
Of stone his heart is made.
His only trade it is to kill
And make the world afraid.
So that is why we steam ahead,
My mates and hearties all,
For we have not forgot the God
That marks the sparrow's fall.
An S O S in a strange, far sea
Where the Irish coast is gray;
And west a hundred miles we steam
Because it is our way.
We thank the God above us all
That we can still be men;
Now stand by all, my jolly tars;
Three cheers for the U. S. N.

DEMOCRACY WINS.

"HELLO, Jinks."

"Morning, Binks. What's new?"

"Didn't you hear about it?"

"What?"

"There are not going to be any 'Ighnesses in England any more."

"How's that?"

"That's a good beginning."

"Yes, democracy is gaining ground."

"Sure. My brother rechristened his dog."

"What was his name?"

"King."

"And what does he call him now?"

"Kate."

"That's a funny name for a dog that was named King."

"O, he just calls him Kate for short."

"What's the dog's full name, then?"

"Abdicate."

"O, that's different."

"How's your garden?"

"Beans didn't do well but Gus is fine."

"What do you mean, Gus?"

"I call it that for short, like your brother calls his dog."

"What's it's full name?"

"Asparagus."

"Maybe you don't believe my brother's got a dog."

"Hasn't he?"

"No."

"That's all right. I haven't got any asparagus either."

"Who started this argument anyway?"

"Your brother."

"How's that?"

"He had no business rechristening his dog when he didn't have any dog."

ECONOMY HINTS.

SAVE your evaporated milk cans The company which made the milk paid a 610 per cent dividend last year. If it could make so much out of the milk you should be able to make something out of the cans. It will be your only chance to get even. The tin may come in handy when your roof needs repairing. Don't forget the overhead expense.

Never peel a squash. The proper way is to squash it. When a squash is squashed the peel becomes as squashy as the squash inside the peel. The peel, when properly squashed is no longer a peel, but part of the squash. This should appeal to all squash fanciers.

Do not try to string a bean. It can't be done. The bean is wiser than you think and it will defy all your efforts to string it. You may think you have it properly strung, but you will find that you have only been stringing yourself. The bean strings wasted every year in an effort to string beans would feed an army of string bean string eaters if you could induce an army to eat string bean strings, and if you could it would be a high-strung army.

Most persons play their phonograph records horizontally. This produces a more or less pleasant concord of sounds but it is conducive to wear on the surface of the record. Try playing your records vertically, like a circular saw. The pressure will then be on the edge, instead of the flat surface. This will greatly increase the life of the records and result in a 100 per cent saving of needles, because there is no music on the edge of the record and consequently needles are needless.

NOW KUM CHANG.

OLD CHANG HSUN is hot stuff
now
For make all Chinese do kow

Has got private army which eats

And is going to rule country for beat the band.

Li Yuan Hung is very much 'fraid
When old Chang Hsun is make one

And Yuan Shi Jui has goosey flesh
For fear new boss will think he's fresh.

Private army is very nice thing
For scaring President or King,
So old Chang Hsun is holding trump
Which keeps all Chinese on the jump. CHINA BOY POET.

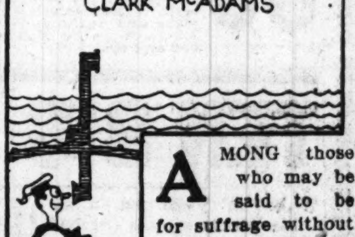
A LOOK AROUND

BY CLARK McADAMS



AMONG those who may be said to be for suffrage without being enthusiastic about it, we must still protest against the attempt in England to make the career of Miss Rankin appear to be an index to what women would do in responsible political place. Would men want to be so judged if they had but a single representative in Congress? Certainly not. Men want to be judged in bulk, and women have a right to ask to be judged the same way. Miss Rankin hasn't quite taken the place of a man, but the country is full of women who would have been more useful in the Senate these last few months than Reed and Stone. Or let us say, for the sake of exposing this latest ruse of the anti-suffragists in England in its entire unfairness, that La Follette alone represented the men in Congress as Miss Rankin represents the women. Would men want to be judged by the career of La Follette? I guess not. Come, boys! We shall have to be squarer with the women than that.

Is the Kaiser Slipping?

I AM told by one who goes a good deal into a nearby county where Germans are thicker than fiddlers, and where the feeling against the allies before this country entered the war was intense, that the Germans are off Germany now and declare her to be, as one of them expressed it, "a dom fool." They don't care what becomes of her from this time on, and whereas they were formerly always ready for an argument on her side, the mention of her name now provokes them to expressions of disgust. Germany has not been kind to those people. Blood is, indeed, thicker than water; but there are some things even thicker than blood. An old German who has been whooping it up for the Germans through all their barbarities needed for his defense of those things as badly as Germany needed for her own justification that she should win. Instead of making everything right in that way, she only moved to fresh blunders; until now, if there were anything to say for her, which is improbable, the Government wouldn't let one say it. That is a horrible hole into which to put one's supporters, and Germany is being thoroughly damned for it.

What Underfeeding Means.

AN observer who is familiar with the St. Louis foreign quarters says they are now showing plainly the effects of underfeeding. Children especially show it. There are very thin children in the Italian and Jewish quarters, and their thinness becomes more noticeable day by day. People cannot pay the prices asked for food. They make out as they can, and this particular observer says that unless they get relief by fall the shadow of starvation is going to fall over St. Louis next winter. Yet Senator Reed, who is supposed to be representing Missouri in the United States Senate, does what he can to keep the Government from assuming control of food. If he chased the bread wagon out of the poorer districts of St. Louis he could not any more effectually deprive the people of sustenance than he has been doing it by obstructing the food bill. The foreign quarters are not alone feeling the pinch. We are beginning to sit three in a street car seat in the West End. How would it do to put Senator Reed on bread and water until he himself howls for a food controller?

A Migratory Fish Law.

IT is said that what has been done with migratory birds is also to be attempted with migratory fish. The Government is to be asked to claim ownership of them and conserve them as a food supply. It is claimed, and it is a fact, that many kinds of fish that could be saved by the Government are disappearing. They are taken in and out of the spawning season. Bass heavy with spawn are sold in our own market. The states are powerless to stop it. Influences overpowering every conservation sentiment sit in the saddle. The argument that fish and game are a food supply appeals strongly to Congress. It is the strength of the enabling act now before that body to make effective the bird treaty with Canada. Opposition to it is fast crumbling, as it should crumble. Eighteen states have made their open seasons for shooting waterfowl conform to the Federal seasons. They are Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, Michigan, North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming, Tennessee, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Arizona, California, Nevada and Utah. Six others have confined the open season on waterfowl to three and one-half months or less, and do not permit shooting earlier than Sept. 16 or later than Jan. 15. The same work is going on in Canada, where with market shooting and an industry which robbed the very breeding grounds of the birds for eggs, the need for action was even greater than it has been with us.

Ice-Mint Brings Joy To Tired, Aching Feet

If warm days and modern foot-wear have given you aching, burning, swollen feet, corns, or painful callouses, here is real foot-comfort for you at last.

From the cooling, dewy mint-beds of old Japan come the fresh, soothing ingredients that in just a few weeks have made Ice-Mint the most popular foot remedy in America.

Rub a little Ice-Mint on any tender corn or callous. Instantly the soreness disappears, and shortly the corn or callous will loosen so that it can be lifted out easily with the fingers.

is a clean creamy, snow-white, non-poisonous substance and does not inflame or even irritate the most tender skin. There is no pain and not one bit of soreness while applying Ice-Mint, or afterwards. It acts so gently, so magically, that you will never again run the risk of blood poisoning by cutting a corn. Hard corns, soft corns, corns between the toes also toughened callouses, soon loosen and come off under the remarkable influence of Ice-Mint.

No matter what you have tried or how many times you have been disappointed, you will revel in the cooling, soothing comfort that Ice-Mint brings.

Try it! Ask your druggist today for a small jar of Ice-Mint and learn for yourself what solid foot-comfort really is. You'll like it immensely.—ADVERTISEMENT.

PATRIOTISM, NOT NOISE, IS TO MARK FOURTH THIS YEAR

WOMEN IN FOREFRONT

Russians in St. Louis to Observe Their Hour of Freedom Coincidentally With Ours.

The Fourth of July will be observed in St. Louis this year with patriotic demonstrations, in which fireworks will not play their usual part. In view of the need for gunpowder in the war, sentiment here and in other cities is against wasting powder in juvenile noise-making.

The Nation's Birthday Association, which last year gave a parade and a night exhibition of fireworks in Forest Park, is planning a loyalty mass meeting at the new open-air municipal theater. The Americanization Committee of the Chamber of Commerce had planned a demonstration for that time and place, but consented to give way to the Nation's Birthday Association.

Day of Real Patriotism.

Mrs. Benjamin F. Bush, Missouri chairman of the women's committee, Council of National Defense, has sent letters to the mayors of all Missouri towns and cities, asking that they co-operate in making July 4 a day for the diplay of real patriotism, and not for picnics and fireworks.

Each mayor is asked to include in the Independence Day program a speech to the women of the community, acquainting them with the need for their services in the war, showing them how they can help, and emphasizing the need for a complete registration for service of all the 1,800,000 women in the State.

This registration will be conducted simultaneously throughout the State, on a date to be announced, and will be for the purpose of organizing the women of Missouri in the work of winning the war.

The letters went out Friday. With them went literature regarding the purpose of the Women's Committee of the National Defence Council as well as patriotic song books, and extracts from the President's recent speeches outlining the objects and purposes of thi country's part in the war.

A notable observance, in which the new-found freedom of the Russian people and the independence of America will be celebrated, has been announced for July 4 by the Russian Orthodox Church at 1125 Hickory street.

Celebration by Russians.

Circulars in Russian and English, announcing the celebration, contain these paragraphs:

"This celebration is given for bringing together all Russian peoples to unite our brotherly slavic nationalities.

"We stand to honor Free America and its Star-Spangled Banner O'er the Land of the Free and to praise and honor the liberty of Russian people.

"We invite all organizations and lodges to join us on this big Russian day, and together we will shout 'May Long Live the Freedom of America and Slavia.'"

The all-day celebration will open with religious services in the church at 9 o'clock, conducted by Archbishop Evdokim of New York.

At noon there will be the ceremonial of the blessing of the Russian national flag of the parish. At 1 o'clock a parade will move from the church to Servian Hall, 722 Barry street. In the line will be Slavic societies and organizations, with flags and banners. At 2 o'clock there will be a national mass meeting at Servian Hall, with a concert. From 6 p. m. to midnight there will be amusements and refreshments.

CASE OF MAN ACCUSED OF WRECKING TRAIN DISMISSED

Trial of Charles Craig of Edwardsville Ends When State Witness Refuses to Testify.

Charles Craig was on trial for murder in the Circuit Court at Edwardsville Friday, the specific charge being that he caused the McKinley line wreck Oct. 26 last, in which Samuel Kanter of New York was burned to death.

Curtis Force, who was expected to testify that he was with Craig when the spikes were pulled from the track, refused to testify, saying he might incriminate himself. The State thereupon dismissed the charge.

Force's wife then went before a justice and swore out a warrant, charging Alexander St. John, a private detective who worked up the case, with subordination of perjury.

St. John was arrested as he left the courtroom. State's Attorney Streuber, as soon as he learned of the charge, telephoned to the justice court ordering the action against St. John dismissed.

Force was taken back to jail, the prosecutor declaring that he and Craig will be prosecuted on a charge of malicious mischief, on which a five years' penitentiary sentence is possible. These developments in the case occurred within 14 minutes.

One Thousand Positions for Workers

Are listed in the big REAL ESTATE AND WANT DIRECTORY today—five hundred more than are printed in the two other St. Louis Sunday newspapers combined.

Wins American History Medal.

The American history medal will be presented by Grand Knight John J. O'Brien of the Marquette Council, Knights of Columbus, to Harry Uelhoff of the Holy Trinity School, Fourteenth street and Mallinckrodt avenue, at the parish hall this evening. The medal is presented to the person in the parish school of the priest who is the chaplain of the council at the time for excellence in American history.

ASSISTANT TO FATHER AS CHURCH PASTOR

The Rev. Harold Nash Geistweit to Begin Work at the Third Baptist Today.

The Rev. Harold Nash Geistweit, 22 years old, will begin today his work as assistant pastor of the Third Baptist Church, Grand avenue and Washington boulevard, of which his father, the Rev. Dr. William H. Geistweit, is pastor.

The unusual relationship of father and son, as pastor and assistant, also existed in Dr. Geistweit's former pastorate at San Diego, Cal., where, for a year before his departure, the young minister worked under his direction.

Young Mr. Geistweit will sing gospel songs at this morning's service at the Third Baptist, as his introduction to the congregation. He has had special training in vocal work. He will not be a member of the choir, but will sing special songs as a direct supplement to his father's preaching. He will later preach in the vacation season, and at times when the pastor may be absent.

The young minister served as supply preacher in several California churches while he was studying theology at Redlands. He began his theological studies at the age of 18.

UTTERANCE ATTRIBUTED TO BERNSTORFF ROUSES GERMANS

Reported He Said Germany Purposely Passed Opportunity to Make Favorable Nation Treaty With Brazil.

AMSTERDAM, June 23.—Unless a Government statement is previously forthcoming, says the Berlin correspondent of the Weiser Zeitung, an explanation will be requested in the Reichstag of an utterance attributed to Count von Bernstorff that Germany purposely refrained from taking steps to obtain a most favored nation treaty with Brazil out of consideration of the United States. A former Ambassador to America is credited with saying that Germany wanted to avoid detrimental interference with the commercial relations between North and South America.

The story has caused lively astonishment in German commercial and industrial circles, seeing that North American goods enjoy a preferential treatment from Brazil which is denied to German imports. The Dusseldorf Chamber of Commerce, in co-operation with other chambers, has decided to bring the matter before the foreign and home departments.

Bill Anderson's Negro Valet Dies.

NEW FLORENCE, Mo., June 23.—Charley Baker, a negro, the valet of the former guerilla, Bill Anderson, has just died at his home near Mineola Springs. He was kidnaped by Bill Anderson when the Civil War desperado swept through this part of the State.

PRINCE VON BUELOW HOPES FOR END OF WAR THIS YEAR

Replying to Birthday Greetings, He Speaks for Peace With Compensations and Indemnity.

PARIS, June 23.—The Zurich correspondent of the Petit Parisien quotes Prince von Buelow, former German Chancellor, as saying in reply to birthday greetings from the city of Bromberg, Prussia, that he hoped this year would bring to the German people the longed-for peace, a peace with compensations for their sufferings and sacrifices and an indemnity which would permit Germany immediately to resume the position she occupied before the war. This is the first time Prince von Buelow has expressed himself on the subject of Germany's war aims.

U. S. FORESTRY HEAD IN FRANCE

Maj. Graves Will Have Aid of American Woodsmen if Needed.

PARIS, June 23.—Among the latest reinforcements to the American military mission is Maj. Harry Solon Graves, chief forester of the United States, who was commissioned a Major in the reserves when he volunteered to investigate forestry conditions in France.

Maj. Graves will consider the feasibility of bringing over a regiment of American woodsmen to aid in the conservation of French forests if such assistance should be necessary.

Diabetes Sufferers Should Not Give Up in Despair

Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy has brought health and happiness to many who thought themselves beyond aid.

Diabetes is a peculiar and baffling disease which the medical profession seems to be unable to accurately describe and definitely cure despite the many years of experimenting and research by foremost physicians throughout the world.

Diabetes is invariably the result of impaired nutrition—this results in an excess of sugar in the blood and failure of the food to nourish, hence a gradual wasting away while eating well.

Symptoms of the disease are, increased thirst, emanciation and dry skin, often with sweetish odor.

Following are a few voluntary words of praise from man who has used Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy with gratifying results. Perhaps you may be benefited in a like manner.

"I had been troubled with Diabetes for 8 years. I heard about Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy and I tried some of it and got myself in good condition and went to work again. One man said he doctored for 2 years and that one bottle of Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy did him more good than all the doctors. I am much pleased and so thankful for your life-saving remedy that I cheerfully recommend it to anyone troubled with Diabetes and I hope this will be the cause of helping many sufferers." (Signed) James Platt, Nat'l Military Home, Dayton, Ohio.

Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy is made from a formula tried and tested and used with remarkable results during the past 40 years. As the name indicates, Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy is absolutely safe and is made solely from herbs and other beneficial ingredients.

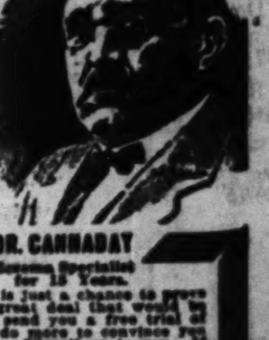
ECZEMA

Also Called Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Water Poison, Weeping Skin, Etc.



DR. CANNADAY

Eczema Specialist for 15 Years.

For fifteen years I have been treating one disease alone—ECZEMA. I have handled over one million cases. I do not pretend to know it all, but I am convinced the disease is due to an excess of acid in the blood, and closely related to rheumatism and cancer. This acid must be removed.

Eczema is called by some people Itch, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Weeping Skin, etc. I am fully convinced Eczema is a curable disease, and when I say it can be cured, I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D, and not merely patched up for a while to return worse than before. It makes no difference what other doctors have told you, or what all you have tried, all I ask is just a chance to prove to you that this vast experience has taught me a great deal that would be of help to you. If you will write me today I will send you a free trial of my mild, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will do more to convince you than I or anyone else could in a month's preaching. It's all up to you. If you suffer any more with eczema and refuse to merely write to me for free trial, just blame yourself. No matter where you live, I have treated your neighbors. Merely dropping me a postal today is likely to give you more real comfort in a week than you ever expected to enjoy again. Do it right now—your very life may be at stake.

J. E. CANNADAY, M. D., 1273 Court St., Sedalia, Mo.

Reference: 3d Nat. Bank, Sedalia, or ask your banker to find out about me. Send this notice to some poor sufferer from eczema. It will be a kind act by you.

CIVIC LEAGUE TO GET HEARING ON ZOO BILL

The Civic League yesterday requested that the Committee on Public Welfare of the Board of Aldermen grant them a hearing on the amended zoo bill when it comes up for consideration next Tuesday. The request was granted. At the brief meeting of the committee Friday certain amendments were made, but the meeting was adjourned because of the necessity for the Board of Aldermen to go into session. The amendments provided that the committee should not be increased without the consent of the Mayor and the Board of Aldermen at any time and that five official members should always remain on the board.

"The bill as amended," officials of the league say, "is still highly unsatisfactory. It places the responsibility for the choice of the members of the board in the hands of the board itself and not in those of the Mayor, who is repsonsible to the people. The provision of the bill which states that the members shall elect their own successors, even with the restriction that five of the members shall be officials, is untenable. There is no particular necessity for any change in the organization of the Zoo Board. If there is any member on the board who is objectionable from a proper standpoint, the Mayor can refuse to appoint him when his term expires. The Assistant City Counsel stated in answer to a question at the hearing Friday that the change contemplated was not made necessary by the State law of 1915, allowing the city to raise the zoo tax. Under that law the board can continue in its present manner of organization and the city at the same time receive the benefit of the fund."

The league explained in its statement that it has no quarrel with the Zoological Society, but that it cannot allow this precedent to be established.

ARGENTINA'S WHEAT AND FLOUR EMBARGO DECLARED NECESSARY

Minister of Agriculture Defines Purpose in Reply to Interpellation by Deputies.

BUENOS AIRES, June 23.—Replying to an interpellation in the Chamber of Deputies today concerning the embargo on the exportation of wheat and flour, the Minister of Agriculture said the measure was necessary to avoid a shortage, although the Government was opposed in principle to any restriction on the free exportation of the country's products. It was the Government's purpose, however, to conserve the supplies of cereals for the use of the people and to keep down the price of bread.

The Socialist Deputy, Repetto, said the decree was unconstitutional, and suggested that, instead of enforcing an embargo, the Government seize the supplies of wheat and flour.

WATTERSON GIVES COURT DESCRIPTION OF A NEWSPAPER

IN LITIGATION RECORD

Intervenes in Legal Conflict Between Heirs of Founder of Louisville Papers.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 23.—Henry Watterson has received a "pitiful reward for a long life of brilliant and arduous labor," said Alex P. Humphrey, in court here, in his capacity as attorney for Watterson, who had intervened in the litigation between Bruce and W. B. Haldeman, sons of the founder of the Courier-Journal, over the control of the Haldeman papers. Attorney Humphrey had referred to the 75 shares of stock in the Courier-Journal of the par value of $1000 each which Watterson holds.

In his petition Watterson did not refer to the reward he has received for more than a half-century of newspaper work. Instead, he gave a history of the Courier-Jornal and his association with Walter N. Haldeman, the founder, and an interesting description of a newspaper. Here it is as written in the petition that is now a court record, by the noted editor:

Distinct Newspaper Divisions.

"A newspaper is composed of two distinct parts—the one of origination and the other of administration; one of manufacture and the other of traffic; that is, the editorial department and the publication department. The editorial department produces the commodity to be put on the market and sold. The publication department prints, publishes and sells the commodity thus produced. It is indispensable that these two departments should work together in harmony, but it is equally indispensable that the editorial department should be independent of the publication department.

"The capabilities required by the one are wholly apart from the capabilities required by the other. The one is creative, the other commercial. Either is a man's work. He who fills the one has no time for the other. No single manager can fill both. The plan of placing them under the joint management of two or more has usually ended in failure.

Editorial Responsibility.

"The work of the editorial department calls for prompt action and quick decisions. The quality of the initiative is variously and constantly invoked. More or less of imagination—certainly of forecast—must dominate and inspire it to obtain the best results. The publication department has to do with the concrete affairs of print paper, printing, printers and printer's ink, of press work, advertising and circulation, embracing the multiplied incidents that enter into the successful issue of the newspaper when prepared by the editorial department. In both departments a character for reliability and disinterestedness is requisite; but the sources of the public confidence and favor, and therefore of business profit, are to be found in the editorial and news columns of the paper itself."

The injunction suit was brought by Bruce Haldeman to prevent W. B. Haldeman and Gen. Bennett Young from placing the Haldeman papers in control of a committee of three, on which he would be a minority member. He said this was contrary to an agreement of the Haldeman heirs. W. B. Haldeman and Gen. Young, in their answers, said that Bruce Haldeman had sought absolute control of the Courier-Journal and had sought to dictate to Watterson as to the editorial policy. They accused him of seeking to annoy the veteran editor.

Bruce Haldeman replied that he had never tried to interfere with Watterson's editorial control, and that the only occasion on which he ventured anything was when he suggested an editorial criticising German-Americans ought not to appear. Watterson agreed with him and it was omitted.

RESTRICTIONS ON MRS. BESANT CAUSE PROTESTS IN INDIA

Theosophical Society Leader Was Active in Agitation for Home Rule; Assailed British.

LONDON, June 23.—Telegrams from Bombay say that the restrictions placed by the Government on Mrs. Annie Besant and her colleagues, are the sequel to a violent home rule agitation which was distinguished by a vilification of everything British and western.

The restrictive measures evoked a storm of adverse comment in the native press and protest meetings were organized. The local British press welcomes the restrictions silencing the dangerous movement.

Mrs. Besant has been forbidden by the Indian Government to participate in any meetings, deliver lectures or publish her writings. She and her associates are also prohibited from residing in Madras City and ordered to remain within certain areas. Their correspondence has also been placed under censorship.

Mrs. Besant is head of the Theosophical Society and was expelled from the presidency of Bombay last year for preaching revolt in India.

Soup From Dandelions and Nettles.

PARIS, June 23.—The inhabitants of St. Quentin who were expelled by the Germans are arriving in Paris, having come through Belgium, Germany and Switzerland. Arrivals say the town was finally evacuated by civilian population, March 18, after suffering long from hunger.

NAVY WIRELESS STUDENT TELLS OF HIS LIFE ON TRAINING SHIP

Son of East St. Louis City Librarian Writes From Seized German Liner Friedrich Der Grosse.

Ralph Woodruff, son of the City Librarian of East St. Louis, who joined the navy several weeks ago to qualify as a wireless operator, has written to Quartermaster Busum, at the local recruiting station, describing life in the training school.

"We were at first quartered on the New Jersey, then moved to the interned German liner Princess Irene, and from there to the Friedrich der Grosse, where we are now," he writes.

"We get up at 5 a. m., clean our compartments, and get ready for breakfast at 7. We march to school at 8, remain until 11:30, then back for dinner. School resumes at 1 o'clock, and lasts until 4. Then we drill for an hour. Supper comes next, and the rest of our time is our own, unless we have a watch until taps, which is at 9:05. We have liberty every other night, and two 48-hour leaves a month.

"I hope to be rated and out of here by the first of next month. They want good operators, and as soon as a man qualifies 25 words a minute or more he is likely to be shipped out at any time.

"I shall never be sorry for accepting your advice to enlist. I am perfectly contented."

Woodruff is a graduate of the East St. Louis High School.

U. S. ARMY TO USE HOUNDS, BERLIN PAPER DECLARES

Animals Have Been Trained to Attack Watch Post, Correspondent Says.

STILL RIDICULE AMERICA

Military Critics Paying More Attention to U. S. War Plans, However.

By CYRIL BROWN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

STOCKHOLM, June 23.—Though unrecognizably distorted as seen through German eyes, Uncle Sam in war paint is beginning to claim space more proportionate to his importance in the German press.

Military critics, although naturally regarding American arms superciliously—almost flippantly—are, nevertheless, forced to make constant reference to the new factor in their calculations.

Thus the Tageblatt's military critic, clairvoyant, Gen. Baron von Ardennes, has a vision of a complete great allied spring offensive, whose initial force he avers, is spent. The great offensive is tending to split into numerous small actions, he asserts, and he cites as highly important the alleged utterances of French War Minister Painleve, which he regards as an admission of the offensive's failure. He declares that the French were forced to discontinue the costly offensive until the American allies could appear on the continent—a fact which, in Ardennes' estimation, must be hard for French national pride to swallow.

Let Americans Come.

The Vossische Zeitung's military medium, Capt. von Salzmann, sees the war being waged by the allies as a mathematical problem of masses, and says:

"Today England's human masses, with which we must now reckon the Americans, must be employed in the same way as the Russian masses, and they will meet the same fate. Let the Americans come—if they are able! They will in no way change the situation as it exists today. They will merely bleed to death with their arrogant friends, the English. As one more auxiliary nation of England, they are blind and deaf to suffer themselves to be hitched in front of England's war chariot.

"America, meanwhile, is forgetting its real foe yonder across the Pacific—a short-sightedness which the present generation must dearly pay for.'

Fascinating summer fiction, too, is offered to German readers about America's war preparations, notably by the Vossische.

Its "indirect" London correspondent wires as a noteworthy detail that Pershing's expeditionary force includes many bloodhounds trained to attack watch posts. This same specialist in America says it is "characteristic of America's conception of war that several women have succeeded in being taken into the flying corps" and that "one lady even has been accepted as signaller by the coast artillery.'

This kind of thing isn't calculated to make the Germans take America's war preparations over-seriously, which is the principal purpose of most of the American "news" in the skillfully manipulated German press. The result of the Liberty Loan in the same "indirect" London dispatch is ridiculed as "out of all proportion to the propaganda means employed," and though its final success is admitted, it is explained by the alleged fact that the banks offered to the public unusually favorable terms for borrowing money with which to subscribe for the war loan.

German readers are further told that German-Americans are under constant suspicion, and that the rest of the population is being incited against them. A Reuter dispatch that steel, oil and coal must be furnished at prices fixed by the Government is insinuatingly headed "War Graft in America."

Embargo Taken Seriously.

Although optimistic Germans undeniably are falling for most of this flimflam in American news, they are hard headed enough to take seriously at its full face value the reports that America is going sharply to control exports to neutrals, which items are variously headlined "America's rationing of neutrals" and "America's violation of neutrality."

This at present is undoubtedly the most serious phase to the Germans of America's entry, with the possible exception of the moral effect on France. All information coming from Germany indicates that the Germans are convinced that France is hanging on the ragged edge of collapse and is only bucked up by hope in America.

A Swiss personage, returning after a month's residence in America, is quoted in Basel dispatches to the Berlin newspapers as saying:

"In Paris, Russia doesn't count any more. America and its gold stream, its [illegible],000,000 soldiers, its 20,000 airplanes, is now the sole hope. With fabulous ease the French turn from one disappointed hope to one new and untried. They are so cock sure in expounding even the most improbable programs that one almost succumbs to their suggestions and begins to believe that America is destined to turn the wheel of fate."

LEMON JUICE IS A SKIN WHITENER AND A BEAUTIFIER

Prepare a quarter pint of beauty lotion at about the cost of a small jar of cold cream.

The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white makes a whole quarter pint of the most remarkable lemon skin bleach and beautifier at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold creams. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. It really will bleach and remove such blemishes as pimples, blackheads, freckles and tan and is the ideal skin softener, smoothener and beautifier which absorbes readily and is not sticky or greasy.

Just try it! Make up a quarter pint of this harmless lemon lotion and apply it daily to the face, neck, arms and hands. It really does soften, freshen, bleach and bring out the hidden roses and beauty of any skin.

Your druggist will sell three ounces of orchard white at little cost, and any grocer will supply the lemons.—ADV.

Pretty Curls and Waves Acquired Over Night

Here's a hair curling secret that is decidedly "worth while." At bedtime apply a little liquid silmerine with a clean toothbrush, drawing this down the hair from root to tip. In the morning when you look in your mirror you will be astonished and delighted to find your hair has dried in as beautiful curls as you've ever worn. The waviness will look so natural no one will guess it was artificially acquired.

You can obtain liquid silmerine at any drug store, and a few ounces will last a long time. It is neither sticky nor greasy, and is pleasant to use. It is doubly useful because of also serving as a beneficial dressing, keeping the hair soft, silky and lustrous. After one trial you will never go back to the barbarous curling iron.—ADV.

This Will Remove Hair or Fuzzy Growths

(Toilet Tips.)

A safe, certain method for ridding the skin of ugly, hairy growths is as follows: Mix a paste with some powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface about 2 minutes, then rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This is entirely harmless and seldom requires repeating, but to avoid disappointment it is advisable to see that you get genuine delatone.—ADV.

ENGLAND LOSING CONFIDENCE IN STATE LEADERS

Unrest Is Largely Due to Economic and Social Conditions, Correspondent Says.

WORKERS WANT BEER

Large Employer of Labor Reports He Is Unable to Enforce Discipline in Plants.

By ARTHUR S. DRAPER.

LONDON, June 23.—England, tired, dissatisfied, is still bitterly anxious to overthrow her enemy. Nevertheless, she has begun to lose confidence, not in herself, but in her leaders.

The abolition of the German titles of the members of the royal family is even more significant if viewed as a sign of unrest.

Says The Westminster Gazette:

"Loud claims of the German monarchy to rule by divine right have raised a prejudice against other monarchies, which make no such pretensions. Other soverens have raised the presumption that monarchies are going out of fashion."

The present state of affairs is largely due to economic and social conditions. Long hours of work, hot weather and high prices for poor quality beer form one combination which is breeding unrest among a large class. Profiteering in food necessities is another.

Semimartial Law Opposed.

The feeling has grown among labor, fostered by Socialist agitators, that something is fundamentally wrong with the country when, to quote a worker, "it took the bloody war to get one a decent living, though labor is just as valuable to the country in peace time as it is now." Then there is increased opposition to the semimartial law under which the country is run.

Besides the questions, confined largely to the industrial classes, the re-examination of soldiers invalided out of the army, the delay and muddling in the conscription of fathers of large middle-class families have bred discontent, no matter how necessary and justifiable. Read Bottomly, editor of John Bull, with its 2,000,000 circulation, chiefly among the working classes:

"The Asquith Government failed from weakness and ineptitude. The Lloyd George Government will have to make way for other men if it cannot defend our women and children. I warn the Prime Minister that the country is thoroughly convinced after three years of war we have a right to claim sufficient protection for our homes. The man who thinks the nation is prpared to suffer the killing and maiming of its infants and mothers while departments 'consider' and officials 'confer,' is living on the edge of revolution."

And again on beer:

"The deprivation of beer, plus the exploitation by the brewers, who are charging champagne prices for stuff not distinguishable from 'swipes,' will cause serious and calamitous trouble unless the Prime Minister has the common sense and courage to turn a deaf ear to bigots and concede to the man who works the right to food and drink that are good in quality and reasonable in price. This nation is fighting for life and sacrificing everything that its women and children may be spared. It demands that the sacrifices shall not be made in vain."

No Discipline in Plants.

On a recent trip to the north the manager of a munitions plant told me that he was no longer able to discipline the mechanics for infractions of rules and that he was forced to shut his eyes because the rest of the workers support the wrongdoer. In his opinion, the greatest causes of unrest were the beer shortage and restrictions and his judgment is worth something, for he is an employer of 250,000 people. In a Clyde shipyard the chief owner said that if peace were long delayed there must be a complete readjustment in the relations between capital and labor.

The King's action is praised on all sides, but it does not alter conditions. The movement against the King has made little headway here. There is no strong desire for a republic, mainly because the majority of the people are not interested in the rule of any sovereign except the Kaiser. But there is considerable pressure on the Government and growing criticism of many Ministers.

The situation may be described as generally cloudy, with chances favoring a storm. The fighting has become a matter of course. The victories of the Brittish armies in France no longer arouse the wild excitement so general a year ago. Peace time perspective is entirely gone.

MIDINETTES WON STRIKE WITHOUT USING BLUDGEONS

"LITTLE NOON GIRLS"

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 23.—The sewing girls of Paris have added dignity to a nickname that had become more or less familiar. They have shown that hob-nailed boots and bludgeons are not the only effective means of persuasion in a strike.

Several other strikes modeled on the dignified pattern of the midinettes have succeeded since, and others are in process of settlement. Never again, in all probability, will the condition of working women in Paris be what it was before, and what it had been during the war, with thousands of girls working 10 hours a day for from 20 to 40 cents.

The strike was called the "midinette" strike, though in the beginning it was purely a dressmakers' strike. The "midinettes" are not only sewing girls, but milliners, feather workers, embroiderers and other workers who trip out into the Rue de la Paix, Avenue de l'Opera and other streets of Paris every noon from the hundreds of houses whose business is to clothe woman elegantly and luxuriously.

"Little Noon Girls."

They are called "midinettes" because midi or noon is the hour when they are to be seen by twos, threes and even fours, arm in arm, hurrying away to creameries, lunch counters or cheap restaurants for a modest meal or, weather permitting, to the public squares and gardens to share a lunch on a park bench and feed crumbs to the sparrows. The second syllable, nette, is nothing more than a diminutive that fits them quite well. The combination "midinette," might be translated "little noon girl."

The buildings from which these noon girls come are the centers of fashion for the world. In these buildings are created each season the styles that are worn in New York and London—even Berlin. They are generally vast and always sumptuous with majestic liveried porters at the doors and smartly dressed footmen inside.

Elegantly dressed saleswomen receive customers in show rooms that resemble fashionable salons, with deep soft carpets, antique furniture, princely tapestries and rare objects of art. Everything in these rooms and in the fitting rooms suggest high prices, yet on the other side of the partitions that divide the show and fitting rooms from the workshop there were, before the strike, girls working 10 hours to earn the equivalent of 30 cents.

Paris Center of Fashion.

Although thousands of these girls were working for a bare existence in these palaces of fashion, yet to their inborn taste and skill were due the development of those houses and the reputation of Paris as the center of fashion. The proof of it is that dressmaking concerns with a Parisian reputation have tried to do elsewhere and with their help what they did in Paris with the aid of the "midinettes," and failed.

A great many American women have paid hundreds of dollars for dresses made in these establishments, but the American woman does not suspect that the "midinette" who made her rich gown for a little less than living wages has made one like it for herself at night of the same pattern and quite as perfect in cut and fit, but of less rich material bought with money saved from her lunch allowances. Few look forward to an improvement in their situation unless fortune sends a husband.

If the husband never is found she makes fun even out of that. At the fete of Saint Catherine on Nov. 25 each year "midinettes" who have reached their twenty-fifth year and pass into the category of "old maids" are feted by their comrades and sometimes by their employers. It is one of the merriest fetes of the year in Paris.

The milliners of Paris, benefiting from the success of the sewing girls' strike, gained their point in less than half the time. The "trimmers," the best paid employes in this trade, earned before the strike $16 a month in the retail trade. Hereafter, they will receive about $6 a month more.

The victims of "sweatshops" also benefit from the new schedule.

Nineteen Valuable Estates Relinquished to Government for Army Camp Near Rockford.

ROCKFORD, Ill., June 23.—Patriotism found her war footing here June 19 when, at an enthusiastic conference, 266 acres of lush farm land, comprising 19 valuable estates, were relinquished to Uncle Sam to be converted into the cantonment for the Illinois division of the new national army.

In many instances owners sacrificed their land to the country after having occupied it since childhood, turning over family homes, annually increasing incomes and plans for the future, to aid the army plan. All arrangements were made by a Chamber of Commerce committee acting as intermediary between owners and Government. Leases were drawn in each case for a nominal rental and will be signed soon.

Army officers give assurance that work on the cantonment will go forward rapidly and that the army city will be established in September. Rockford plans in co-operation with Federal authorities include establishment of a 10-mile moral zone about the cantonment.

Stop repining—cease to moan;
Hie thee to the nearest drug store—
Ask for "Tablets Arbolone."

Arbolone will stop that craving,
Make thee normal—that's well known;
Thou'lt forget that hungry feeling
After taking Arbolone.

III.

And the pounds away will dwindle—
Waist no longer like a zone;
Thou'lt be thankful to the maker
Of those Tablets Arbolone.

Note.—This little poem was written by a literary woman of Los Angeles, Calif., as a testimonial to Tablets Arbolone. It so aptly and truthfully describes the virtues of this well known anti-fat that the proprietors use it for advertising. Facts and gratitude are both expressed with admirable rhythm and metre. CONGRESS RECESS PLANNED

Action Likely After Passage of War Measures.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Plans for a recess of sessions of Congress after disposal of the food and war tax legislation are being considered by leaders.

It is proposed to recess 30 or 60 days, keeping Congress within easy and prompt call and to have committees at work meanwhile on measures to be taken up after reconvening.

GERARD TELLS OF RED CROSS MAN WHO ENDED LIFE

Shortage in Accounts, Not Loss of Passports, Caused Him to Kill Himself.

$100,000 PUT IN BANK

Ambassador Offered to Turn Sum Over to Government, but It Was Declined.

NEW YORK, June 23.—James W. Gerard, former Ambassador to Germany, made a statement here in connection with the charges against him in the Vossische Zeitung of Berlin, in continuation of its attacks upon him. The newspaper alleged that Gerard was responsible for the suicide of Ludwig Grosse by taking from him his American passport and discrediting him after having given him recommendations when he came to America to solicit funds for the German Red Cross.

Gerard explained what disposition was made of the $100,000 collected in America for German relief work, which he took back to Germany with him upon his return there after his visit to Washington a short time before he was recalled from Berlin.

Gerard said:

Short in His Accounts.

"Ludwig Grosse committed suicide because he was short in his accounts, not with the German Red Cross, but in other business he was engaged in. He also knew that the German Government had discovered that his wife had been swindling people. In spite of my forbidding her to do so, Mrs. Grosse had been collecting for the 'American Kitchen' and used Mrs. Girard's name in connection with it.

Kept Part of Receipts.

"I gave Grosse a letter of introduction and took it away later when I found that he was collecting for the German Red Cross and keeping a big percentage of the proceeds for his own pocket. Incidentally I also discovered that he had written a letter to the German Government in which he announced his intention of going to America and offered to do propaganda work. With regard to the taking away of his passport, I found that Grosse had lived in Germany over 17 years and an American passport is only good for two years. I do not regret the action I had to take in regard to Ludwig Grosse and would do the same thing again under similar circumstances to prevent innicent people from being swindled."

With regard to the $100,000, Gerard offered to hand it over before leaving Berlin for distribution, but the officials refused to take it. Finally he paid the sum into a bank to remain there until after the war.

Barge Line to St. Louis Planned.

NEW ORLEANS, La., June 23.—At a meeting here last night of representatives of local commercial exchanges, city officials and bankers, it was decided to appoint committees from each of the exchanges to co-operate with the river traffic development committees of the Board of Trade in an effort to begin immediately an organization to establish a barge line between this city and St. Louis.

STEPS ARE BEING TAKEN TO IMPEACH CHICAGO MAYOR

Judiciary Committee of City Council to Consider Proceedings Against Thompson Tomorrow.

CHICAGO, June 23.—Notice was posted this afternoon that the judiciary committee of the city council would consider impeachment proceedings against the Mayor at a meeting Monday. Anti-Thompson aldermen largely predominate in the council and in the committee. When told that many prominent citizens were urging that he resign, the Mayor declined to comment.

The differences between the Mayor and certain aldermen culminated last night when the Mayor adjourned a meeting of the city council over the protest of the council members who refused to recognize the Mayor's adjournment order, and then proceeded to withdraw their approval of the school board appointed by the Mayor.

"GOING-HOME-TO-VOTE" CUSTOM IS OVERRULED

Judge Holds Dr. Hurt Is Not Resident of Lebanon; Drys Contest Dismissed.

The custim of "going home to vote" is pronounced unlawful in a decision filed yesterday in the County Court at Belleville, by Judge A. J. Duggan of Carlinville, in the suit brought by Dr. H. W. Hurt, president of McKendreee College, and others, to contest the election held in Lebanon in April, when the city voted for saloons. The decision is that a voter cannot move from one voting district to another and retain his vote at his former place of residence.

Dr. Hurt's right to be a petitioner in the case was questioned on the ground that he had moved from Lebanon to O'Fallon township, just outside the Lebanon limits. Although the testimony was that Dr. Hurt retained Lebanon as his legal residence, voted there and did not vote in O'Fallon township, Judge Duggan's decision is that he is not a citizen of Lebanon, is not entitled to vote there and is not a qualified petitioner in the case.

"The court holds the law to be that even though the citizen may at one time have been a legal voter in a given precinct, yet if he permanently abandons his residence and acquires an abode in another precinct, intending to occupy it indefinitely as his home and to the exclusion of any other place of residence, he loses his right to vote in the first precinct, by operation of law, no matter what his desire or preference in the premises may be.

"The court holds that Dr. Hurt has abandoned his residence in the city of Lebanon and taken up his residence elsewhere and without intention of returning, and that he is not a legal voter in the city of Lebanon."

As the law requires five petitioners, and the disqualification of Dr. Hurt leaves but four, the case was dismissed. An appeal will be taken. It will act as a stay and prevent the reopening of the saloons. Mayor Eisenmeyer of Lebanon said yesterday, however, that he would issue salon licenses Monday. He has received six applications.

More Beer for English Workers.

LONDON, June 23.—According to this morning's newspapers, the Government's reduction in the anual output of beer to 10,000,000 barrels, decreed last February, proved too drastic, there being a deficient supply in the munition areas during recent hot weather, which condition has influenced the Government to allow an immediate increase of 25 per cent in the barrelage of beer.

DON'T LET SOAP SPOIL YOUR HAIR

When you wash your hair, be careful what you use. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats the most expensive soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.—ADV.

LOCAL SHIPPERS TO END WASTE IN CAR LOADING

Organization Here Takes Steps to Provide Space for Government Supplies.

The St. Louis organization on Car Service, at a meeting at Union Station yesterday, attended by representatives of all the lines serving the city, adopted the slogan: "Load your cars to the limit and 10 per cent beyond marked capacity."

It was decided for the sub-committee on intensive car-loading, headed by L. W. Mosher, to send a special appeal to shippers and receivers of freight, calling their attention to the fact that railroads are taxed to the limit of their carrying power, with greatly increased demands to be made for the movement of crops and troops and military supplies, and mentioning as a striking illustration that the handling of one troop train from El Paso to the east coast means the withdrawal from regular service of 15 to 20 locomotives.

"The only solution," the letter says, "is intensive car loading and prompt movement of loads and empties. Make one car serve the purpose of two. Double load wherever possible. It has been estimated that if maximum loading can be secured of the cars available, a shortage of 800,000 cars can be prevented. A close analysis of the loading in St. Louis and East St. Louis switching limits shows the average barely 50 per cent of the maximum capacity."

Wheat is already moving from Oklahoma, Texas and other Southwestern States and a big July movement will come out of Kansas and Missouri and other States, which will take out of the industrial gateways many thousands of cars. The committee hopes to take care of all the St. Louis industries while the crop movements are under way and believes it will succeed if shippers cooperate to the fullest degree. Iro L. Burlingame, general manager of the Terminal Association, is chairman of the organization.

"TEAR GAS" TRIED OUT BY ST. LOUIS HOSPITAL UNIT

TAKEN INTO "TRENCHES"

Third Letter by Sergt. Leland Mitchell Gives Details of Their Training.

The 141 enlisted men in St. Louis base hospital unit No. 21, now in service in France, got their first experiences in trench life and "gas attacks" while quartered at Blackpool, the "Coney Island" of England.

The details are described in a letter written from Blackpool by Sergt. Leland Mitchell, a 23-year-old Washington University medical senior, and only son of Mrs. Rose P. Mitchell, a widow, of 4545A West Papin street. Two interesting letters from Mitchell, describing the unit's voyage across the Atlantic and its arrival at Blackpool, were printed in the Post-Dispatch.

Text of His Letter.

His third letter, posted at Blackpool June 1, to his sister, Margaret, follows:

"We have swung into the military aspect of the organization and have four hours a day (or more) of intensive drill. We line up on the Aubert road, where the privates are billeted, and march down to the promenade and down the steps of the high stone embankment, which keeps the sea out at high tide, and drill on the sands, right next to the sea. The rollers sometimes break and we get our feet wet. The sand where the waves come up is packed as hard as the ground and it makes a fine parade field.

"It gets pretty cold out on the beach in the morning. There is always a breeze either to or from the Irish Sea and it is a chilly damp breeze so everybody has a cold.

"The other morning a British officer took us out to some trenches which were built by some of the soldiers and explained gas attacks to us. We also learned the methods of getting into and out of the usual kind of gas helmets. They gave us a try at an atmosphere of 'tear gas' and we all wept copiously, but it is harmless otherwise.

"Yesterday morning a Lieutenant Colonel of the Royal Army Medical Corps explained to us in detail the methods of getting patients from the trenches to the base hospitals. He also explained the way in which a base hospital is run. We will be far back of the front line, likely 70 miles, and the only danger is from air raids.

Still Light at Bedtime.

"All of the privates are supposed to be in at 9:30 in the evening. The theaters, dance halls and shops close at 10 and all lights are out at 10:30. And the deuce of it is the sun doesn't go down until 9:30 and it's still light at 11 p. m.

"One's money usually carries him from two to six times as far here as it would in America. And they say that things are even much cheaper in France.

"The people treat us royally. The Winter Garden, where most everyone hangs out in the evenings, only costs us 3½d, or 7 cents, and it is a palace. Trees in it and lanes and benches and an enormous dancing room with a big orchestra. Everything inside, except food, is free. One could earn $3000 in America and live at east for the rest of his life in England.

"The only thing that mars the joy of it all is the lack of American tobacco. I don't smoke much myself, but if you should happen to see a stray carton of cigarettes roaming about as though it were looking for some place to go—just catch it and mail it to me and earn my everlasting thanks.

"We leave here probably in a few days. Fremont Luecking and I have been given charge of the health of the enlisted men.

"Don't forget the cigarettes—and if your friends feel benevolent, they might send a few dozen packages to a poor soldier in France—the soldier being your own Willie."

Marvels at Women Workers.

William B. Rogers, in a letter to his father, J. M. Rogers of 6168 Westminster place, writes of his observations of the part the women of England are taking in industrial affairs as a result of the war.

"The women over here," Rogers writes, "do all the work—sweep the streets, run the street cars, tend bar, smoke on the street and drink at the bar.

"The bar is open for an hour in the morning and one in the afternoon, and not at all at night. There are very few lights at night and every place must close at 8:30 and all doors must be locked at 9:30.

"We see all kinds of soldiers here at the hospital. It is hard to understand an Englishman as a man that does not talk our talk at all.

"The Chicago unit 12 got here yesterday morning (June 3) and had some wonderful tales to tell us about submarines. They are the boys who came over on the Mongolia, that had the accident where the gun exploded and killed two nurses. They were on the water 15 days, while we were on the water only eight days."

Holds "Red Cross" Sale Monday.

A unique and patriotic event is announced by Sonnenfeld's apparel and millinery store. They state in advertisements appearing today that they will give 10 per cent of their total sales Monday to the Red Cross Fund, and this determination on their part will be carried out regardless of how great a total may be rolled up. Sonnenfeld's have already contributed liberally to this worthy cause and their offer of one-tenth of the store's Monday business will be in addition to their prior contribution. It is to be hoped that other business institutions will support in a similar manner the Red Cross and other worthy causes.

GIVES UP HOME FOR HOSPITAL

Americans Will Equip London Residence for Care of U. S. Army Officers.

LONDON, June 23.—Mr. and Mrs. William Salomon of New York have turned over to the American Red Cross their residence in Regents Park, this city, to be used as an orthopoedic hospital for American army officers. Salomon will equip the hospital in every detail. Mrs. Whitelaw Reid has been appointed head of the committee that will have charge.

Within a few weeks 1000 American surgeons will be distributed throughout the hospitals of Great Britain to take the places left vacant, as every available English surgeon has been called into war service.

The Automobile Wants are telling where good used cars can be bought at sacrifice prices.

MEN FOR SECOND OFFICERS' CAMP NOW ENLISTING

Training Camps Association Told to Induce Men Over 31 to Enroll.

LISTS CLOSE JULY 15

Men of Previous Military Experience Needed to Train for Higher Commissions.

Instructions were received yesterday by the St. Louis branch of the Military Training Camps Association to make a special effort to obtain applications for training in the second camp at Fort Riley, from men who saw service in the Spanish-American War or who have served with the colors in the various branches of the military service of the country. Accordingly, men between the ages of 31 and 44 years, will be given first consideration, although men of less mature years will not be barred.

It was pointed out that the more mature men who are ready to serve their country at war should consider it a solemn duty to apply for training as officers rather than be content, through modesty, with a place in the ranks. Professional men and those holding responsible executive positions, and men of special military training up to 50 years old, also are wanted.

The men in the second officers' training camp will be trained to become captains, majors and lieutenant-colonels. Only a few younger men will be accepted for the grades lower than captain.

4500 Blanks Sent Out.

At the Jefferson Barracks headquarters of Capt. Barry, Training Camp Executive Officer for Missouri, it was stated that applications are being received at the rate of from 25 to 50 a day since June 15. About 4500 application blanks have been sent out to prospective applicants and about 500 have been filled out and returned. About one-third of the applicants are St. Louisans. Missouri's quota for the camp is fixed at 528, of which the St. Louis allotment is about 106.

Between Aug. 1 and 10 applicants will be notified by Capt. Barry to appear before an examining officer for the physical test. No application will be considered after July 15.

The training camp for the Missourians, which opens Aug. 27, will be held at Fort Riley, Kan., which also will include the quotas from Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas and Colorado. The obligation involves enlistment for three months only. Applicants will agree to accept, at the end of the training, such commission in the army as may be tendered by the Secretary of War. The enlistment, however, obligates one to service in the training camp only.

Commissions and Pay.

Camps at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind.; Fort Logan H. Root, Ark., and Leon Springs, Tex., will be conducted at the same time. Men from Illinois will be trained at the Leon Springs camp, with those from Texas, Arizona, New Mexico and Oklahoma.

Those who receive commissions will be paid, while in active service, at the same rate as regular United States army officers, as follows: Second lieutenant, $1700 a year; first lieutenant, $2000; captain, $2400; major, $3000; lieutenant-colonel, $4000. While in training at Fort Riley the students get $100 a month.

Ship Captain Lost With Zeppelin.

AMSTERDAM, June 23.—Capt. Eichler, formerly a commander on the Hamburg-American liners Imperator and Vaterland, perished in the destruction of the Zeppelin Z-48 over England last Sunday, acording to the Leipziger Neuste Nachrichten.

AUSTRALIA WILL LOAN MONEY TO ANY RETURNED SOLDIER

Fund of $110,000,000 Provided for Purpose Under Extensive Repatriation Plan.

SYDNEY, Australia, June 23.—Australia will loan $110,000,000 to soldiers returned from the war, under the repatriation plan announced by Senator Edward D. Millen, Minister in Charge of Repatriation.

The national Government accepts the full responsibility of securing to every returned soldier the opportunity of livelihood by providing avenues of civil employment. Soldier settlers on land may secure advances for improvements up to $2500 each. Repatriation work in connection with returned men will be undertaken upon arrival and not, as at present, upon discharge from the military forces.

The work of repatriation will be controlled by the Government, but administered by a board of trustees, of whom a minister of the crown shall be chairman. Local committees will be established for the encouragement of local soldiers. A special branch will deal with the provision of artificial limbs. Permanently maimed soldiers will be afforded every opportunity to supplement their pensions by the establishment of specially equipped workshops. Some form of "reserve" employment will be found to tide over the period between military discharge and the obtaining of the particular employment desired by individual soldiers.

VEGETABLE GARDENS COVER ONCE VACANT ST. CHARLES LOTS

Agriculture for First Time Has Recognized Place in Curriculum of Hight School.

In St. Charles, where last year there were vacant lots a plenty, the potato plant, the tomato plant, beets, lettuce and other vegetables grow, denoting thrift, economy and a willingness to help in the nation-wide movement for food conservation.

Workmen in factories hurry home to the evening meal, after which they don overalls and a work shirt and wield garden tools until sundown.

The Chamber of Commerce has established community gardens and has an instructor in gardening who has worked with the children and will continue to work with them every day until they have completed their first year's production. Some of the children are as young as 7 years old. The merit system is used in this garden and the youngsters must attend, keep their plots and tools clean and work diligently from the time they start until quitting time if they would be among the winners of the merit badge at the close of the season. The greater portion of them supply their families with vegetables.

The high school has one of the prettiest gardens in the city. This is the first time that agriculture has been given the same place in the curriculum as physics and chemistry.

A Drunkard's Plea. Tells Ho
He Was Released From the Bondage of Alcoholic Slavery

Leading Druggists Guarantee Results.

My heart bleeds for every drunkard, and I sincerely wish I could meet them face to face and tell them how I was saved from the clutches of the demon drink. If this were possible thousands could be saved from drunkards' graves. Yes, my appetite for drink was completely destroyed. Here is the prescription that saved me. One prepared tescum powder twice a day in coffee, tea or any liquid. Almost everything had been tried on me without results, so don't experiment with anything but tescum powders, then you will not be disapointed. Since the powder is colorless, odorless and tasteless, it can be given secretly. It is intended to destroy the terrible craving. The results are so startling that druggists are refunding the money if it fails. (See money refund guarantee, which druggists are authorized to give when above prescription is filled.) There is absolutely no risk on your part, so you have everything to gain and nothing to lose. Mothers and sisters are now able to cure their loved ones of this terrible habit with no expense if it fails. If druggists were not confident of success they could not afford to make such an offer. Have the prescription filled today, before you forget it.

One woman who used this prescr on her husband says: "It is going on fourth week since he has touched a of anything in the form of liquor or tobacco of any kind. He seems al like a different man. Tescum has a wonderful enthusiast in me. I re it as a Godsend. Just think, I have seen my husband sober for more than hours in years and now it is going one month since he had his last drink."

Another one gratefully writes: "I have used tescum powders on my husband and find it one of the greatest cures in world. He hasn't taken a drink for most five weeks and says he never wi My home does not seem like the place and life seems worth living. I thousands gain what I have. This been a good new year for me with drink in my home."

NOTE—A leading druggist shown the above article said: "Tescum is a very remarkable remedy for drink habit. It is harmless, wonderfu effective and is having an enormous I advise everyone who wishes to the liquor habit to give it a trial." It sold in this city by Johnson-Enderle-Pauley, Wolff-Wilson and all other class druggists.—ADVERTISEMENT.

Former United States Senator Mason, Pioneer

in Pure Food and Drugs Legislation, Father of Rural Free Delivery System

Says Nuxated Iron

Increased His Power and Endurance so Much That He Feels It ought to Be Made Known to Every Nervous, Rundown, Anaemic Man, Woman and Child.

Opinions of Dr. Howard James, late of the Manhattan State Hospital of New York and formerly Assistant Physician Brooklyn State Hospital; Dr. Schuyler C. Jaques, Visiting Surgeon of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, New York and Former Health Commissioner Wm. R. Kerr, of the City of Chicago.

What Senator Mason Says

CHICAGO, ILL.

GENTLEMEN:

I have often said I would never recommend medicine of any kind. I believe that's the doctor's place. However, after the hardest political campaign of my life, without a chance for a vacation, I had been starting to court every morning with that horrible tired feeling one cannot describe. I was advised to try Nuxated Iron. As a pioneer in the food and drug legislation, I was at first loath to try an advertised remedy, but after advising with my medical friends, I gave it a test. The results have been so beneficial in my own case, I made up my mind to let my friends know about it, and you are at liberty to publish this statement if you so desire. I am now 65 years of age and I feel that a remedy which will build up the strength and increase the power of endurance of one at my age, should be known to the world.

Yours very truly,

Wm. E. Mason

Senator Mason's statement in regard to Nuxated Iron was shown to several physicians, who were requested to give their opinions thereon.

Dr. Howard James, late of The Manhattan State Hospital of New York and formerly Assistant Physician Brooklyn State Hospital, said: "Senator Mason is to be commended on handing out this statement on Nuxated Iron for public print. There are thousands of men and women who need a strength and blood-builder, but do not know what to take. There is nothing like organic iron—Nuxated Iron—to give increased strength, snap, health and staying power. It enriches the blood, brings roses to the cheeks of women and is an unfailing source of renewed strength, endurance and power for men who burn up too rapidly their nervous energy in the strenuous strain of the great business competition of the day."

Former Health Commissioner Wm. R. Kerr of the City of Chicago says: "I have taken Nuxated Iron myself and experienced its health-giving and strength-building effect, and in the interest of public welfare I feel it my duty to make known the results of its use. I am well past my threescore years, and want to say that I believe my own great physical activity is largely due today to my personal use of Nuxated Iron. From my own experience with Nuxated Iron I feel it is such a valuable remedy that it ought to be used in every hospital and prescribed by every physician in this country."

Dr. E. Sauer, a Boston physician, who has studied abroad in great European medical institutions, said: "Senator Mason is right. As I have said a hundred times over, organic iron is the greatest of all strength-builders.

"Not long ago a man came to me who was nearly half a century old and asked me to give him a preliminary examination for life insurance. I was astonished to find him with the blood pressure of a boy of twenty and as full of health, strength and vitality as a young man; in fact, a young man he really was, notwithstanding his age. The secret, he said, was taking organic iron—Nuxated Iron had filled him with renewed life. At thirty he was in bad health; at forty-six he was careworn and nearly all in; now at fifty, after taking Nuxated Iron a miracle of vitality and his face beaming with the buoyancy of youth. Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change your food into living tissue. Without it, no matter how much or what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you any good. You don't get the strength out of it, and as a consequence you become weak, pale and sickly looking, just like a plant trying to grow in a soil deficient in iron."

Dr. Schuyler C. Jaques, Visiting Surgeon of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, New York City, said: "I have never before given out any medical information or advice for publication, as I ordinarily do not believe in it. But in the case of Nuxated Iron, I feel I would be remiss in my duty not to mention it. I have taken it myself and given it to my patients with most surprising and satisfactory results. And those who wish quickly to increase their strength, power and endurance will find it a most remarkable and wonderfully effective remedy."

NOTE—Nuxated Iron, which was used by Senator Mason with such surprising results, and which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians in such a great variety of cases, is not a patent medicine nor secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists and whose iron constituents are widely prescribed by eminent physicians both in Europe and America. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach; on the contrary, it is a most potent remedy in nearly all forms of indigestion as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The manufacturers have such great confidence in Nuxated Iron they offer to forfeit $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under sixty who lacks iron and increase their strength 100 per cent or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed in this city by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Johnson-Enderle-Pauley Drug Co., Kieffer Drug Co., and all good druggists.—ADVERTISEMENT.

From the Congressional Directory published by the United States Government—"Wm. E. Mason, Senator from Illinois, was elected to the 50th Congress in 1887, to the 51st Congress in 1891—defeated for the 52d Congress 1892—Elected Senator to the 55th Congress, 1897 to 1903."

Senator Mason's championship of Pure Food and Drug legislation, his fight for the rural free delivery system and his strong advocacy of all bills favoring labor and the rights of the masses as against trusts and combines make him a national figure at Washington and endeared him to the hearts of the workingman and the great masses of people throughout the United States. Senator Mason has the distinction of being one of the really big men of the nation. His strong endorsement of Nuxated Iron must convince any intelligent thinking reader that it must be a preparation of very great merit and one which the Senator feels is bound to be of great value to the masses of people everywhere; otherwise he could not afford to lend his name to it, especially after his strong advocacy of pure food and drugs legislation.

VAST FORTUNE OF BARON MONCHEUR WRECKED BY WAR

Wife, an American, in Switzerland When Conflict Began, Thrown Upon Charity.

DEATHS ADD TO DISTRESS

Head of Belgian Mission Now in U. S. Dependent Upon Salary in Relief Work.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—While Baron Ludovic Moncheur, head of the Belgian mission, was telling the Senate of some of the hardships suffered by his countrymen the other day, had he let personality enter into his discourse he could have unfolded a tale of experience of his own and those of his wife, who is known in St. Louis, that would have been as appealing to sympathy as those of any other Belgian.

At the beginning of the war the Baron was a man of rank and substantial fortune. He had represented his country as Foreign Minister at a number of capitals, most recently at Mexico City, Washington, and Constantinople. His family, residents of Namur, were strongly intrenched financially in lands and banks of the country. He had married successively two lovely American women. His first wife was a Miss Holman of Baltimore, who left him three daughters when she died. His second wife was Charlotte Clayton, whom he met while Powell Clayton was United States Ambassador to Mexico, during a McKinley and a Roosevelt administration.

The Claytons were residents of Arkansas, making their home at Eureka Springs while the future Baroness was growing to womanhood. They lived at the Crescent Hotel, which, under the direction of a stock company, of which Gen. Clayton was president, became a favorite resort of St. Louis society. Many visitors from that city will remember the three Clayton girls. Charlotte, on frequent visits there, distinguished herself in the sports of the day at the old Country Club, particularly in horseback riding of a rather daring character. She was exceptionally handsome and distinguished looking, carrying six feet of height with consummate grace and dignity. She attended for a while Bishop Robertson Hall, an Episcopalian school in St. Louis, now defunct. Later she finished at Ogontz School, near Philadelphia, where high scholastic honors were conferred upon her and she was voted the "prettiest girl in the class." She was big and handsome and sporting, a great chum of her brother, Powell Clayton Jr., who became an officer in the army.

Almost a Maudlin Lover.

When Baron Moncheur offered her a title and established position among the elect of the world socially, he knew she would adorn it with luster, but it was not mere practical foresight, for he was a devoted, almost a maudlin lover. Theirs was an international match through which romance has endured. They have three children, a daughter, named for her mother's younger sister, Kathleen. This sister also married into the diplomatic corps at Mexico City an Englishman, Arthur Grant-Duff, son of the late Sir Montrose Grant-Duff. The other children are Marie Theodosia and Charles, heir to the baronetcy, if Belgium titles are allowed to survive.

In the summer of 1914 Moncheur was at Constantinople and his wife was sojourning at Montana, Switzerland, for the benefit of her little son's health. Then the war broke out. In a few days Namur fell, devastated, and Moncheur was bereft all at once and entirely of fortune and position. With not enough money to pay first-class passage, not enough to buy a scrap of mourning for her father, who died in Washington during that same terrible August, the Baroness widely separated from her husband, whose duties kept him in Turkey, was thrown upon the charity of friends and more fortunate members of her family. With her children and two now superfluous maids she made her way to England to join her sister. She found the Grant-Duffs in almost as homeless a plight. They had been literally stoned out of Dresden. Retiring one night after having tried in vain to decipher messages which they suspected were important but for which the English Foreign Office had used a code strange and unfamiliar at the Dresden legation, still sympathizing with their German friends upon being drawn into a war with Russia, they did not know that England was even thinking of breaking diplomatic relations. They were rudely awakened from their sleep by glass and stones falling upon their beds. The populace had not lost a moment in informing them that war had been declared and venting pent-up spleen upon the English. Under a semblance of official protection they had been hustled out of the country in tightly sealed cars, carrying nothing but their hand luggage filled mostly with the legation papers.

The name of Grant-Duff's brother Adrian, a Lieutenant Colonel and commander of the Black Watch Regiment, was in the first list of casualites published at the beginning of the war. His mother died shortly afterward, her death hastened by grief. In a little country lodge near the manor house on an estate of Grant-Duff's sister, the Clayton sisters settled down to the simplest manner of living.

Feature a Hopeless Wreck.

The Moncheur fortunes still are a hopeless wreck; yet in comparison to the hardships suffered by their countrymen actually living in Belgium, their plight is only relatively unfortunate, it will be said. It is great only in so far as they had much to lose. The Baroness, no less sportingly than in her younger days, never has lost sight of the fact that it is only worldly acquisitions of which they are deprived. She never adapted herself to pomp and power more gracefully than she has to comparative poverty and obscurity.

Both sisters occupied themselves with war relief work. After a time, when Belgian relief was organized, the Baron was given a detail to which was attached a salary, and they became more or less independent. But they were not to be left to war troubles alone. In January of this year a cablegram announced the death from accident of Maj. Powell Clayton, their only and idolized brother, at San Antonio. His mother, who had valiantly risked the dangers of sea travel to join her daughters in England last summer, succumbed to shock, and died just four weeks after her son.

Genuine Mahogany, Walnut or Fumed Oak—10-Year Guarantee

You'll use your Gulbransen Player Piano all the rest of the Summer.

It pedals so easy that you'll enjoy playing even in the hottest weather.

Don't judge the Gulbransen Player by other makes. Don't jump to the conclusion that all Players require perspiring physical exertion—hard work—because some do.

You don't want to do without music in the Summertime, nor give up the pleasure of making the music yourself. You want an all-season Player.

And the carefully designed Gulbransen Mechanism resists Summer humidity successfully. Piano Actions and Player Actions invariably become more sluggish in Summer than in Winter, because their felt and wood parts take on moisture from the air and swell. But humidity will not injure the Gulbransen Mechanism, and under the worst climatic conditions it will remain in prime playing condition all Summer if suitably regulated.

Don't wait. See it! Hear it! PLAY it!

Nothing Else as Simple, Easy and Painless as "Gets-It," the "Dead-Sure," Peel-It-Right-Off Corn Remedy

"GETS-IT" for Corns and Calluses is one of the most remarkable discoveries of any age. It has saved millions from pain and agony. It has relieved the terrors caused by the modern tight shoe. It has made joy-walkers out of limpers. It has made the race smile.

Two drops of "Gets-It" will start you to freedom from the agony of a corn. Nothing known acts so marvelously, so painlessly. No longer need you lay aside your new shoes because you are afraid of pressure on your corn.

It Peels Your Corn Off in One Complete Piece, Painlessly

No more walking sideways, or on the edge of your shoes trying to get away from corns, with your face wincing from corn-pains shooting to your heart. Take two or three minutes' vacation, put 2 drops of magic "Gets-It" on, and put your shoe and stocking or sock back on again. There's no work to do, no fussing around to get ready, no puttering or wrapping. Blessed relief! You can walk about with ease immediately afterward—or kick—from sheer joy!

"Gets-It"

The First and Only Discovery of Its Kind in Existence

Remember this—"Gets-It" makes your corn shrivel. It does not make your corn swell up into a white, gristly button and make corn-pains still more intense and unbearable. It gets away from the bundle-toe. If you wear a "cotton ring" or plaster, it makes your corns pop-eyed and bulge upward through the hole in the corn-plaster,—it makes corns bigger, increases pressure and pain. None of that with "Gets-It." You can dance in comfort with your corns on, if you have used "Gets-It."

No More Fussing or Puttering with Corns, if You Use "Gets-It"

You can forget you have any corns at all, if you use "Gets-It." It is unnecessary to cut, jab, pick or gouge at your corns any more in a desperate effort to reduce the pain if you use "Gets-It." Cutting corns, anyway, always makes them grow faster, makes toes sore, often makes them bleed, causing probable blood-poisoning and danger to life.

You Apply It in Two Seconds

"Gets-It" is the new way of getting rid of a corn. Millions of corn-pestered people have been quick to appreciate its wonderful work—and the result is that "Gets-It" is today the biggest-selling corn-remover in the whole wide world.

No matter how tough and obstinate your corn or callus may be, you simply apply 2 or 3 drops of "Gets-It" on it. It dries at once. That's all you have to do. You can put your sock or stocking and shoe right on, and walk about as though you had no corn at all. The corn begins to loosen from the true flesh, and then you can pick it right off like a banana peel. And your corn is gone!

There's Only One Genuine Corn Peeler—"Gets-It"

Why make it miserable for yourself by using the old ways? Try "Gets-It" once, and you'll see the reason why it is today the National Corn-Remedy of America. Refuse plasters, salves and "contraptions." Do it the simple way that the common sense millions use—buy "Gets-It" and end your corn-misery without fail. You needn't take our word for it—your first trial of "Gets-It" will prove it to you. Let no one tell you there is any corn-remover as good as "Gets-It"—there isn't any. "Gets-It" does "all" the work every time.

For 25c, You Get the Easiest Corn Remedy in the World; Never Fails, Painless

Science has up to the present minute discovered nothing as good, as simple, as wonderfully efficient as "Gets-It." It is the tried and true. We have constantly at work a corps of chemists in our own research laboratories. Their work is to search out improvements in our already remarkable products, if possible. If any improvement is found, you get the benefit. So "Gets-It" is always, and always has been, the very latest perfected discovery in corn remedies—and you can get this best corn and callus remover in existence for just 25 cents.

Every Corn Touched by "Gets-It," Is a "Dead-Goner!"

Get relief at once. Take no chances of continued suffering by trying something which is alleged to be new—but use the self same remedy that the jury of millions of people have used and are still using whenever they have corns, "GETS-IT."

"Gets-It" is sold everywhere at 25c a bottle, or sent on receipt of the price by manufacturers, E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

ARTILLERY BATTLE ON THE AISNE

Violent Exchanges Continue All Day in Sector Where German Crown Prince Is Making Series of Attacks on French Line.

Assaults Are on Narrow Fronts and They Have Met With Success at but One or Two Places.

Berlin Tells of Taking Position on Front of Nearly One Mile, and to Depth of Over 500 Yards.

LONDON, June 23.—Virtually the only activity in any of the war theaters is on the Aisne front in Northern France, where the German Crown Prince is making a series of attacks on the French lines at the western end of the Chemin-des-Dames. These attacks, on narrow front, have met with success at but one or two places, notably near Froidmont farm.

The official report from British headquarters in France tonight reads:

"In the course of patrol encounters last night south of Armentieres Portuguese troops killed or captured a whole German patrol.

"There is artillery activity on both sides at a number of places along our front."

"Our troops raided the enemy's positions north of Gavrelle last night and captured several prisoners," says today's official statement on the Franco-Belgian front operations. "A number of other prisoners were taken by us in a successful local operation in the neighborhood of Warneton.

GERMANS FEELING OUT VARIOUS PARTS OF FRENCH FRONT

They Give Signs Either of Nervousness or of Preparations for Offensive.

FRENCH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, June 23.—Signs on many parts of the French front indicate that the Germans are either nervous concerning French intentions, or are preparing an offensive. A series of "feelers" has been carried out by Field Marshal von Hindenberg at various points, principally around the Laon plateau. He tried to cut a breach in the French line at Vauxaillon, where the German "shock" temporarily ousted the French from a short trench system on the slopes of "Monkey Mountain," on which it was important that both armies should possess observatories.

French counter attacks regained all the ground lost except a salient measuring a few yards, in which the German position is precarious. On this occasion the German shock troops advanced in their shirt sleeves, after a terrific bombardment in which every yard of adjacent ground was shelled. German shockers turned over the trenches they had gained to the 78th German infantry division, which failed to hold them in a defensive effort. The correspondent found the French firmly established, while the Germans on the other side of the hill were deprived of observatories, making their artillery blind.

Another lively affair occurred near Mont Carnillet where the Germans and French attacked almost simultaneously, the former with the object of recovering prominent points, and the latter with the intention of getting freer elbow room.

As it happened, a unit consisting of only 62 French grenadiers and portable machine gunners, occupied the position coveted by the Germans, and not only drove off the attacking forces, but pursued them and captured a considerable length of German trenches and in doing so killed more than 200 Germans.

On the Chemin-Des-Dames the Germans made a number of attacks yesterday, some of which resulted in desperate engagements. Near La Royere farm the ground was covered with German bodies. Germans gained possession of a short section of a front French trench.

Berlin Says Positions 500 Yards Deep Were Captured.

BERLIN, via London, June 23.—A French position southeast of Filain, on a front of nearly one mile and more than 500 yards deep, was captured yesterday by German troops, army headquarters announced today. Prisoners to the number of 300 were taken.

NEED OF RED CROSS WORK NEVER GREATER, PERSHING CABLES

PARIS, June 23.

MAJOR-GENERAL PERSHING received a cablegram today from Henry P. Davison of New York, chairman of the Red Cross War Council, with regard to the progress of the campaign in the United States to raise funds for the Red Cross. The General cabled to Davison:

"Congratulations on the splendid Red Cross campaign. Never before was there such need of Red Cross work. Americans can show their colors in no better way than by subscribing generously to the Red Cross."

U. S. OVERSEAS ARMY TO HAVE SEMI-AUTOMATIC SHOE MACHINE

Half-Soling and "Oversoling" Equipment Result of Hint From Foreign Visitors.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Information given to the army Quartermaster Department by officers who came to America with the British and French war missions has resulted in the adoption by the army of a piece of equipment which probably is possessed by no other army and which will be carried to France by American overseas expeditions.

The innovation is a semi-automatic half-soling machine. The visiting foreign officers, while commending highly the standard shoe issued to the American troops, gave startling figures as to the short life of army footwear on the stone roads and in the mud of France. In many cases, it was said, the shoes lasted only 10 days.

The automatic machine will also be used in "oversoling" shoes; that is, onto the new shoes will be tacked a heavy half sole before it is issued to the soldier.

PLEA FOR A SOLEMN FOURTH

Purpose in War Should Be Reflected, Says Washington Statement.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—A plea that Independence Day be observed this year with a solemnity reflecting the sober determination "of a democracy at war for its ideals and its existence," was made in a statement issued tonight by the Public Information Committee.

"Noise and useless illumination and unthinking celebration have no proper place in times such as these," said the statement. "Every organization should co-operate to make it such a celebration as will carry home the gravity of issues that strike to the root of the nation born 141 years ago and dedicated to freedom."

WOMEN WORK IN LUMBER PLANT

Replace Enlisted Men and Are Complete Success.

VIRGINIA, Minn., June 23.—Women at the Virginia and Rainey Lake Lumber Co.'s plant, recently employed to take the place of men enlisted, are making good, according to S. J. Cusson, general superintendent.

"The women are doing better work than the men we had in their places," said Cusson. "There is room for more women in the mills. Wages to start are $2.25 a day—and they will get more when they show more ability."

Most of the women are high school graduates, although some are married and are helping their husbands combat high living expenses by carrying lumber.

PRO-GERMAN HORSE DISCOVERED

He Pulls Flags From Automobile Radiator Caps.

An Edwardsville horse, which tears down flags from the radiator caps of automobiles is causing vexation to patriotic persons in that town.

Several flags, so placed, have been broken off and dropped in the street. Yesterday Raymond Smith, driver of an express wagon, saw his horse, which he had left unhitched, pull a flag from a radiator with his teeth, break the staff, and start toward another machine which was similarly decorated. Smith says he will change the horse's name from "Dapple" to "Slacker."

DIME CAUGHT ON WAY TO BAR

A dime was intercepted on its way to the bartender, when a teamster, passing the Red Cross headquarters at 701 Locust street yesterday afternoon, looked up at the big sign and was moved to give his bit. He got off his wagon, went in and approached a young woman worker, saying: "Here, Miss, will you accept this dime?"

As she took the contribution, the man added: "I can get me a drink of water."

GERMANIA STREET PAINTED OUT

DALLAS, Tex., June 23.—Residents of Germania street, East Dallas, armed with paint brushes and step ladders, last night made a swift trip from one end of the thoroughfare to the other and today the signs read "America street."

A few residents who objected to the change were advised to "hit the trail." The question of official ratification of the new name is up before the City Council.

RED CROSS FUND TOTAL HERE NOW IS $1,657,876.41

Mighty Effort to Raise It to $3,000,000 by Close Tomorrow to Be Made.

POPULAR SUMS SOUGHT

Patriotic Rally to Be Held by Women at Jefferson Theater Tomorrow Afternoon.

With subscriptions to the American Red Cross of $1,657,876.41 already reported by the 24 St. Louis teams, a final effort is being made to bring the St. Louis subscriptions to the $100,000,000 fund up to $3,000,000 by noon tomorrow, when the week's campaign will be closed.

At yesterday's meeting of the 24 teams at the Mercantile Club subscriptions of $192,154.41 were reported. The St. Louis subscriptions already have exceeded expectations here by more than 50 per cent.

The original plan was to raise $1,000,000, but this was changed early in the week to $1,500,000. With that amount exceeded by yesterday's subscriptions, Oscar M. Miller, who was sent to St. Louis by the national organization to help conduct the campaign, suggested that it was easily possible for $3,000,000 to be raised here. He read a telegram from Cleveland showing that $3,858,225 had been raised there in three days, and suggested, as an incentive, that St. Louis, the fourth city, should not be led by Cleveland, the sixth city.

Miller remarked that early subscriptions to the fund had been made in the belief that St. Louis would subscribe only $1,000,000, and that many persons who thought they had subscribed their quota of that amount undoubtedly would be willing to give more if they were approached a second time.

Tomorrow will be nationally designated as "Pershing Day." Miller received the following telegram yesterday from Henry P. Davison, chairman American Red Cross Committee at Washington:

> Monday is to be nationally celebrated as "Pershing Day." Twenty million dollars is still needed. Make completion of the fund the pledge of our loyalty to Pershing and our men in France.

For Popular Subscriptions Now.

While the teams are still campaigning for big subscriptions, the drive began yesterday for subscriptions from 50 cents up. The campaign has been so thoroughly organized that every person in St. Louis will be given an opportunity to subscribe. Subscription blanks will be circulated among the employes of every business house, and 4000 Boy Scouts will deliver literature to every home appealing for contributions.

It became known yesterday that one millionaire St. Louisan, to whom four committees have been sent to solicit subscriptions, had refused to make a contribution. He demanded to know in detail just how the Red Cross money was to be expended. Another committee will be sent to him to make an appeal, in the name of suffering humanity, to do his part. It was declared by those who had solicited subscriptions from him that he had been loud in his declarations of Americanism only a short time before he was asked to aid the Red Cross.

At yesterday's meeting it was shown how the spirit of giving was growing among St. Louis rich. A typical case was cited by W. A. Layman's committee. It was stated that a wealthy man, when first approached, said that he had made his contribution through his children. Later he pledged $200, and yesterday called up the committee and asked for the privilege of signing up for $5000.

Widow Gives Fifth of Income.

J. C. Van Riper reported that a widow, whose son is in the navy, had subscribed 20 per cent of her annual income of $6000, or $1200. Many negroes contributed to young women who were soliciting subscriptions at Seventh and Olive streets, and one Chinaman gave $5.

The team captained by F. O. Watts reported the largest subscriptions yesterday, $31,771, making a total of $122,066.69 for this team. Thomas H. West's team, with subscriptions of $275,663, is still in the lead in total subscriptions, and Festus J. Wade's team second, with subscriptions of $195,851. C. L. Holman's team reported yesterday that it expected to raise $400,000 through the plan to have subscriptions collected monthly on gas bills.

The meeting at the Mercantile Club tomorrow at 1 p. m. will be the last for the 24 teams. Subscriptions will continue to be solicited among employes of business firms. The Chamber of Commerce has 72 committees at work, and thousands of volunteer workers are pressing the campaign with much energy. Nearly $100,000 in cash already has been turned in to Red Cross campaign headquarters at 701 Locust street, although the campaign has been directed principally along the line of getting pledges to be paid in installments.

Many persons have asked why the Red Cross, with Governmental assistance, solicits public subscriptions to aid wounded soldiers, or why the Government, having placed the soldier where he would be wounded, did not

AMERICAN FLEET BEGINS PATROL OF BRAZILIAN WATERS

FORCE A POWERFUL ONE

Seniority of Commander Carries Authority Over Any Allied Craft There.

RIO JANEIRO, June 23.—Rear Admiral William B. Caperton, Commander in Chief of the Pacific Fleet of the United States Navy, and the members of his staff have been received with honors here. The American officers today visited the Minister of Marine under the escort of a Brazilian naval battalion. The exercises accompanying the reception included the playing of the national hymns of the two nations.

Fleet's Arrival Marks U. S. Navy's Entrance Upon Patrol Service.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The arrival in Brazilian waters of an American fleet squadron commanded by Admiral Caperton, reveals that the American navy has taken over responsibility for the patrol of that region against German raiders. Caperton's rank as an admiral and fleet commander insures his seniority and, therefore, his authority over any other allied craft that may still be engaged in patrol work there.

Caperton's squadron is supposed to include cruisers of the Pacific fleet, giving the American officer a powerful force.

One of the first agreements reached with Great Britain and France provided that the United States navy should patrol Atlantic waters from New Foundland to Brazil. It is not known whether patrol operations extend south of Brazil. Navy officials decline, for military reasons, to discuss details.

The Government found it necessary to alter existing laws in order to place Admiral Caperton or an officer of similar rank in command of the southern wing of the patrol line. It is recalled that some time ago, without giving explanation, the Navy Department obtained from Congress authority to remove the restriction which allowed only three admirals to be appointed—one for the Atlantic fleet, one for the Pacific fleet and one for the Asiatic fleet. The law was amended so that the geographical distribution of the officers of this rank was eliminated.

U. S. DESTROYER, SPEEDING TO RESCUE, FINDS SHIP TORPEDOED

BASE OF THE AMERICAN FLOTILLA IN BRITISH WATERS, June 23.—To see a merchant ship torpedoed when speeding to her rescue was the exasperating experience of an American destroyer commander here today. The war craft arrived in time to pick up all of the crew.

The destroyer was convoying a food ship when she received an "S O S" from a merchantman that was being attacked by a submarine 30 miles away. Leaving the food ship at the risk of losing her, the destroyer speeded to the assistance of the other vessel, only to be greeted when almost within hailing distance by a terrific explosion and the spectacle of a great column of water enveloping the ship, but not the slightest sign of the enemy.

WILSON DISCUSSES STEEL PRICES

Visits Federal Trade Commission Seeking Information.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—President Wilson paid a personal visit to the Federal Trade Commission today and had a half-hour conference with Chairman Harris and the other commissioners.

"I came looking for information, not to discuss anything," the President said when departing.

Chairman Harris said he could not discuss the President's visit. It is believed it has to do with the investigathe price of steel for building ships.

RECORD INCOME TAX RECEIPTS

Payments Total $337,385,777, Surpassing Expectations.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Income tax payments so far have surpassed the highest figures—$335,000,000—upon which officials based their estimates when the law was amended last September. Receipts today show a total of $337,385,777 for the fiscal year. Indications are that the total receipts for the year will reach $345,000,000.

These receipts and other increased revenues have advanced the total receipts from ordinary taxation for the fiscal year to $1,079,238,995, a new record, and more than $400,000,000 over the amount received this time last year.

POPE TELLS PRIESTS TO CONFINE SERMONS TO RELIGIOUS TOPICS

Issues Encyclical Letter Outlining General Subjects—Preachers Should Follow.

"Sermons should be exclusively religious and seek to please God and not man."

Archbishop Glennon, when the foregoing dispatch was read to him by a Post-Dispatch reporter last night, said regarding the sentence quoted, "There is nothing new or sensational about that." He said be probably would receive the full text of the encyclical within three weeks.

SUES FOR $50,000 FROM HUSBAND FOR ALLEGED BEATING

Mrs. Sarah V. Matlack of Webster Groves Says He Is Worth $500,000.

Mrs. Sarah B. Matlack of Webster Groves failed yesterday to get an injunction in the Clayton Circuit Court restraining her husband, Elwood V. Matlack, from "dissipating his money," but she filed a suit for $50,000 damages against him on account of injuries she says he inflicted by beating her on Oct. 15, 1915, the day they separated.

Judge Wurdeman denied an injunction because it was shown that the Matlacks were living under a separate maintenance agreement, by the terms of which Matlack deposited in a Clayton bank securities sufficient to produce an income of $5000 a year, of which $3500 is for Mrs. Matlack and $1400 for their son, Elwood V. Matlack Jr.

The injunction was asked in the divorce suit which Mrs. Matlack filed two weeks ago. Denial of the injunction does not affect the divorce suit, which will be tried later on its merits.

In the divorce suit Mrs. Matlack alleged that Matlack beat her and deserted her, that he was worth $500,000 and that he carried money around in a satchel and spent it on women.

Deeded Big Home to Wife.

At the injunction hearing yesterday Matlack produced the separate maintenance agreement and testified that he had deeded the 20-room residence and eight-acre place at Webster to her and that, although she claimed to be without means, she owned mining interests worth $335,000.

Matlack testified that he was a citizen at large, without a home, staying at the Terminal Hotel and living in the style he had been accustomed to, not carrying his money around in a satchel and not squandering it. He always tried, he said, to get full value for what he spent. He denied that he had been disposing of his securities or that he intended to.

Clipped Coupons in Chicago.

He was asked on cross-examination if he did not live in Chicago. He denied it, but admitted that he spent considerable time there, clipping coupons. He was asked if he was not planning to go into business with a Mrs. Hamsley. He said he knew nothing about it.

"What business is she in?" asked Attorney A. E. L. Gardner, representing Mrs. Matlack.

"I couldn't say."

"She visited you here recently?"

"I couldn't say."

"You and she came from Chicago together?"

"I couldn't say."

"Well, you know whether you did or not, don't you?"

Attorney Charles Houts, representing Matlack, objected and was sustained.

HOUSE PASSES FOOD BILL; MANUFACTURE OF BEER FORBIDDEN

ONLY FIVE AGAINST BILL; NOW GOES TO SENATE

Meeker of St. Louis Votes "No" on Measure After Wrangle on Floor—No Limitations Placed on Powers of President as to Control Over Food and Fuel.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The administration food control bill giving the President broad authority to control the distribution of food, feed and fuel for war purposes and appropriating $152,500,000 for its enforcement and administration was passed by the House late tonight after far-reaching prohibition provisions had been written into it.

The vote was 365 to 5, Representatives McLemore, Sladen and Young of Texas, Democrats, and Meeker, Missouri, and Lord, New York, Republicans, voting in the negative.

The text of the Barkley amendment follows:

> No person shall use any food, food materials or feeds in the production of alcohol or of alcoholic beverages, except for Governmental, industrial, scientific or sacramental purposes. Any person who willfully violates this section shall upon conviction thereof be punished by a fine not exceeding $5000 or by imprisonment for not more than two years, or both.

As originally adopted the amendment would have provided also against use of foodstuffs in making non-alcoholic drinks, but this feature later was stricken out. The amendment was adopted 132 to 114.

Controll of Distilled Spirits.

On the amendment authorizing the Government use of distilled spirits there was no roll call and only a few scattered nays were heard on the viva voce vote. Originally proposed by Representative Webb of North Carolina, it was accepted by Chairman Lever of the Agricultural Committee and was adopted on his motion. It says:

> The President is authorized if, in his opinion, it is necessary to conserve necessaries, to require any person having control of alcohol and distilled spirits to turn over to Government use for redistillation, such proportions of said alcohol or spirits as the President may deem necessary to meet the requirements of the Government in the manufacture of munitions and other military and hospital supplies in so far as such use or redistillation would dispense with the necessity of utilizing products and materials suitable for foods and feeds in the future manufacture of alcohol or distilled spirits, for the purposes herein enumerated.
> "Upon the failure of the person to comply with the President's requirement, the President is authorized to requisition and take possession of the alcohol and distilled spirits required to be turned over and to pay for same a just compensation to be determined by the President and if the price so determined be not satisfactory to the person entitled to receive the same, such person shall be paid the amount prescribed by the President and shall be entitled to sue the United States to recover such further sums as, added to the amount so paid, will be just compensation.

An amendment by Representative Lenroot to permit the manufacture of light wines and beer was defeated, 134 to 124.

Meeker Gets Into a Row.

There was a hot debate over the prohibition features, wets and drys accused each other of unfairness. Representative Meeker of Missouri, Republican, and Representative Kelly of Pennsylvania, Democrat, got into such a row that their friends surrounded them to prevent a physical encounter, and then had the words they exchanged stricken from the record.

When the House returned to consideration of other sections of the bill an amendment by Representative Keating of Colorado, providing that nothing in the bill shall be construed as repealing or affecting the labor exemption provisions of the Sherman anti-trust law, quickly was rejected, 45 to 162. Keating read a letter written by Herbert C. Hoover to Chairman Lever indorsing the amendment, but Lever insisted that a combination of men in time of national distress might attempt to limit the manufacture of food necessaries if such an exemption were made.

An amendment was adopted providing that all persons employed in the administration of the food law, except those serving without compensation, shall be appointed under the civil service law.

Senate Marks Time.

In the Senate virtually no progress was made on the bill during the day. The leaders were unable to hold a quorum and consented to an adjournment. Conferences continued looking to a compromise on most of the contested features, but it is unlikely that a final vote can be reached before late next week. A fight on the dry amendments adopted by the House is probable in the Senate, although there is considerable prohibition sentiment there.

The House bill probably will be substituted early next week for a similar measure already under consideration in the Senate. Leaders hope to get the measure to conference by July 1.

Few important changes were made by the House outside the prohibition section in the bill as introduced.

Senator Gallinger told the Senate today that press reports were erroneous in saying he opposed the administration bill. He said he opposed only "certain objectionable" features and denied that he was among those leading the opposition as representative of the Republican side.

BREWERIES HERE HAVE BUT SMALL GRAIN RESERVES

Official Month Ago Said Supply Would Last Only Few Weeks.

The House amendment to the food-control bill is similar in its effect to the amendment offered by Senator Cummins to the espionage bill, and adopted by the Senate, but later eliminated.

The Cummins amendment forbade the use of cereals in the manufacture of intoxicants. At the time of its first adoption, St. Louis brewers declared that if enacted into law, it would mean prohibition, so far as the breweries were concerned.

Otto F. Stifel, president of the Union Brewing Co., declared at that time that the St. Louis brewers could not make beer without using cereals. More than 10,000 employes of breweries would be directly thrown out of work by such an enactment, he said, and many others would be indirectly affected.

Another brewery official said that the breweries, if forbidden to lay in further grain, would be thrown back on their reserve stocks of grain and beer, and that these would last only a few weeks. Barley and rice are the cereals essential in beer-making, he said. The distillers, with large stocks of whisky bottled in bond, could continue in business much longer, he said.

St. Louis breweries, it is declared, make little use of corn, though it is used in large quantities by some brewers.

STAR-SPANGLED BANNER RULES

Gen. Wood Issues Official Memorandum on Anthem's Rendition.

CHARLESTON, S. C., June 23.—An official memorandum issued today by the Southeastern Department United States Army, commanded by Major-General Wood, says that the "Star-Spangled Banner" should never be played in motion picture theaters nor as a medley or for a dance. The memorandum adds that "the national anthem should be played once, without repetition," and urges for it a greater ceremonial respect among Americans.

PLEDGES RUSSIA TO HOLD PLACE IN 'LEAGUE OF HONOR'

THREE BASIC PRINCIPLES

Speaker Clark Abandons Formality and Delivers Address of Welcome to Mission.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Closing his address with a pledge that "Russia will not fail to be a worthy partner in the 'League of Honor,'" Prof. Boris A. Bakhmetieff, Ambassador from the world's youngest democracy, left no doubt among members of the House today that his country was preparing to wage relentless war against German autocracy.

Throughout his message, in which were constant references to the principles of democracy, and in which an outline of the "national program" that has gathered all elements of the Russian republic about it, the Russian was greeted by a warmth of applause that surprised him and the eight members of the mission who accompanied him.

Ambassador Bakhmetieff gave this as the outline of the national program of Russia soon to be worked out by the Constitutional Assembly:

"Constitution, civil and criminal law, administration, nationalities, religion, reorganization of finance, land problem, conditionment of labor, annihilation of all restrictive legislation, encouragement of intense and fruitful development of the country."

Three Basic Principles.

He declared that "Russia rejects any idea of separate peace," that "what Russia is aiming for is the establishment of firm and lasting peace between democratic nations," and that "the triumph of German autocracy would render such peace impossible."

The Russian mission was welcomed by the House in a remarkable manner. It was a pleasant surprise and signal for an unusual outburst when the Russian began his speech in the clearest English used by any war representative from a foreign nation with the exception of Secretary Balfour.

Speaker Clark abandoned the usual formality of merely presenting the head of the mission and made an address of welcome.

"The peculiar circumstances attending this occasion justify a few preliminary remarks," he said. "On July 4, 1776, this republic was established. At that time there was only one other in the world—Switzerland. The fathers were not certain whether this one would live until Christmas or not. Thanks to the Almighty God, 27 republics have sprung into existence since then. In a large sense we have made them, every one—not by conquering armies or by the mailed fist, but by the wholesomeness of our example. We have shown that men can govern themselves, that power from the people should come up just like the sap in spring. Of the 27, Russia is the newest. I present to you the first Ambassador from the Republic of Russia."

Several minutes' cheering greeted Ambasador Bakhmetieff when he rose to speak.

"Instead of the old forms," he said, "there are now being firmly established and deeply imbedded in the minds of the nation principles that power is reposed and springs from and only from the people. To effectuate these principles and to enact appropriate fundamental laws, that is going to be the main function of the constitutional assembly which is to be convoked as promptly as possible, is the substance of the very existence of the state.

People Support Government.

"Reposing confidence in such rule, the Russian people are rendering to the new authorities their support. The people are realizing more and more that for the very sake of freedom law must be maintained and manifestation of anarchy suppressed.

"In this respect local life has exemplified wonderful exertion of spontaneous public spirit. On many occasions following the removal of old authorities a new elected administration has naturally arisen, conscious of national interest and ofter developing amazing examples of practical statesmanship.

"The provisional Government is gaining every day in importance and power; is gaining capacity to check elements of disorder resulting either from attempts of reaction or extremism. The provisional Government has started to take most desisive measures in that respect, employing force when necessary, although always striving for peaceful solution.

"The last resolutions which have been framed by the Council of Workmen, the Congress of Peasants and other democratic organizations, render the best proof of the general understanding of the necessity of creating strong power. The coalitionary character of the new Cabinet, which includes eminent Socialist leaders and represents all the vital elements of the nation, therefore enjoying its full support is most effectively securing the unity and power of the Central Government, the lack of which was so keenly felt during the first two months after the revolution.

"Realizing the grandeur and complexity of the present events, and conscious of the danger which is threatening the very achievements of the revolution, the Russian people are gathering around the new Government, united on a national program.

"It is the program of 'national salvation,' which has united the middle classes as well as the populists, the labor elements and Socialists. Deep political wisdom has been exhibited by subordinating various class interests and differences to national welfare. In this way the Government is supported by an immense majority of the nation and outside of reactionaries only, is being opposed by comparatively small groups of extremists and internationalists.

"As to foreign policy, Russia's program has been set forth in the statement of the provisional Government of March 27 and more explicitly in the declaration of the new Government of May 18. With all emphasis, may I state that Russia rejects any idea of separate peace. I am aware that rumors were circulated in this country that a separate peace seemed probable. I am happy to affirm that such rumors are wholly without foundation in fact.

German Triumph a Menace.

"What Russia is aiming for is the establishment of a firm and lasting peace between democratic nations. The triumph of German autocracy would render such peace impossible. It would be the source of the greatest misery, and, besides that, a threatening menace of Russia's freedom.

"The provisional Government is laying all endeavor to reorganize and fortify the army for action in common with the allies.

"Gentlemen of the House, I will close my address by saying—Russia will not fail to be a worthy partner in the 'league of honor.'"

When the address was concluded the Russians gathered informally and were introduced to the members by Speaker Clark and other House officials. Representative Rankin received extra attention from the Russians when they were advised of her identity.

Members of the mission stood in a receiving line while members passed by. Everyone warmly congratulated Ambassador Bakhmestieff on his address.

"You see how we feel about it," Secretary McAdoo said as he warmly pressed Mr. Bakhmetieff's hand. "I came up especially to hear you. It was a very fine address."

Such expressions as "You touched the point," "You've hit the bull's-eye," "You're a dandy," "You're a crackerjack," "You gave us a lot of reassurance we wanted to hear," accompanied handclasps as the members filed by.

Root Makes Two Addresses in Moscow.

MOSCOW, Friday, June 22.—The American mission, headed by Elihu Root, arrived here today and within a few hours Mr. Root had delivered two addresses, the first to the Associated Committees of Moscow, and the second to the Municipal Duma, which gathered in special session to greet the Americans.

In both meetings Mr. Root was warmly received and his repeated declarations that America had faith in Russia's ability and determination to wage to the end the war of democracy against German militarism brought response from all factions represented to the effect that Russia would not lay down her arms while German autocracy survived.

A common soldier, who is President of the Moscow Soldiers' Deputies in the Municipal Duma, rose in response to Mr. Root's appeal to Russia and said the soldiers would do their duty.

"We have had a history full of sorrows, yet we have derived enough strength out of oppression to gain our liberty," he said. "How much more strength will we derive from that liberty to carry our purpose through to a successful end?"

The response evoked wild applause.

SIX AMERICANS ON RED CROSS UNIT GET FRENCH WAR CROSS

PARIS, June 23.—Six young Americans attached to the Norton-Harjes ambulance unit of the American Red Cross have received the war cross. They are Dr. Charles Briggs of Schenectady, N. Y.; C. Howard Forbes of Boston, Sydney Fairbanks of Boston, who is a nephew of the curator of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts; Arthur M. Taylor, from a Southern State; Capt. John Briggs, skipper of H. McK. Twombley's yacht, and Norman C. Lee of New York. The citation says:

"In a situation most perilous their courage and devotion did not falter for an instant."

PAN-RUSSIANS VOTE TO ELIMINATE THE DUMA

Resolution Passed by Radicals Also Declares for Dissolution of Council of Empire—Would Cut Off Credit of Bodies

PETROGRAD, June 23.—Dissolution of the Council of the Empire is declared for in a resolution passed today by the Pan-Russian Congress of Councils of Deputies of Soldiers' and Workmen, after prolonged debate. The elimination of the Duma also is demanded.

The resolution was proposed by the Minimalists. It is proposed to abolish the Duma by annuling the mandates of the deputies and cutting off the credits voted for the upkeep of that body, as well as those for the support of the Council of the Empire. The Congress on Thursday voted approval of the coalition cabinet, 543 to 126, and pledge its support of the Provisional Government.

The local Council of Soldiers' and Workmen's deputies at Voronezh has arrested Archbishop Tikhoff of Voronezh and has sent him to Petrograd. He will be placed at the disposal of the Soldiers' and Workmen's Council there.

The special commission drafting the bill dealing with the elections to the constituent assembly has limited the unmber of delegates to 800 equivalent to one for every 200,000 inhabitants. Each province will constitute an electoral division and each of the provinces will have a minimum of five deputies. Petrograd and Moscow will form special electorates.

The group of anarchists who are entrenched in the country house of Gen. Durnovo in a suburb of Viborg today informed newspaper men that they are backed by 6000 fully armed men known as "The People's Militia," and several machine gun companies. The anarchists, who were ordered yesterday by Minister of Justice Pereveizeff to evacuate the house said they also counted upon the active support of several infantry units.

It was reported tonight that the Maximalists are organizing an armed antigovernment street demonstration to be held in Petrograd tomorrow. The Maximalist organization was responsible, according to police, for the attempt on the life of Premier Stolypin in 1906. Later authorities announced that the group had been entirely broken up.

"Russian Army Knows Necessity of Crushing Militarism."

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The Russian army has proved to its own satisfaction the vital necessity of crushing German militarism, Lieutenant-General Vladimir Roop, military head of the Russian mission, said here today.

The long period of calm on the Russian front, he said, caused first by terrible weather conditions and, second, by illusions that revolution also would penetrate Germany, now is ended. Discipline has been restored, the munitions supply is once more flowing and the weather is advantageous for operations.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—For the first time in months holdings of eggs in cold storage plants are greater than at the corresponding time last year. The Agriculture Department's reports for June 15 showed that 264 storage houses had 5,239,985 cases in cold storage, compared with 5,151,421 a year ago. Butter holdings on June 15 were 17.3 per cent less than on that date last year.

PERSHING MERGES AMERICAN RELIEF BODIES IN FRANCE

GETS AFTER RED TAPE

American General Feels Necessity of a Free Hand in Operations Abroad.

PARIS, June 23.—The amalgamation of the American Clearing House, one of the chief institutions for handling the vast supplies contributed by America, with the American Red Cross, has been decided upon by Gen. Pershing. The merger has already begun and the organization of the clearing house and all its assets will be in the hands of the Red Cross by Sept. 1. The clearing house has been the intermediary between 5000 societies and contributing individuals in the United States and has handled 55,000,000 francs worth of food and clothing and 11,000,000 francs in cash. All its administration has been by American volunteers under the presidency of H. Herman Harjes and the business management of H. O. Beatty, who becomes director-general of the merged bodies.

The new organization is the American Red Cross for France and Belgium, which recently arrived with Maj. Grayson Murphy, a member of the War Council, as chief commissioner, and James H. Perkins, as assistant. The work of the Red Cross has now been divided under the following heads: Military Affairs, Engineering, Social Conditions, Civil Affairs, Transportation, Finance, Information, with experts heading each branch.

Gen. Pershing announced today that he had appointed Maj. Murphy a member of his staff.

Gen. Pershing's intention, it is explained, is to control such direction of the American Red Cross activities in France as will enable the American army and American Government to assist the armies and the people of France most promptly and effectively.

The amalgamation is but one portion of the constructive co-ordinative work which Gen. Pershing has been busying himself. As one of his first tasks he found it necessary to combine, centralize and subordinate to one authority the numerous missions of a military character. This has been going on for a full week and the French Ministry of War has been notified that all requests upon it from missions or groups of any kind must come through American headquarters. The result sought is to eliminate confusion and duplication of effort. Each mission will work under the authority of one head.

Another task the Americans are facing is the elimination here and at home of as much red tape as possible. Every day makes them feel more and more teh necessity of as free a hand as possible as they are actually on the ground and cognizant of the needs of the situation.

The appointment of Dr. Grayson Murphy on Gen. Pershing's staff disposes of an erroneous report, printed in the St. Louis Star yesterday, that Maj. Fred T. Murphy of St. Louis Base Hospital unit No. 21, now in France, was the appointee.

SECOND AMERICAN SHIP HAS FIGHT WITH SUBMARINE

ENEMY CRAFT IS STRUCK

Destruction or Serious Damage of Second U-Boat Recounted in Official Report.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, June 23.—A fight between an American freight steamship and a German submarine, which took place June 6, one day out from Genoa, Italy, and resulted in the navy gunners on the American vessel scoring at least one hit, was reported by the Captain of the steamer on his arrival here today. The Captain said the U-boat suddenly appeared at a distance of about 500 yards, and with her appearance a torpedo was launched. The torpedo's wake was clearly discernable and it was possible to so maneuver the vessel that it missed the ship by about 20 feet. Fire was immediately opened on the U-boat from a stern gun and four shots were discharged in rapid succession as the submarine submerged.

The second shot, the Captain said, struck the periscope, throwing it high into the air and the U-boat disappeared. The American vessel suffered no damage.

This is the second encounter reported within two days in which an American ship successfully defended herself against a submarine attack, a steamer arriving at an American port yesterday having reported an encounter June 4, two days out from Liverpool.

Commander of Crew Confirms Battle Story in Official Report.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Confirmation of the sinking or damaging of a German submarine by the navy gunner crew of an armed American merchantman, mentioned in yesterday's dispatches, was received today by the navy department, in a report from Chief Boatswain's Mate O. J. Gullickson, commanding the gunners.

"Apparently the submarine was either sunk or badly damaged," his report says, "as nothing further was seen of it."

The report was made public by Secretary Daniels immediately upon its receipt. After describing the unsuccessful attempt to torpedo the steamer, the report said:

"A periscope was sighted off the starboard beam and fire was immediately commenced from the forward guns at about 2000 yards range. The ship was headed toward the periscope. All shots were falling very close to the periscope. Suddenly a shot from the forward gun hit just in front of the periscope, making the submarine submerge, and a light blue smoke came up from the stern of the submarine. The periscope appeared again at a range of about 600 yards, when a shot from the after gun hit it squarely on the water line, making small bits of steel fly and causing commotion of bubbles in the water. Apparently the submarine was either sunk or badly damaged, as nothing further was seen of it."

WORK ON AVIATION CAMP AT BELLEVILLE IS RUSHED

Supplies for Building 53 Structures, Including 16 Hangars in Shiloh Valley, in Readiness for Delivery—Work to Be Done in 60 Days.

Shiloh Valley, six miles northeast of Belleville, will be a busy place today and a busier place tomorrow and about the busiest place day after tomorrow that anybody ever saw. For Shiloh Valley, consecrated to crops since pioneers discovered it, is being converted into a United States aviation camp and the process is ruthless.

Harvesters are making haste to salvage some of the crops before they are leveled. Truckloads of lumber are being hurried from Belleville for the officers' building, first needed to shelter the men whose task it is to supervise the creation in 60 days of a fully-appointed training camp where now are growing crops.

Cables have been carried from Belleville and wires are being strung on the camp site for light and power. A water main is on the way. Everything will be got in readiness today for beginning work in very earnest tomorrow morning, and after that there will be no pause, from dawn till dark, week days, Sundays and holidays, until the 53 buildings which are to compose the camp are up and the school is ready for its students to begin their training.

Ground Cleaning Tomorrow.

Tomorrow morning a trainload of laborers will be taken out from Belleville to clear the ground at one side of the 640-acre tract for the 53 buildings. Artisans will follow and Tuesday the camp builders will begin their 60-day task.

But let nobody suppose that camp building as it is to be carried on in Shiloh Valley is a spectacle. No audience is desired. None will be tolerated. Soldiers will be sent there to keep sightseers away. The camp builders have serious business on hand. Curiosity seekers will not be permitted to hinder it.

These are the buildings that must be put up in two months.

One commanding officer's residence, 25x31.

One officers' club, 40x78.

Six mess halls, 20x118.

Six cantonments or barracks, 20x336.

One power house, 35x37.

One gymnasium.

Two lattrines, 14x36.

One guard house, 20x50.

One school house, 96x200.

One aero supplies, 66x125.

One administration building, 40x80.

One "dope" house, 55x62. (Gasoline storage.)

One blacksmith shop, 26x60.

One garage, 66x201.

One post exchange, 40x62.

One Y. M. C. A. building.

They will measure just a mile, built end to end along the edge of the training field, where they will be least in the way. In the sixteen hangars will be 48 planes, three to each. They will be all kinds except hydroplanes. When cadets have finished their training at the Belleville aviation field they will be sent to Detroit for training with hydroplanes.

Room for 300 Cadets.

As soon as the buildings are finished the camp will be ready for the training of 300 cadets. The period of training will depend upon the cadet. If he is apt he will get through quickly and be sent on to other camps for other phases of training. If he is slow it will take longer. As soon as a cadet is deemed to have learned the lessons which the Belleville aviation camp has to teach he will be sent away and another will take his place, so that there will always be 300 in training.

In the camp will be 1200 to 1500 men, of whom 165 will be officers. For every machine there will be four or five mechanicians, for the machines must be kept in as perfect condition as skilled men can keep them, and damage must be repaired with the least delay.

Lieut. W. H. Carruthers of the Aviation Corps arrived in St. Louis Friday as the representative of the War Department on the work. Yesterday he went over the field with officials of the Unit Construction Co., which has the contract. C. G. Schloesch of that company sent out a call for 2000 laborers and carpenters to report for immediate employment.

Special Train for Workmen.

A special train is to be run on the Southern Railway, leaving Belleville at 6:30 every morning and bringing the workmen back in the evening.

The land is worth $185 to $200 an acre. The total valuation is $123,000. The rental is to be $7500 a year. The Government is to have the right any time within three years to buy it at the $123,000 valuation.

The amount to be spent on the buildings and equipment will be between $750,00 and $1,500,000. For the buildings 4,000,000 feet of lumber will be needed.

RED CROSS MAKING EFFORT TO RAISE THE TOTAL TO 3 MILLIONS

In answer to this question, A. L. Shapleigh, captain general of the 24 soliciting teams, yesterday said:

"The Government could do it, but it would be robbing the people of the opportunity of maintaining the divine spark within them—their love for humanity and their privilege of administering to the distressed. Another reason is that this is the one organization of the country that is ever ready at a moment's notice to respond to the appeal."

It also was pointed out by Red Cross workers that the Red Cross is international in character, and never has had any official connection with any government; and that it recognizes no nationality in fulfilling its mission of caring for the wounded and distressed.

Patriotic Rally of Women.

A patriotic rally of women will be held at the Jefferson Theater at 2:15 tomorrow afternoon, at which Private Raymond Reginald Peat, a Canadian soldier, who was shot in the chest with an explosive German bullet and severely wounded, will tell how he was saved by the Red Cross. His right lung was destroyed by the explosion and his right arm was rendered useless. He hid behind a building for 52 hours, until he was rescued by the Red Cross and saved.

Mrs. A. W. Lambert is chairman of the committee in charge of the rally, and Mrs. George A. Baker is vice chairman. Mrs. W. B. Weston, chairman of the Music Committee, has obtained the services of several well-known singers. The Jefferson Barracks Orchestra will play.

Col. Irwin, commandant at Jefferson Barracks, has detailed 20 men to assist in handling the crowd. A speaker from the Navy League will present the need of manning the navy and will seek the aid of the women in recruiting. Mrs. Frank V. Hammar, chairman of the St. Louis Branch of the American Red Cross, will speak on the work of the Red Cross; Mrs. B. F. Bush, president of the St. Louis Branch of the Women's National Defense Committee, and Mrs. George Gellhorn, chairman of the Women's Food Conservation Committee, also will speak.

The meeting is to arouse women to the urgent need of assisting the Government in every possible way. Another purpose is to aid in the recruiting for the militia, artillery, navy and aviation corps. While there will be no solicitation at the meeting, opportunity will be given to make voluntary subscriptions.

An admission fee of 25 cents will be charged and the proceeds will be given to the Red Cross. The theater and the services of everyone in connection with this meeting have been donated to the cause of the Red Cross and patriotism. Joseph Solari will be the stage director.

Cleveland's Mayor Active for Cause.

Mayor H. L. Davis of Cleveland, O., wants every Cleveland man to have a chance to help swell Cleveland's contribution to the Red Cross. The clerks of the Planters and Jefferson hotels received telegrams from him last night, urging them to tell every Clevelander who registers before Monday night to wire pledges of contributions to the Cleveland Red Cross fund, in order to show that Cleveland travelers carry their civic pride with them.

Mayor Davis is supposed to have wired similar requests to the leading hotels of many cities. His request is for a contribution of any size, payable in instalments, if desired, extending over seven months.

DRAFT NAMES TO BE DRAWN IN WASHINGTON

Numbers for Registered Men Will Be Selected and Telegraphed to Home.

EXEMPTIONS LOCAL WORK

When Individual Is Relieved One Drawn Next Will Be Called Up.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Regulations of drafting the new national army, now awaiting President Wilson's approval, contain provision for every step in the great undertaking, except the actual method, whether a jury wheel or some other device shall be used.

No official announcement has been made, and official confirmation is withheld, but it has been stated and generally is accepted here as true, that the Federal Government itself will do the drafting, probably here in Washington, so there will be no opportunity for local favoritisms.

As the regulations stand now, every registered man bears a number. The identity of the numbered men will be unknown to those in charge of the draft machinery.

As the numbers are drawn they will be telegraphed to the home districts, where the registered men will learn if they have been drafted.

Then the questions of exemptions will come up and this will go before the local boards. If a man is exempted the man bearing the number which was drawn next in order will take his place and so on.

In this way, all those available for service out of the nearly 10,000,000 who registered will be made ready for the country's call, and from them the first increment of 625,000 will be assembled. Plenty of time will be given for drafted men to arrange their personal affairs and report to the cantonment camps. It is hoped to have them all in training by Sept. 1 or very soon thereafter.

ORGANIZATION AND DUTIES OF LOCAL BOARDS

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 23.—What purports to be the rules that will govern the local exemption boards in dealing with the Federal conscription draft were made public today by the New York American. Under the act authorizing the registration the President was invested with full power to promulgate rules and regulations, with the right to modify them if necessity arose.

The method, manner and time of making the selections for service will be prescribed in regulations to be issued at a later date by the President, but in the regulations already made public it is apparent that every precaution will be taken to prevent favoritism in the matter of exemptions by the local boards.

The quotas that will be required from each local board will be fixed in the regulations, and when these have been determined notice thereof will be communicated to the Governor of each state and territory and to the commissioners of the District of Columbia, who shall superintendent the furnishing of each quota.

Local boards of three members shall be formed, with exclusive jurisdiction in their respective territories. Where the population warrants additional boards will be formed or the membership increased. In cities there will be one board for each 30,000 population.

Personnel of Local Boards.

Each local board shall consist of three members, appointed by the President, one of whom, where practicable or desirable, in the discretion of the President, shall be a licensed physician; provided, however, in his discretion, where advisable, the President may increase the membership of any local board.

The members of local boards must be citizens of the United States and must reside in the subdivision or area in which the local board of which any person is appointed a member has jurisdiction, and no person shall be appointed or act as a member of a local board who is connected with the military establishment of the United States.

In the instructions issued for the guidance of the boards is the following:

"As soon as practicable after a majority of the members of the board are notified of their appointment, the board will meet and organize as provided, unless it shall happen that by that time a majority thereof shall not have taken the prescribed oath and signified their willingness to serve. If a majority shall not have qualified, that fact, with reasons therefor, shall be reported by the members who have qualified to the Governor of the State, and the board shall not organize until further instructions from the Governor.

"As soon as the board has organized it will make telegraphic report of the organization prescribed in the regulations, and will mail to the Governor the oaths of office and the acceptance of each of the members.

"As soon as the board has met and organized it will take possession of the registration cards as provided in the regulations. The board will then proceed to examine all registration cards received as prescribed in the regulations.

"When all cards have been examined and the cards that belong in the jurisdiction of some other board have been removed from the files as prescribed and in no event later than three days after organization, the board shall proceed to number the cards and the copies thereof in red ink as prescribed.

"As soon as the red ink numbers have been assigned, the cards and the copies will be carefully compared. Make absolutely sure:

(A) That each copy bears the same red ink serial number as the card of which it is a copy.

(B) That no two or more originals or two or more copies have the same serial numbers.

(C) That there are no breaks in the series. Each copy must be verified as to its accuracy by the words: "A true copy" and the signature of one of the members of the board.

"The president may remove members of the boards in his discretion, can fill vacancies in the event of resignations and in any of these circumstances provision is made for notifying Washington immediately.

"A majority of each board shall constitute a quorum, but when two members are present and cannot agree, determination of the point at issue must await the third member.

"Where the Sheriff of a county is a member he shall be chairman of the board; if not, the board elects its chairman and a second member as clerk. The physician member shall act as medical examiner for the board, but if desired, a licensed physician may be appointed by the board on his designation by the Governor of the state even when a physician is a member of the board.

"On the completion of the organization each clerk shall notify the Governor of the state and a record of the organization shall be sent to the Provost Marshal-General.

"After each local board has done over the registration cards and placed a serial number on each four copies shall be made. One shall be kept by the local board, one posted in a conspicuous place in the office of the board, one sent to the press, with a request for publication, and the fourth, sent to the Provost Marshal-General.

"When completed these lists will show every man's number and when the final drawing is made in Washington it will be by number and not by name. When a number is drawn for service the holder of the registration card with the corresponding number in the district will be drafted. The drawn number will be telegraphed to the proper board."

This will be the manner in which the draft will be made and afterward the holder of a registration card whose number has been drawn will have to appear before the exemption board and show cause why he should not be compelled to serve.

The detection of shirkers and slackers is expected to follow the publication and posting of the lists. Every person in a district who notices the absence of the name of some person he knows should have registered is expected to report that fact to the local board.

ROCK JURY SAID TO STAND 11 TO 1 FOR ACQUITTAL

Judge Rassieur Will Convene Court This Morning to Hear Verdict.

The jury in the case of Charles Rock of 3002 Shenandoah avenue, charged with the murder of his wife, Minnie Rock, at their home on the night of July 13 last, was unable to agree last night, and was reported to stand 11 to 1 for acquittal

At 10:30, four hours and a half after the jury began consideration of the case, Judge Rassieur called the jury into the courtroom and announced that he would convene court at 9:30 this morning, and would receive the verdict then if it should be ready.

Rock is proprietor of a planing mill. Under the judge's instructions, he can be found guilty of murder in the first or the second degree, or acquitted. The lowest punishment for second-degree murder is 10 years' imprisonment.

Rock shot his wife after she had called a policeman to the house. The policeman had arrested Rock on his wife's complaint and Rock had declared that he should not be arrested unless his wife were arrested also. While the policeman had his hard on Rock's shoulder Rock suddenly drew the revolver from his pocket and shot his wife in the head and the body.

In making her complaint to the policeman Mrs. Rock had said that she and her husband quarreled about her plan to place their two younger daughters, Eleanor, 14, and Ruth, 12, on the professional stage.

Mrs. Rock Got Meals for Santino.

Later investigation of the case showed that the most serious cause of trouble between the Rocks was the wife's alleged fondness for John Santino. The oldest daughter, Mrs. Lillian Brunelli, 18 years old, who was married two months ago to Victor Brunelli of 5528 Easton avenue, wept as she testified in her father's behalf yesterday, telling of her mother's acquaintance with Santino. She told of having seen Santino in the house at various hours, and said her mother would always get meals for him, though she would not get them for Rock. Frequently, the daughter said, Santino was at the house for breakfast.

She told of having seen her mother combing Santino's hair and sprinkling talcum powder on his face. She said that when her father had resented Santino's presence in the house Santino had attacked him with a butcher knife. The father defended himself with a poker.

The young woman said that money which her younger sisters earned by singing and dancing at entertainments was given by the mother to Santino. She said her father, in speaking of Santino, seemed distraught and tore his hair.

Defense Argument Affects Daughter.

Santino's present whereabouts is not known, it was testified. Charles P. Johnson, attorney for Rock, made an argument which so affected the daughter, Mrs. Brunelli, that she had to be taken from the courtroom. He told of the despoiling of the Rock home by the wife's infatuation for Santino and argued that such occurrences were enough to unbalance the mind of the husband and father. It had been testified that Rock suffered a sunstroke two weeks before the killing.

A 5000-word hypothetical question, covering the main points of the testimony, was asked by Johnson of two expert witnesses for the defense—Drs. W. M. Hoge and E. B. Kinder. The question also included the examinations of Rock made by the two physicians in jail. Both testified that, in their opinion Rock was not sane at the time of the killing.

An expert witness for the State, Dr Francis Barnes, testified that Rock had talked to him of the killing in a cool manner, and that he believed Rock was sane when he killed his wife.

The Court's instruction to the jury was that the wife's conduct with Santino did not afford a justification for the killing, and that testimony regarding Santino was to be considered only in its bearing on the question of the prisoner's sanity.

4 ROBBERS WITH 6 REVOLVERS HOLD UP 16 MEN IN SALOON

Icebox Accommodations Insufficient to Accommodate All and Overflow Is Stood in Row.

Four men flourishing six revolvers entered Charles Huhn's saloon at 5504 Easton avenue at 11 o'clock last night. They ordered Huhn and 15 customers into the ice box. Not all could get in. The overflow were stood up in a row. The robbers took $90 from the register and about $300 from the customers.

Frank Gray, saloonkeeper at 4298 Easton avenue, and his porter, were in the back room of the saloon at 10 o'clock when a man entered, snatched $72 from the register and ran out. Gray and the porter caught him in a hallway at 4344 Evans avenue. They took him back to the saloon, recovered the money and turned him over to the police. He said he was Frank Frien, 32, of 3967 St. Ferdinand avenue.

COURT RECOGNIZES WOMAN'S BAD AIM AS PREROGATIVE

Alton Housewives Who Threw at Hen and Broke Window Is Justified by Magistrate.

It is no reproach for a woman to throw at a hen and hit a window, and Magistrate Maguire of Alton cannot find any warrant in the law for punishing her for it. It is a woman's royal prerogative to throw at one thing and hit another, the Magistrate ruled yesterday, in dismissing the case against Mrs. Alfred Tucker, charged with breaking Mrs. Annie Allsman's window.

Mrs. Allsman's chickens foraged in Mrs. Tucker's garden and Mrs. Tucker fared forth and shied stones at them. She did not hit them, but she did hit Mrs. Allsman's window and broke it. The Magistrate held that it was Mrs. Tucker's duty to conserve her food supply and the breaking of the window was a regrettable but unavoidable incident.

COCCHI CONFESSES THAT HE MURDERED RUTH CRUGER

New York Motorcycle Dealer, Captured in Italy, Says She Repulsed Him and He Killed Her

By Associated Press.

BOLOGNA, Italy, June 23.—Alfred Cocchi, the fugitive New York motor cycle dealer, abandoned today his pretense of innocence of the murder of Ruth Cruger and confessed his guilt. Jealousy was his motive. He was unable, he declared, to win her love and became furious when she rebuffed his persistent attentions.

The admissions of the young Italian, whose escape the New York police failed to prevent, were made in tears after searching interrogation by Judge Zucconi, broke down Cocchi's reserve.

Prior to this examination Cocchi had coolly and insistently maintained he had known Miss Cruger only two days before her disappearance in February, when she went to his shop to have her skates sharpened, and had declared his conduct toward her was entirely correct.

Makes Halting Confession.

Under Judge Zuconni's searching questions today, however, Cocchi finally burst into tears and became so agitated as his confession fell haltingly from his lips that the persons surrounding him believed he was about to have an epileptic fit.

Time was granted for him to recover and he then resumed the story of how the 18-year-old Wadleigh high school graduate met death at his hands in the building where her body was recently unearthed from the cellar.

After making u phis mind to tell the truth Cocchi talked freely and without reserve gave full details of his crime, including the burial of Miss Cruger's body. After the confession had been completed the Judge directed the clerk to read to Cocchi the written report of his deposition. The prisoner said it was correct and later signed it.

Upon being further interrogated by the police, who were not satisfied that the prisoner had told the entire truth, Cocchi admitted that the murder had been preceded by an assault. He had denied this previously. His confession is now considered to be complete.

Signor Venturini, Cocchi's counsel, presented a petition to the court to refuse the extradition of Cocchi. The Ministry of Foreign Affairs has been asked by the court to obtain the evidence against Cocchi through the Italian Ambassador in Washington. This is asked with reference to the article in the Italian penal code which provides for the trial here of any Italian subject committing abroad a crime punishable in Italy with not less than three years' imprisonment.

"Ready to Suffer Penalty."

On returning to his cell, Cocchi said to the prison attendants:

"At last I feel relieved. I have freed myself from a nightmare which tortured my conscience. Now I have told everything and I am ready to suffer any penalty."

Judge Zuconni questioned the American woman, a relative of Miss Cruger, who came here for the purpose of giving testimony concerning the motive for the crime and the circumstances under which it was committed. The name and address of this woman have not been ascertained.

Alfredo Cocchi came to Bologna from New York in February, after the disappearance of Ruth Cruger. When the girl's body was discovered in the basement of Cocchi's motor cycle shop in New York, Police Commissioner Woods cabled to Italy asking for the man's arrest on a charge of murder. This was followed by a request to the same effect by the State Department at Washington, and Cocchi was arrested June 20.

Cocchi's Confession Probably Will Bar His Extradition.

NEW YORK, June 23.—Samuel F. Frank, attorney for the Italian Consulate here is of the opinion that Cocchi's confession practically eliminates all chance of his being brought back to this country.

"The very first of the Italian penal code," he said, "reads: 'Extradition of an Italian citizen is not permitted.' Cocchi's lawyer, who undoubtedly urged his confession, had that article of the code in mind.

"Of course our present close relations with Italy may lead that Government by special act of a new interpretation of the treaty to grant our demand for his return. I think this course extremely improbable." If not extradited Cocchi in all probability will be tried in Italy for the Cruger girl's murder.

Simultaneously with the news from Rome that Alfredo Cocchi had confessed to the murder of Ruth Cruger, it was reported that at least a dozen more motor cycle policemen would be suspended as an outgrowth of the case.

An investigation begun by Inspector Faurot, at the directon of Police Commissioner Woods, it was said tonight, already had disclosed certain alleged irregular practices by motorcycle policemen, which substantiate a belief that motorists have been victims of petty graft through falsified records of summonses and arrests for speeding and other traffic violations. Cocchi is believed to have been a go-between for the patrolmen in many of these transactions.

Long Name No Bar to Enlistment.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., June 23.—Ferdinand Herman Willoughby Diedesheimenhoeffer, aged 40 years, of Caseyville, Ky., applied for enlistment in the United States army at the local recruiting station today and was accepted. He said he did not believe his name would prove a handicap to him in fighting the Germans.

Anti-Suffragists Open Headquarters.

NEW YORK, June 23.—Headquarters for the National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage has been established at Washington, it was announced here today, for the purpose of directing the work in the future on more national lines particularly in view of the coming fight on the suffrage amendment.

POWER OF DEFENSE COUNCIL TO BE PUT IN HANDS OF FEW

Baruch and Rosenwald Likely to Handle U. S. and Allied Supply Purchases.

WASHINGTON—June 23.—Reorganization of the Government's war purchasing system by rearrangement of committees of the Council of National Defense, contemplated for some time, probably will be made next week. More than 150 committees now serving in many capacities will be reduced to about ten. To each will be assigned definite duties to prevent duplication of efforts.

Out of the reorganization probably will come a purchasing office which will direct all Government purchases, and in all likelihood allied purchases as well. Bernard M. Baruch, now chairman of the committee on raw supplies, has been suggested as head of the office. Under the office would be two branches, one handling raw materials, and the other finished products. Julius Rosenwald, chairman of the committee on supplies, may be put at the head of the finished products branch.

The ten committees instead of being under the advisory commission, which will continue as at present, would report direct to the council. Not only would their functions be more clearly defined, but their work would be coordinated to an extent that would permit the council membership to keep closer in touch with their activities.

There is a strong feeling among officials that the new purchasing system will develop finally a movement to protect individual purchasers of the country against arbitrary price raises as a result of heavy Government demands.

JAIL HERE HOLDS FIVE SUSPECTS IN KEET CASE

Taylor Adams and Sam McGennis Brought to St. Louis From Stockton, Mo.

Five of the seven suspects in the mystery of the kidnapping and murder of Baby Lloyd Keet in Springfield, Mo., are now in the St. Louis jail. Taylor Adams and Sam McGinnis arrived yesterday morning from Stockton, Mo., where they had been held for two weeks, and were questioned by Chief of Detectives Allender.

Taylor Adams is the father of Clesut Adams, one of the suspects previously brought here. Mrs. Taylor Adams and her younger son, Mazie Adams, at last accounts, were still in jail at Stockton. The other suspects held here, and the two to whom Allender is devoting chief attention, are Claude J. Piersol and Dick Carter.

"Best in the Long Run"

CITY'S DEMANDS IN UNITED RAILWAYS' COMPROMISE PLAN

Reduction of Capitalization and Control Over Expenditures Principal Points.

PORTION OF PROFITS

St. Louis Would Also Retain Rights to Acquire Complete Control of Lines.

In consideration of the acceptance of the request of the United Railways for the abolition of the mill-per-passenger tax and the validation of all the company's franchises for 30 years or more, the city will demand a reduction in the corporation's capitalization, valuation of its properties, control over its operation and expenditures, participation in the net surplus earnings to the extent of 60 per cent and the right to acquire the lines at the original appraisement, plus the value of improvements and extensions.

City Counselor Daues and C. E. Smith, consulting engineer of the Department of Public Utilities, agreed on the general outlines of the city's counter proposal in the course of a three hours' conference yesterday. Modifications may be made to accommodate the proposition to the requirements of the city charter, but these will affect only details of lesser importance.

Conference Next Wednesday.

A meeting of the joint conference representing the company and the city will be called by Mayor Kiel for next Wednesday if by that time Counselor Daues and Engineer Smith have completed their tentative draft of the city's proposals. The Mayor desires to have it submitted to officials of the United Railways before he leaves for New York Wednesday night, to be absent for five or six days.

The city's detailed proposition contains demands covering the following:

Valuation of the company's properties and contraction of its present capitalization, with a limitation of earnings to 6 per cent after deductions for depreciation, operating expenses and other charges.

Provision for sharing the net surplus in the ratio of 60 per cent for the city and 40 per cent for the company.

Creation of a sinking fund (as one of the fixed charges) for a gradual reduction of the capitalization below the amount to be fixed in the first agreement, so as to afford the city the right and opportunity to purchase the property at a decreasing cost.

Reservation of the city's option of using its share of the net surplus either for public purposes or for reinvestment in improvements or extensions of the company's present system, or in the building of either subways or elevated lines or both.

Participation by the city in the management of the company by the election of several—probably four—municipal officials as directors of the company and the appointment of another to act with the president of the corporation and supervise expenditures, including those for wages, salaries and purchases of supplies, and for improvements, betterments and extensions.

It was explained that the municipal members of the company's directorate should be the Mayor, Comptroller, President of the Board of Aldermen and Director of Public Utilities, but this personnel has not been designated in the city's proposition.

City's "Associate President."

Fulfillment of the conditions of the company's rehabilitation will depend on the vigilance and fidelity of these municipal directors and the city's "associate president" of the corporation.

This "associate president," with the executive head of the company, will constitute a "board of control," in whose hands will be placed most of the authority and responsibility for the management and operation of the properties. It is to be provided that, in the event of a dispute between the city's "associate president" and the company's chief executive, the controversy will be referred to the directors. If the directors fail to decide to the city's satisfaction, the Circuit Court will be requested to name a third member of the "board of control" to serve until the deadlock is broken.

Shares of the company's stock will be purchased by the city for each of its officials on the corporation's directorate to qualify them to serve. These shares will be held in the name of the Mayor, Comptroller, etc., and not by them as individuals, so that their ownership will pass automatically to their successors in the event of death, resignation or expiration of official terms.

$50,000,000 Capitol Probable.

No figure representing the point to which the company's capitalization will be reduced appears in the city's counter proposals, but it is likely that the Mayor and his associate conferees will strive to have the capitalization put at $50,000,000. The method of appraising the properties of the company is also left open to negotiation. Instead of a formal evaluation an amount will be fixed by "dickering."

Full payment of the mill tax accrued to date will be demanded by the city, but the manner of liquidating this obligation is not to be stated in the protocol. The city is ready, however, with a suggestion that the United Railways issue bonds for the full amount and pay the city promptly.

These bonds under the plan contemplated would be redeemed in 20 years, a sinking fund for this purpose and the annual interest being included in the fixed charges of the company along with operating expenses, depreciation and the like.

If the city should elect to reinvest its share of the net surplus in the company's properties for improvements and extensions, including subway and elevated lines, the aggregate of these amounts would represent a credit which would practically reduce the purchase price of the system if eventually it were deemed advisable to acquire it as a municipal enterprise.

How Plan Would Work.

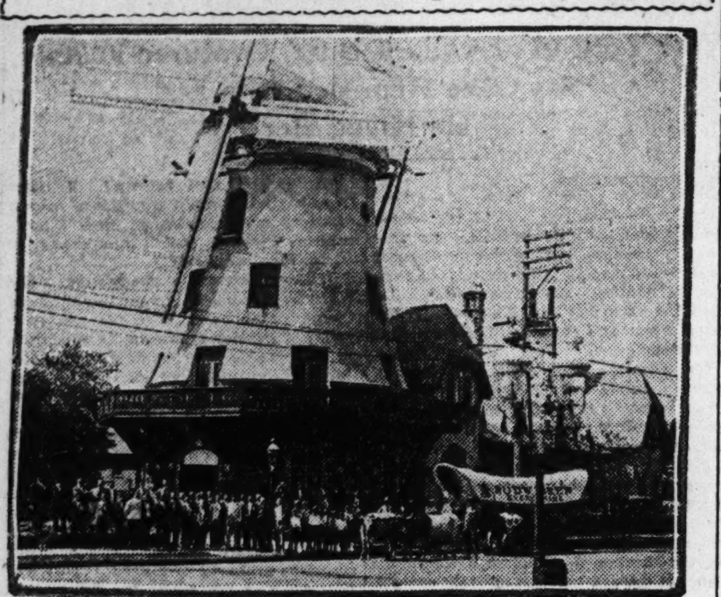
The way in which this would result is explained thus: If the city's share of the net surplus should average $300,000 a year, in two decades the municipality's ownership would be $6,000,000 of the total valuation. At the same time the sinking fund to be set aside would effect a reduction in the capitalization so that the purchase price would be the original valuation plus the cost of improvements, extensions, etc. Granting that the capitalization diminished to the amount of $10,000,000 and the city's reinvestment had risen to a total of $6,000,000 in 20 years, the property at the end of that period could be acquired for public ownership for the amount of the first appraisement and the value of subsequent improvements, less $16,000,000.

Validation for 30 Years.

The validation of the franchises by the city will be for a term of 30 years or longer, and under the provisions of the charter permitting the acquisition of the properties at the first valuation, plus the cost of improvements, extensions, etc., at the end of ten years, and at the end of each five-year period thereafter.

If the United Railways accepts the city's proposals in the main, time will be allowed the company to reorganize to meet the conditions of the ordinance by which the adjustment is sanctioned. No period will be stipulated in the first draft of the city's proposition, but President McCulloch of the United Railways last Wednesday asserted that a year would be needed to get the concurrence of the company's stockholders and bondholders.

$200,000 Bevo Mill Which Had Its Christening Last Night



SATURDAY NIGHT CROWD CHRISTENS BUSCH'S BEVO MILL

Hundreds Dine and Drink Light Beverages at New Country Club in City Place.

The Bevo Mill, an Anheuser-Busch country club-in-the-city enterprise at Morganford road and Gravois avenue, was running at full swing last night with hundreds of diners and light drinkers, and an orchestra resonant enough to drown the clatter of flat wheels on the Cherokee cars and the exhausts of automobiles. The mill was formally opened Tuesday, but it required a Saturday night crowd to give it its real christening.

Several months ago August A. Busch, president of the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association, ventured the opinion that the solution of the saloon problem in this country lay in the adoption of the German family garden system, where only beer and light wines are served with meals. The Bevo Mill is a practical demonstration of the suggestion, and the Busches are so confident of its success that they have put $200,000 into it.

Environment Out of Consonance.

The mill is placed at the point of the angle where Gravois and Morganford road meet. It is a bit of "rus in urbe," the interior reminding one of a country club, but the Cherokee cars which run alongside and the houses to the northwest with their wash lines and tin baby bath tubs on the porch won't let you forget you are in the city.

The mill building, patterned after the Holland excursion folder variety, is picturesque in every detail. There is a huge wheel, with great arms which revolve regardless of wind or calm. Apparently it is run by a motor.

In the Mill proper is a large dining room with great open windows where one may sip his beer or near-beer and gaze out upon the Carondelet bourgeoise. In the rear of the Mill toward the north is the garden, a large open space with accommodations for several hundred diners and dancers. Here is located the orchestra and a service bar decorated with Bevo signs and waiters.

The prospect from the garden reminds one keenly of Monday washing and other incidents of domestic life that are entirely out of place when you are paying high prices for a meal and have brought your much-better half to the Mill "just to give her a rest from housekeeping, you know."

Excellent meals are served and there is nothing concealed in the sleeve of the kitchen. You can walk right in and see a dozen or more hens on a spit before a great fire, lobsters blushing a rosy red and other concomitants of a well-constructed meal being cleanly and efficiently handled.

Name Has a Purpose.

It's called the Bevo Mill for a purpose that is soon made plain to the diner. You are no sooner at a seat than you are invited to drink Bevo, cajoled to drink Bevo, flattered into drinking Bevo and, finally, harassed into drinking Bevo. Of course one can get beer or light wine—any kind of wine not meant for light purses or that will make one lightheaded, is a light wine within the meaning of the act—but the waiter's appearance on taking the order makes it plain that there is a lack of nice discrimination at the table. The purpose of the Mill is to exploit Bevo.

Water is frowned upon. It is not placed on the table until ordered and then it costs 5 cents a glass.

New Soldiers, Reviewed by Society Girls, Find It Hard to Keep Hats On.

Federal inspection of the new Fifth Missouri regiment, preliminary to its muster into the service of the United States, will begin tomorrow. The regiment is at present in the State service only.

Major Douglas Settle, U. S. A., has been designated as inspecting officer, and if he so recommends, the Fifth will be immediately recognized by the War Department and the men will begin drawing peace pay, which is 25 per cent of field pay. The inspection will take place at the Armory and will be by battalions.

The first battalion, commanded by Major A. R. Sauerwein, will be inspected tomorrow night, the second battalion, commanded by Major Fred Hussman, Tuesday night, the third battalion, commanded by Major James L. Barngrove, Wednesday night, and the Headquarters, supply and machine gun companies—Capt. A. S. Cale, Carl O. Houseman and J. R. Hundley—Thursday night.

The regiment paraded in the downtown district at noon yesterday. Although some of the men were unable to leave their work in time to join the parade, more than 1000 were in line behind the "Joffre Flag," which was presented to the regiment by the Marshal of France.

Regiment Parades Downtown.

The staff officers were on foot. The regimental band, composed largely of members of the Symphony Orchestra, and commanded by Charles Allen Cale, assistant manager of the Symphony, led the parade.

The parade was reviewed on Twelfth street by a group of young women, composing the regiment's Poster Committee, and many of the men appeared to find it difficult to keep within the regulations and pass this reviewing party without lifting their hats. Some of the young women were demurely knitting sweaters for soldiers.

Girls Are Saluted.

In the party were Misses Louise Le Noir Thomas, July Collins, Mary D. Jones, Esther and Elizabeth Williams, Cornelia McNair, Marie Wight, Lucille Benoist, Grace Taylor, Lucille Woods, Lida Crawford, Katherine Parker, Katherine Corlis and Jeanette Kline. The girls stood at attention while the column passed, and were gravely saluted by the senior officers. Then they got into automobiles and fell in at the end of the line, continuing with the regiment until it disbanded. Afterward they started on a tour of the city to distribute the new war posters, the design for which was drawn by First Lieut. W. Jerome Lonergan of G Company. They put up more than 500 posters during the afternoon, and expect to complete the work tomorrow. Two thousand posters are the committee's total allotment.

The Third Battalion, which is the only section of the regiment already uniformed, gave an exhibition drill without arms on Twelfth street after the parade, under command of Maj. Barngrove. The companies participating were I, Capt. Robert Fullerton Jr.; K, Capt. J. F. Oberwinder; L, Capt. Dwight F. Davis, and M, Capt. Hugh McKittrick Jones. Capt. Davis and Capt. Oberwinder were unable to be present and their companies were commanded by their first lieutenants, Leo Orf and Edwin L. Jones.

HUSTLERS JOIN WHITE CROSS

Convention Delegates Pledged to Obtain Members.

The Egyptian Hustlers, on the final day of their convention at Highland, Ill., yesterday, joined the Order of the White Cross in a body. Each delegate was pledged to sponsor membership campaigns in his trade territory. It was announced that the four local camps of Spanish-American War Veterans would engage in competitive campaigns for new members for the organization.

The White Cross, an organization for aiding disabled soldiers, has already an enrollment of 1000 in St. Louis, although it was established June 2. A campaign to increase the number to 25,000 will be started July 4.

ST. LOUISAN HAD $800 'INTEREST' IN CHIROPRACTOR BILL

Local Member of Legislature Would Have Received That if Measure Had Passed.

CONVERSATION IS RELATED

Representative Kinder of Butler Tells of Talk With Man in Question.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., June 23.—Representative Francis Kinder of Butler County today was discovered by a Post-Dispatch correspondent to be an important witness in the legislative graft investigation being conducted by Assistant Attorney-General Howell and Assistant Circuit Attorney Baer in St. Louis.

He told of a talk with one of the more active of the members of the St. Louis delegation in the House in which the St. Louisan, he said, told that he was to have received $800 if an attempt by chripractors to obtain the passage of a bill to license them in Missouri had been successful.

"The St. Louis member was very active in behalf of the chiropractors' bill," Representative Kinder said, "and frequently urged me to support it. He talked about the bill nearly every time I met him.

"When the bill came up for engrossment it was defeated, and later a motion to reconsider it was offered. It failed of engrossment on the reconsideration. My memory is not clear as to the exact time, but it was after one of these failures that the St. Louis member gave me my first intimation that he had a financial interest in the passage of the bill.

"Has Cost Me $800."

"He saw that I had voted against it and came to me and upbraided me severely for voting against it. He told me: 'Your action has cost me exactly $800. The passage of the bill was worth that to me, and I would have received it if the bill had passed.'

"My recollection is that I jokingly told him that he ought to have told me about that before the vote was taken."

Representative Kinder also told an interesting anecdote of the same St. Louis member and his open remarks about the opportunities of legislators.

"I was walking along the street with him one night," Representative Kinder said, "having met him when I was on my way to dinner. He asked me where I dined, and I mentioned a very moderate priced place. He tapped me on the shoulder and said:

"'When you have had my experience, boy, you won't eat there. It's T-bone steaks for mine.'

"Usually after that I greeted him as 'T-Bone' when I met him."

Representative Kinder was one of the more active Republican members of the House, although the 1917 session was the first he had attended as a member. He quickly attained a position of influence in the Republican caucus and on the floor.

The chiropractic bill was introduced in the House by Representative Shannon of Audrain County and in the Senate by Senator Brogan of St. Louis. It was engrossed in the Senate, but did not come to a final vote. In the House it failed of engrossment, and a motion to reconsider the vote by which it failed was offered by Representative William J. McPherson of 1340 Bayard avenue, St. Louis.

Other Evidence of Graft.

It was on this bill that Representative Guy B. Mitchell of Taney County a week ago told a Post-Dispatch correspondent that he was offered $1000 by a Jefferson City lawyer, Representative Mitchell having opposed the bill each time it was considered in the House. He said the offer was made as an inducement to him to withdraw his opposition to the measure.

Much testimony already has been heard by the Grand Jury in St. Louis on the chiropractic bill, many chiropractors having been summoned after the Circuit Attorney's office had received information that a legislative fund of several thousand dollars had been collected from chiropractors for the use of chiropractic lobbyists in Jefferson City. It is understood that contributors to the fund were informed the money would be returned to them if the bill failed to pass.

CRITES APPEARS IN COURT, FREED ON $2000 BOND

Rolla Lawyer Under Indictment for Violation of Anti-Lobby Law.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., June 23.—Joseph J. Crites, Rolla lawyer and candidate for the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant Governor in the August, 1916, primary, whose activities in legislative affairs in Jefferson City last winter have been the subject of Grand Jury investigations in St. Louis and Springfield, surrendered in the Criminal Court here today on a warrant charging violation of the anti-lobby law, and was released on a $2000 bond.

An indictment against Crites was voted by the Greene County Grand Jury Thursday and a bench warrant was issued by Judge Johnson yesterday. The sheriff notified him by telephone and he agreed to surrender today. His bond was signed by John Kelly, a Springfield saloonkeeper. He will have a hearing July 28.

The formal indictment against Crites has not been returned into court, but this action is expected Monday when Prosecuting Attorney O'Day will return from St. Louis.

The evidence against Crites was furnished by H. H. Watts of Kansas City, president of the State Optometric Association, and Dr. W. F. Donovan, of Springfield, an optometrist.

It is understood the testimony at the hearing will be that Crites agreed to represent the Optometrists in Jefferson City in their efforts to obtain the passage of a bill to license them, and that he was to receive a fee of $3500 if the bill passed. The anti-lobby law prohibits any person from accepting employment to promote or oppose legislation on a contingent fee.

VESTRY ASKED BY BISHOP TO RESIGN WHEN PASTOR QUIT

East St. Louis Congregation Rebuked for Failure to Pay $800 Salary to Rector.

It was learned yesterday, in connection with the resignations of the Rev. George Harvey Trickett, pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Ninth street and Summit avenue, East St. Louis, and eight vestrymen, that the minister has not been paid $800 in salary that is due him ,and that members of his congregation have objected to his attendance at functions of the Elks Club, of which he is a member.

The church property is valued at more than $30,000. The Rev. Mr. Trickett is supposed to receive $1200 a year. He lives in a flat at 610 North Tenth street. The deficit of $800 has accumulated since he took the pastorate, two and a half years ago. He admitted that the failure to receive such a large part of his salary had embarrassed him. He has a wife and five children.

A letter written by Bishop Granville Sherwood of Springfield, to the parishioners last week revealed that, after the pastor had voluntarily tendered his resignation, the Bishop asked the vestrymen to resign. The Bishop will hold a special meeting of the congregation at the church tomorrow night to find out what is the matter and how the trouble can be remedied.

The letter states that the Bishop visited the parish recently, and was "much grieved at the sad condition of the church building, and the apparent lack of interest by the members."

The Rev. Mr. Trickett told a Post-Dispatch reporter he had heard of the widely circulated reports that some of the parishioners objected to his being a member of the Elks Club, and attending its banquets. He said he did not know whether the reports were true, and "neither do I care." He said he considered it a personal matter, and that he did not see why any objections should be made. He remarked that he had never participated in any celebrations that were improper.

"The principel trouble," he said, "is that East St. Louis covers so much territory it is hard to get our members together. To solve this I tried to establish missions, or chapels, over the city. I got very little support from the vestry and congregation, and the scheme fell through. All the time we were losing ground, financially, so I decided to turn it over to the Bishop for reorganization."

A member of the congregation said that another member recently volunteered to pay the Rev. Mr. Trickett's house rent. The rector insisted that the money thus spent be credited to the church as having been applied to his salary.

RESENTMENT IN WASHINGTON OVER THE SPIESS CASE

Belief There That England Erred in Action as to St. Louis Unit Nurse.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Army medical officers were anything but pleased over the announcement that Mrs. Marion A Archer Spiess, a member of the St. Louis base hospital, was refused permission to proceed to France from England on the ground that she is a German subject.

Mrs. Spiess' paper show that she was born in England. Nothing is said in her papers as to the nationality of her parents, but the fact that her maiden name was Archer does seem to cast doubt on the English statement that her parents were German subjects. The record also fails to show whether her former husband was an American citizen. If so, she was an American.

There is no disposition, however, to question the right of the British authorities to decline to permit her to go to France with the base hospital. At the same time there are evidences of resentment on the part of some persons here over the idea that American physicians and nurss must be subjected to scrutiny or investigation by British secret service agents when they are bound on an errand of mercy and at large risk to themselves.

So far as known here the British authorities have not detained Mrs. Spiess. Should they do so, immediate steps will be taken to see that she is released and returned to this country. Later on, if she so desires, Mrs. Spiess undoubtedly will be permitted to go to France for service exclusively with Gen. Pershing's force, assuming, of course, that she is in all other respects acceptable. Every member of every base hospital unit sent across was selected with great care.

Mrs. Spiess Not a Widow, But Has Been Divorced.

Mrs. Spiess, who lived at 4759A Washington boulevard before her departure for Europe, is not the widow of a German subject, her friends here say. Instead, they declare, she is the divorced wife of Gustave Spiess, who has been married and divorced again since she divorced him in 1907.

The St. Louis acquaintances of Mrs. Spiess supposed that Spiess was a naturalized American citizen. He was lately in the stained glass business in East St. Louis, and his second divorced wife, Mrs. Libbie Roth, lives at 1763 North Forty-third street, East St. Louis.

The British explanation, sent to the State Department and forwarded to the St. Louis headquarters of the hospital unit, read:

"Mrs. Marion Spiess, a member of Base Hospital Unit No. 21, cannot proceed to France because she was born in England of parents of German nationality, married a German subject, whose widow she now is, and is therefore of German nationality herself."

He was on a bicycle owned by Melvin Marglous of 2916 Indiana avenue, about 8 a. m., with Marglous supporting him. TWO SUFFRAGISTS ARRESTED AT WHITE HOUSE GATES

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The police quickly blockaded another attempt today by suffragists to display a banner in front of the White House gates.

Mrs. Lawrence Lewis of Philadelphia, and Miss Gladyce Greiner of Baltimore, who carried the banner, were arrested before they had it entirely unfurled, by a police matron, and taken to headquarters in a waiting police automobile.

The women were released on their own recognizance. The banners carried a quotation from one of President Wilson's books.

DR. ROBERTS QUESTIONED AS TO FRIENDSHIP WITH LUSK GIRL

Mother-in-Law of Physician Says He and Wife Were on Point of Separating.

WAUKESHA, Wis., June 24.—For an hour today Dr. David Roberts was cross-questioned by city and county authorities concerning his friendship with Miss Grace Lusk, school teacher, who Thursday killed the physician's wife because of her love for him, and seriously wounded herself. Dr. Roberts was asked what certain phrases in letters between him and Miss Lusk meant.

"We want to ascertain just what the relations between the doctor and Miss Lusk were," said District Attorney Tuller.

Mrs. Newman, mother of Mrs. Roberts and an anonymous witness threw new light on the relations between Dr. Roberts and his wife, and revealed that the two apparently had reached the parting of the ways.

New Mitchell Home Thronged With Visitors

During the Past Week Hundreds Accepted Our Invitation to Visit This Showplace De Luxe

Everyone who visited the new Mitchell Home in the Plaza Hotel Building was deeply impressed. He left realizing that he had seen a remarkable institution.

He had seen not only a salesroom that critics consider the most beautiful in America, but also a car that represents the utmost in equipment, beauty, luxury, economy.

31 Extra Features

He had seen a car with 31 features which nearly all other cars omit. Every one of these extras is something that you want.

Things like a power tire pump, dashboard engine primer, reversible headlights, ball-bearing steering gear.

There is superlative luxury. Matchless finish, upholstery and beauty.

There are handles on the windshield for entering the car, a light in the tonneau, a locked compartment for valuables.

There is plaited upholstery of rare-grade leather and very deep cushion springs. There are cantilever rear springs—52 inches long—so the car rides like an aeroplane.

Each one of these extras, and the many others the Mitchell offers, is paid for by factory savings. They cost you nothing. This is due to the model Mitchell factory, built and equipped by John W. Bate.

100% Over-Strength

Here is a car that offers him an unheard of margin of safety—a car that is 100 per cent over-strength.

All safety parts are oversize. Gears are tested for 50,000 pounds per tooth. Springs are tested for 100,000 four-inch vibrations.

As a result, not a single rear spring in a Mitchell has been broken in two years.

We found, in our research, that at least two Mitchell cars have run over 200,000 miles each. That's about 40 years of ordinary service.

There appears no limit to Mitchell endurance.

Mitchell designers examined 257 models before creating these. And we are convinced, after months of comparison, that the Mitchell will dominate in the modest-price fine-car field.

A Real Service Station

A new service station is now being erected at Pine street and Channing avenue. Here service will be interpreted as the owner interprets it.

It will have every facility for serving Mitchell owners—shop tools, paint room, finishing department, etc. It will round out a motoring service that means complete and lasting satisfaction to every Mitchell owner—present or future.

If you were unable to attend our formal opening, come in and visit this showroom de luxe at your convenience. See and learn more about the Mitchell and Mitchell extras. See this wonderful St. Louis institution, backed by St. Louis money, for St. Louis motor car buyers. Our house is always open to you.

REYNOLDS DEFEATS 5-TIME WINNER OF TRANS-MISSISSIPPI

Omaha Golfer Makes Record Over St. Joseph Course in Beating Legg of Minnikahda, 2 and 1.

NEW MARK OF 72 SET FOR FIRST 18 HOLES

Former Titleholder Plays Superb Golf, Finishing the First Nine Holes of the Afternoon Under Par.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., June 23.—Sam W. Reynolds, of the Omaha Field Club, today took away the transmississippi golf championship from Harry G. Legg, of the Minikahda Club of Minneapolis, the title holder and five times winner of the honor. Reynolds' victory was by 2 up and 1 to play.

The new champion, after establishing a new course record with 72 in the morning, came into the afternoon play two up on his older opponent. Legg took the 19th and 21st holes, but Reynolds broke the tie on the next and went around the turn, one up. Then he annexed two more from the former champion, but his lead was reduced to two, before the 34th and last hole was played.

In breaking the amateur record for the course this morning, Reynolds went the eighteen in three under par and took the honor away from Legg, who had brought it down to 73 during the preliminaries of the tournament.

The two stood even, at the completion of the first nine morning holes, each having a card showing 37, one under par for the distance.

Directors' Decision Needed.

Reynolds made a remarkable drive for the ninth hole, going 220 yards up hill to the edge of the green, and holed the ball in three, one under par.

Legg took the tenth but Reynolds again evened on the eleventh, after playing it in a fashion that required a decision of the directors to settle a disputed point. Reynolds' drive had gone outside the fence at the end of the green, but even with the post. Reynolds drove a second ball from the tee and holed in four. Legg contested, claiming the first ball did not go outside the grounds. Reynolds then played it, making the hole in six, the same score as Legg. But the directors decided in favor of Reynolds, giving him the hole.

At the eighteenth hole Reynolds was 2 up, having broken the amateur record of 73 for the course, made by Legg Wednesday.

The cards were:

Legg ....Out 4 5 5 4 4 3 5 3 4—37

The afternoon and concluding round started with a large gallery following the play. Both players were shooting almost a perfect game, but Legg was able to take one from his Omaha opponent and at the twenty-second, Reynolds was only 1 up.

Legg made the first nine holes of the second round in one under par. Reynolds' score was 39.

The card for the afternoon:

Legg......Out 4 4 4 5 5 1 5 4 4—37
Reynolds...Out 5 4 6 3 5 3 6 3 4—39

But the Omaha player steadied, forged ahead, and, in the closing moments, after the twenty-seventh had been played, the outcome was scarcely in doubt.

Legg brought into play every art of the game that time after time has won him the high golf honors of which he was the possessor.

He attempted desperately, after the thirteenth to overcome the three holes against him and succeeded, to the thrill of the crowd, in recovering one. But the younger man was not to be denied and the honor was lost to the Minneapolis veteran.

Molla Bjurstedt Wins National Net Title for 3d Time

Norwegian Girl Defeats Miss Vanderhoeff in Finals After Losing First Set, 6-4.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 23.—Miss Molla Bjurstedt, of New York, national women's tennis champion, figured in two additional victories today in the concluding matches of the women's national tennis tournament at the Philadelphia Cricket Club. Miss Bjurstedt, who with Miss Eleanora Sears, of Boston, yesterday won the doubles match by defeating Miss Phyllis Walsh, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Robert Leroy, of New York, took her third straight national tournament singles victory by defeating Miss Marion Vanderhoeff, of New York, 4-6, 6-0, 6-3.

Miss Bjurstedt and Irving Wright, of Boston won the mixed doubles match by defeating Miss Florence Ballin, of New York, and W. T. Tilden II, of Philadelphia, 10-12, 6-1, 6-3.

Miss Vanderhoeff gave the champion a worthy battle in the first set of the singles match, but in the two concluding sets, her brilliant style of play was quickly solved, Miss Bjurstedt winning 12 of the 14 games.

Youthful Victor and Runner-Up In Missouri Tennis Tournament

MISS CORINNE GOULD

MISS MAY SCULLIN.

Seventeen-Year-Old Girl Wins State Net Tourney

Miss Corinne Gould of Kirkwood Defeats Miss May Scullin, 6—3, 6—0, in Final Match—Newest Tennis Star Has Won Municipal and Other Titles Previously.

Miss Corinne Gould, 17 years old and a very recent graduate of Kirkwood High School, easily won the singles championship of the Women's State Patriotic Tennis Tournament yesterday morning at Triple A, defeating Miss Scullin in straight sets, the scores of which were 6—3, 6—0.

Her victory effort was the culmination of four years of persistent endeavor, during which time she has always reached the semifinals, but failed in the closing event. But, although it took her four years to reach the finals, it took her but 35 minutes to eliminate Miss Scullin and win the State supremacy yesterday. This match was played in better time than any other throughout the entire tournament, but, as Miss Scullin confessed, it was by far the most fatiguing.

Miss Gould, although she has played tennis for several years, met her first success in the junior tournament for girls in 1913. In this tourney she eliminated all her opponents with ease, and a very bright future was predicted for her at the time.

The next year she entered the Kirkwood-Webster tournament for women, representing Kirkwood. Her play in this event was characterized by the same ease in winning that she had displayed in the junior event the year previous.

Won Municipal Singles.

She attained her greatest success, exclusive of the present year, in the Municipal and State championships for women, last year. She won the singles in the city event while she was runner-up in the State doubles titles, losing in the final round to Miss La Beaume and Miss Prendergast.

She demonstrated to the satisfaction of all concerned this year, however, that she is now the superior of Miss La Beaume, by defeating her in the semifinals in consecutive sets, 6—3, 6—0.

While she played a wonderful game in eliminating Miss La Beaume her play in defeating Miss Scullin surpassed it. At the start of the match Miss Scullin elected to play a lobbing game, but Miss Gould returned this so effectively that she was compelled to resort to a smashing game. This form of offense might have availed Miss Scullin, had it not been for her unaccountable wildness. Times without number Miss Scullin sent the ball flying out of bounds. This erratic play unnerved Miss Scullin.

It was just exactly opposite with Miss Gould. She had evidently decided upon her style of play prior to the match for she, almost without exception divined the intent of her opponent and played accordingly. She controlled the ball remarkably well and had Miss Scullin chasing al over the court in a vain endeavor to return shots that lodged in the remote corners.

The fact that she kept Miss Scullin on the go from the very first serve was really what decided the issue. In the first few games, that is before Miss Scullin became wearied from racing to all corners of her court, the match was fairly close, the score at the end of the seventh game being 4-3 with Miss Gould leading. A coincidence of the play thus far had been that each player had lost the games that she served. After that, however, Miss Gould became practically invincible and won eight consecutive games. Her ability to make difficult returns was the feature of the match. She did not attempt to hit the ball past her opponent, but contented herself merely with getting the ball on the other side of the net. It nearly always resulted that Miss Scullin, becoming over anxious, drove the ball out, or into the net.

The three titles in the women's tournament this year were evenly distributed, Miss Lesley La Beaume being the only one to share in two titles. Miss Scullin and Miss La Beaume won the women's doubles, defeating the Misses Crunden and Shepley; Mr. Arthur von Reppert and Miss Lesley La Beaume won the mixed doubles title, defeating Davison Obear and Miss May Scullin and Miss Corinne Gould won the singles title by defeating Miss May Scullin.

Instead of the usual cups, an inexpensive medal will be awarded to the victors. The proceeds of the tournament will go to the Red Cross.

LYNCH OPPOSES ROTH IN SEMI-FINALS MATCH OF MUNICIPAL EVENT TODAY

Frank Lynch, who was put out in the semi-final round of the Trans-Mississippi golf tourney held in St. Joseph last week, is scheduled to play George Roth in the semi-finals of the Forest Park Golf Club event over the municipal links in Forest Park today. Jimmy Manion meets L. J. Hamel in the third round and the winner of this match will tackle M. J. Crichton in the semi-finals later in the week.

Matches in the minor classes were decided yesterday and two of them went to 19 holes before being decided. The results:

Class B—C. L. Sager defeated F. R. Cristman, 4 up and 3 to play.

FRED FULTON WILLING TO SHOW HERE JUNE 26

Fred Fulton, who recently surprised the country by knocking out ancient Sam Langford, the venerable colored heavyweight, and old but still dangerous scrapper, may be brought here some date between June 26 and July 3 inclusive, to oppose Jack Moran, the Springfield heavyweight, who is now a resident of this city.

Fulton yesterday wired Tommy Sullivan he had those dates open, but did not suggest an opponent. Moran was formerly sparring partner for Fulton. He is about forty pounds lighter than Fulton and several inches shorter, but he has shown gameness and fair fighting ability.

No Double-Header for Browns Today; Detroit Too Busy

Tigers Face Ten Games in Eight Days and Jennings Vetoes Bargain Bill.

DETROIT, Mich., June 23.—Although a heavy field prevented the Browns and Tigers from playing the game booked here today, only one contest has been announced for tomorrows' program. It will be the last day of the Browns' stay in the city of the Ford, but Manager Jennings declined to book a double-header, which means that the game will lay over until the Browns visit here for the last time this season in August.

Detroit is facing a number of doubleheaders already, and Jennings, therefore, declined to offer a bargain show, tomorrow.

Twelve games in eight days is the schedule facing the Tigers.

Either Ed Plank or Dave Davenport will pitch tomorrow with Willie Mitchell or Harry Coveleskie, both southpaws, are available for the Tigers.

The calling off of today's game meant a financial blow to the club owners. Although the Tigers, by winning a doubleheader from the Browns yesterday, reached the .500 mark for the first time this season, the baseball writers here have not counted the men of Jennings out of the pennant hunt.

It doesn't look natural to see Del Pratt hitting in seventh place in the batting order. But the big fellow has not been doing his share of the hit-making since returning to the lineup after the injury to his wrist. He not only is unable to grip a bat firmly, but he has been guilty of the unpardonable mistake of swinging at bad balls.

Big Bill Jacobson has played seven games as a Brownie against the Tigers this season, but only in one has he distinguished himself with the bat. That was in the opening game of Friday's double-header, when his single scored Austin with the first run.

Philadelphia May Take A. A. U. Meet From Mound City

A. A. U. Officials Worried Over St. Louis' Failure to Go Ahead with Games.

NEW YORK, June 23.—Dilly-dallying by the officials of the Western Association of the Amateur Athletic Union, with headquarters at St. Louis, has brought about no end of confusion with reference to the holding of the 1917 National Track and Field Championships.

With the dates settled and arrangements for the meet apparently going along smoothly, the championship committee, of which Frederick W. Rubien is chairman, has found itself up against a stone wall with the time for the big meet little more than a month away.

Money seems to be the chief obstacle in the way of the St. Louis committee, headed by Thomas Watts of the Western Association, which was intrusted with the task of making preparations for the games. Week after week the committee reported that it was making "progress," but for a month now everything has been silent and the championship committee has reluctantly almost reached the conclusion to cancel the award of the games to St. Louis and designate another city.

This is where the national committee is finding its chief difficulty, because money for the athletic games seems to be as tight in other cities as it is in St. Louis, an an informal decision has been reached by the committee that it will conduct the games itself, rather than run the danger of more delay by turning the plans over to a local organization.

Other Cities Lack Money.

When talk of the switch from St. Louis was first broached, Boston and Chicago were suggested as the places where the games would probably be successful, but since then reports from Boston have indicated that aside from the fact that the Harvard Staidum probably would not be available for the meet, there is no enthusiasm for championship athletic fixtures of any kind.

Chicago is still a possibility, as well as Newark, N. J., and Philadelphia. If the committee itself holds the games, the proceeds will go to the Red Cross, and the estimate of prospective profits will determine the value of the meet.

At Franklin Field, Philadelphia, 25,000 or more spectators could be accommodated readily. Furthermore, Philadelphia has ranked second to Boston in the size of the crowds it turns out for track and field sports and it would not be surprising if the final choice fell to the lot of the Quaker City. Philadelphia is the only applicant for the event, if St. Louis fails.

JOHNSON TO TAKE CARE OF RUTH FOR HIS ROW WITH OWENS IN BOSTON

CHICAGO, June 23.—B. B. Johnson, president of the American League, said tonight when he heard of the disorder at today's game in Biston:

"I'll take care of Mr. Ruth," he said when asked whether the Boston pitcher would be punished for his mix-up with an umpire. Johnson said he expected a report from the umpire by Monday and would take action at that time.

HORNSBY TO GET $50

Rogers Hornsby, the Cardinal shortstop, will be presented with a check for $50, a gift from the American Tobacco Co. for hitting the "Bull" sign in the Phillies' Park early in May, between the first and second games of today's double header at Cardinal Field.

MASON WINS SHOOT TITLE

BRAINARD, Minn., June 23.—Charles Mason of Thief River Falls today won the Minnesota championship at the State trap shooting tournament here with a score of 93 and 19 out of 20 in the shoot-off.

SHORE OF RED SOX HURLS 0-HIT GAME AGAINST GRIFFMEN

RUTH PUNCHES UMPIRE

Boston Southpaw Does Not Like Owens' Decisions and Is Put Out of the Contest.

BOSTON, June 23.—A no-hit, no-run, no-man to reach first base pitching performance by Ernest Shore, Boston twirler, an assault upon Umpire Owens by "Babe" Ruth, another Boston pitcher, in which the umpire was struck behind the ear, and the defeat of Walter Johnson by "Dutch" Leonard, were incidents of the world champions' double victory over Washington today. The scores were 4 to 0 and 5 to 0.

Shore's entry into the select list of pitchers who have shown perfect performances was made possible by Ruth's banishment from the first game.

Ruth had pitched only to Ray Morgan, and Umpire Owens had given the latter his base on balls. Ruth argued the decision, the umpire ordered him off the field and the Boston pitcher then struck at Owens. Other players intervened and Ruth left the field.

Shore was called in with Morgan on first base, but a moment later the latter was thrown out on attempting to steal second. Thereafter the Boston pitcher and his fielders turned back every Washington batsman. Ayers, who pitched for Washington, was hit hard.

In the second game Leonard held Washington to four hits, while the world's champions cracked out, hits in bunches off Johnson and with errors won easily. Scores:

R. CALDWELL WINS TWO GAMES FROM ATHLETICS

NEW YORK, June 23.—New York beat the Philadelphia Athletics in two games here today, winning by scores of 10 to 4 and 2 to 1. Caldwell won both games for New York, as he pitched six innings of the first game. The first game was a slovenly exhibition featured by Pipp's batting, the Yankees first baseman making a home run, triple and two singles in four times up, and scoring after each hit.

Russell Johnson gave Caldwell a hard contest in the second game and the Philadelphia twirler had a 1 to 0 lead, two out and two strikes on Peckinpaugh in the ninth, when that batter doubled, scoring Pipp, who had walked. Nunamaker, batting for Walters, then singled, scoring Peckinpaugh with the winning run. The scores:

Western to Enter 11 of 13 Races in S.W.R.A. Regatta

The local rowing clubs are going to do their "bit" to make the annual regatta of the Southwestern Amateur Rowing Association, to be held at Creve Coeur Lake next Saturday and Sunday, a success. It was announced at all the seven local organizations yesterday that they would enter just as many boats as could be manned.

Several of the local clubs, especially St. Louis, have been hit hard by paddle-tipplers leaving to join the colors. This club has always been one of the leaders in entries, but it was said yesterday that only an eight and a barge crew could be gotten together by next Tuesday night, the time for the closing of entries.

The Western Rowing Club will enter in all but two of the 13 events to be held on the two days. On Junior day this organization will be represented in the barge, singles, doubles, half-mile dash for singles and the eight-oared shell. The senior crews will be the barge, singles, doubles, pair-oared, four and an eight.

Century, which last season won the regatta, and later sent a crew to the national regatta, also will enter a full squad. The colors of the South Siders will be seen in the barge, eight, singles and four and possibly in the doubles on both days.

Capt. Ben Spradling of Mound City entered a junior eight, four, single and double, and on senior day will be represented by a four, barge eight and single. Spradling himself will row in the four-oared shell and the barge event.

The Central Rowing Club will be represented on junior day in the pair, doubles, four, barge and eight and by a senior pair, double and barge.

North End and Baden, the two "baby" clubs in the local harbor, will likely be represented only by an eight and a barge crew on both days.

Although the water has been high for the past few weeks, and has caused the postponement of several revival day regattas, the local oarsmen have been making the best of it at training, most of them crossing to the east side of the river.

Local officials still entertain the hope that the Lincoln Park Boat Club of Chicago will enter one of its crews and that Peoria also will be represented in the events.

WATSON ASKS TO PITCH ONE OF TODAY'S GAMES; CARDS IN DOUBLE BILL

"Ah sure never goin' to lose another game. All I wants is lots of work."

Mule says he's going to reform right now. Henceforth he's going to shut his eyes to the bright lights and tend strictly to business. Consequently he will have first fling at the Reds this afternoon and if he doesn't win he'll pack his overnight bag and await orders.

Either Doak or Packard will pitch the other portion of today's double-header. Gumboots Mathewson intends to work Mitchell in the first game and Eller in the getaway skip. Monday will be an open date at Cardinal Field.

STEIN GANG LUCKY TO SCORE ONE RUN; MEADOWS A WIZARD

Tommy Long's Error Responsible for Cincinnati's Only Tally in Yesterday's St. Louis 5-1 Victory.

CARDINALS' DEFENSE EQUALS THE PITCHING

By W. J. O'Connor.

Those stein-fed pretzel-eaters from Cincinnati were, as the darky who claimed exemption declared, just natu'ally gun-shy, yesterday, and Henry Lee Meadows of Georgia chiseled out a well-defined victory for the Cardinals, 5-1, this being the first triumph of the Knot-Hole Nabobs since last Sunday.

Meadows deserved a shutout and a war medal for his work. But for an egregious error by Tripling Tee Long, who is a great fielder except for a weakness on fly balls and grounders, Henry Lee would have made the grade.

The only alien run developed in the ninth inning when Long fluffed Thorpe's liner and Lo the poor Indian went to second like a bat liberated from the nether regions. He advanced a base on Groh's out, tarried there while Kopf was being expelled, but scored on Roush's ripping single to center. Chase expired like a gentleman and a scholar, Hornsby to Paulette, for the curtain call.

Only four hits were made off Meadows. One of them was a scratch. Henry Lee didn't issue a pass and only 31 batters faced him. He set the enemy down in order in six of the nine rounds. He was too good for any use.

Great Defense Helped Meadows.

However, he wasn't playing a lone hand. The Cards threw a defense around him that was—barring Long's small-time stuff in the ninth—foolproof and finished in every detail. Mr. H. Douglass Baird, a reformed Pirate, played more third base than the natives have seen since Hobe Ferris fidgeted around the far corner at the old Sportsman's Park. Baird handled only three chances, but in each instance he converted almost certain hits into sudden putouts. Baird has an arm of the finest damascus steel and a range-finder that would make one of Bill Hohenzollern's finest periscopes look like a blind alley.

The fact that he was unsuited for service in the Pittsburg trenches is the clearest and most concise explanation we can make for the Pirates' present position at the bottom of the N. L. scramble.

Cards' New Batting Order.

The Cardinals showed a new batting order and a better one. Manager Huggins put Tommy Long back where he belongs—now that he's hitting—and dropped Miller from third to sixth place. Long contributed two hits. Cruise did equally as much while Baird did better, making one of his hits expand into a triple.

There was no lost motion. The Cards settled down to business right at the gong. Jack Smith teased Mr. Regan into issuing a walk. Baird bounced a single over Groh's bean and Smith stopped at second. Kopf tried to hold Smith on second and Long singled through the vacated spot at short, scoring Smith. With Hornsby up, Hug called for a bunt and a steal, all at one time. The strategy was to pull Groh back to the base for the steal and have Hornsby beat out a roller up the third base line. Hornsby missed connection and Wingo bagged Baird going to third. That left Long on second and one out. Hornsby walked. Cruise singled and Long scored while Hornsby went to third. Miller popped to Chase and Paulette drove hard at Kopf, who made the throw to Chase.

Baird's Triple Scores Smith.

That was all until the fifth. Smith opened this round with a single and swiped second. Baird exploded a triple in left center, scoring Smith but Doug was nipped at the plate, trying for a circuit. He might have properly been held at third as there was none out, but Hug didn't figure on two perfect throws.

Another run in the sixth. Cruise got his second hit. Miller sacrificed, Paulette singled to right, but Cruise was held at third. Gonzales lifted a long fly to Griffith that brought Walton home.

In the eighth Hornsby broke into the "hit" column with a double. Cruise sacrificed and Miller perfectly perpetrated the squeeze, Rogers counting while Jack was being retired by Chase, unassisted. That was all. Likewise enough.

As to That Fighting Spirit, Some of It Is Instilled and Some Distilled

U. S. ARMY TO BE WORLD'S GREATEST ATHLETIC MACHINE

One Million Men to Be Trained in Jumping, Running, Throwing, Hurdling and Boxing.

CANADIAN PLAN FAVORED

By Robert Edgren.

(Copyright, 1917, by Press Pub. Co.)

NEW YORK, June 23.—By September the greatest athletic team the world ever saw will be in training here in the United States. There will be over a million men—jumpers, walkers, runners, ball players, football players, boxers, wrestlers, grenade throwers, bayonet fencers.

Imagine over a million men, under the best coaches in the country, training hard every day under discipline and restriction more rigid than at any college training table in the land. You could pick a hundred Olympic teams from that bunch—a hundred teams any one of which could walk away with the greatest set of Olympian championships ever held since Greece was a wilderness peopled by roving tribes.

Up in Canada they have been developing a few war athletes—something over 400,000 to date. I believe Canada did wonderfully well, getting over 400,000 from a population of only 7,000,000—and all volunteers at that.

The wholesale athletic scheme was started in Canada, picked up in Australia and adopted by England. Now it is to be adopted by the United States and, no doubt, Yankee fashion, we'll be able to add a few new wrinkles that none of the others have thought of.

Chairman Raymond Fosdik of the committee on training camp activities is the gentleman chiefly in charge of army athletics. This army athletic idea is not entirely new in the United States. For many years we have had regular army championship athletic meets, in which the soldiers of the regular army competed.

The United States army has had some pretty fair athletes in its time. There was Tommy Conneff, holder of the world's 1-mile amateur record of 4m. 15 3-5s. After making the record Tommy went into the army and did some good running in the army meets.

There was Willie Jackson of the University of California, a great Western mile runner, who went into the United States cavalry for the fun of fighting in the Philippines. Willie didn't have a chance to take much of a part in army athletics. He was shot between the eyes in his first battle.

"Dutch" Arnold's Unique Feat.

Easterners will remember "Dutch" Arnold, the wonderful hurdler and middle distance runner, who went to the Pan-American games, the National Championships held at Buffalo years ago, and won a hurdle championship although he had never run the distance over the sticks before in his life. In that same day, if I remember rightly, "Dutch" won the half-mile. He had a thirst just before that race started, for it was a very hot day and he had been in a couple of events. He ran from the track to a cafe in the Fairgrounds several hundred yards away and drank three or four schooners of beer. Coming back he saw the athletes out on the starting mark, ready for the gun. "Dutch" ran as fast as he could to get the track, reached the starting mark, just as the pistol was fired and to the amazement of the crowd dashed out in front, held his lead and won the championship from a field of the best middle distance runners in America.

Sometime afterward "Dutch" went into the army, where he became the most famous athlete in the service, winning event after event in every set of games held where his regiment was in camp. Sometimes "Dutch" won nearly the whole program. He was a wonderful natural athlete.

But this was all a spasmodic sort of athletics, bringing out a few winners and doing little for the soldiers who didn't have natural athletic ability or former experience on track and field. Our new army athletic system, designed to make fighters of the draft troops in the shortest possible time, patterned partly upon the Canadian system invented by Capt. Tom Flanagan, is altogether different. Under this system every man will be made into an athlete and developed to the extent of his capability.

Germans Think Canucks Crazy.

The Canadian officers say that the German troops are becoming afraid of the British fighters who come charging up kicking a football ahead of them as if in a game. To the stolid Germans this looks like a species of insanity. They don't know what to make of it, or of the fighting men who pay more attention to a football than to German bullets.

What will the Germans think when a million or more American athletes take up the game and play it with even more enthusiasm?

Boxing, according to Mr. Fosdik is to be one of the most important sports turned to army use. Boxing develops the qualities most needed in a soldier. It makes a man quick with hand and foot, gives a good idea of the way to avoid a blow or a bayonet thrust, develops cool self-control and teaches one to hit effectively. Bayonet fighting has been remodeled to follow the movements of boxing, which alone would make boxing the most important sport for a soldier to become expert in.

Our army is to have the benefit of coaching by a great number of the best boxers ever developed in this country. Many have already volunteered and scores more in the training camps. This will be a chance for skilled glove men to do more good than they could, individually, on the fighting line. It is better to turn out a hundred skillful fighters than to have one expert fighter and 99 novices. In England Driscoll, Wilde, Burge, Wells, Summers and scores of other well-known boxers are being used as instructors in the training camps and at the front.

"Waterloo was won on the cricket fields of England," said Wellington. The great war may be won in the boxing rings of America.

SUPERBAS DROP FABRIQUE.

NEW YORK, June 23.—It was announced by President Charles Ebbets of the Brooklyn club here today that Lavern (Bunny) Fabrique, the shortstop, who made such a good showing at the start of the season, had been released to the Toledo club of the American Association.

Mailed Fist Diplomacy Wins for McGraw

National League Heads Fear but Need Him

Heavy Hand and Caustic Speech His Chief Weapons

"Battling" John Has Lost Many Fights, but Very Few Refereed by the N. L. Directors—His Talent and His Club Are Both Necessities, Officials Seem to Believe.

By John E. Wray.

WHEN the National League directors last week, for the second time in two years, dolled up John J. "Battling" McGraw in a brand-new coat of whitewash, following a scathing denunciation of the league's president attributed to McGraw by New York newspaper writers, the baseball world wondered.

It wondered that McGraw's denial passed without any rebutting testimony being asked of the writers. It also wondered what influence McGraw wielded over the rest of the league that forced the directors to accept his seemingly unsupported statement.

McGraw's career has been a succession of broils, rows and recriminations, some of these hitting even at the throned leaders of the game. He has fought, baited, condemned, denounced and bulldozed throughout his career, if the stories that have from time to time appeared in print are to be believed.

He has even (on the field and during a world's series game) had the temerity to allege that the series was an American League frameup and that a brother of Connie Mack had been ordered to umpire the contest to make the result certain!

That was in 1911. The uncalled-for assault on the honesty of the game was allowed to pass by the National Commission with a mere censure.

Last year, toward the close of the season, this eaglet's temper led him into another attack that seemingly hit at the heart of the pastime.

In the course of a series with the Brooklyn team, McGraw, whose club was playing indifferent baseball, after having come up through the league substrata with a record of 26 successive victories, left the park during a game, saying, according to published stories: "My men are not trying to win," or words to that effect.

For this McGraw was called to account after the usual N. L. manner. He was exonerated, President Tener declaring the affair to be merely a disciplinary matter between McGraw and his men.

McGraw's punishment for his fight with Umpire Byron was a $500 fine and a suspension of 16 days—the heaviest blow ever dealt him. It is popularly believed, however, that his fine was not paid by himself and that his suspension merely transferred his activities from the bench to a seat in the box behind it.

McGraw Laughs at N. L.

THUS McGraw has, seemingly, been able to set at defiance the entire power of the National League. No other explanation of the directors' failure to do something more drastic can be given then that they need and fear the Little Napoleon, a wonderful baseball man, in many ways.

There are many who think that it is well for McGraw that his lot was cast in the National League and not in the American, where heads fall quickly when discipline is breached—as, for example, the case of George Stallings, who was dropped in midseason from the American League with a near-pennant winning combination.

McGraw's position is heavily intrenched. He not only is a man of great baseball capabilities, but he has behind him the support of the most important club in the league and the very best baseball team as well. A threat has been mentioned, in connection with the recent ragging of McGraw, according to which it was hinted the New York owners were prepared to quit the league and barnstorm the team, leaving the National high and dry.

High and dry is right. Without the Giants the league would have no grounds; also it would have no team, even if it had grounds. Without both, all the clubs of the league would suffer a financial knockout. For the other clubs of the league have come to batten and rely on the sustenance furnished by the Polo Grounds.

Mailed Fist Methods Win.

McGRAW'S climb to the top has been by right of conquest purely. No arts of cajolery or intrigue won him place. Diplomacy of the iron fist and vitriolic tongue cleared his way up. He was a two-handed fighter with the mauleys and a two-edged fencer with words. He could give or take with either. A fighter by nature, he thrived on what consumed the nervous force of his opponents.

Lacking in personal magnetism, he pounded and slogged his way up, standing flatly on his own self-reliant footing, waging a give-and-take fight with all challengers.

His intolerance of opposition and his desire to reap every advantage for himself and his men have led him into numerous arguments of all sorts ranging from mere verbal exchanges to rough-and-tumble fights.

McGraw's record as a battler is a lengthy one, but his victories are few and far between. He is credited with two decisions over "Bugs" Raymond in battles which grew out of McGraw's recriminations against his erratic pitcher because of his convivialities. The luster of these victories, however, is dimmed by the statement of ringside seat holders that Raymond was sadly out of condition. His other victory was over scrappy little Bill Byron, but it bids fair to prove a costly one.

When McGraw Was Whipped.

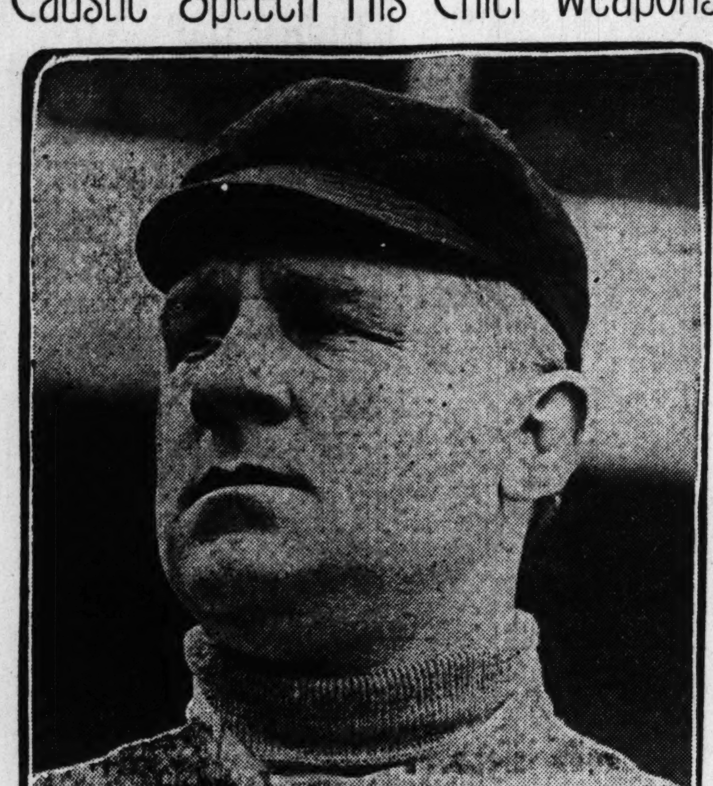
THE most decisive beating McGraw ever got came to him about a dozen years ago. He and Honest John Kelly had been in business together, running a billiard room. They fell out and after two years of ill feeling, met one night at Forty-second street and Broadway. Kelly tried to avoid a scrap, but McGraw was insistent and got it, and Kelly gave him a most unmerciful beating.

Another one of his battles which the compiler above quoted overlooked occurred in Havana in 1912. Arlie Latham was the historian of this affair. The Cubans were enthusiastic over the Giants, but McGraw was grouchy. Three fashionably dressed young Cubans met him accidentally in the cafe of his hotel and one, after congratulating him on the playing of his men, suggested it might make a better game if Mathewson should pitch for the Cubans and let the Cuban pitcher work for New York. McGraw answered, "It's bad enough to be playing against a bunch of smoked hams without having one of them play with you," and then the fracas started. It was a lively scrap until bystanders intervened and stopped it.

St. Louis fans will remember McGraw's attitude toward his duties while manager of the St. Louis club in 1899. Frank de Haas Robison bought him and Walbert Robinson from Baltimore, where they had a thriving cafe business. They protested bitterly against the transfer, but were forced to go West. McGraw showed his resentment by giving only perfunctory attention to his duties, spending most of his afternoons at the Fair Grounds race track across the street. His players, too, were far more interested in the race results than they were in the game they happened to be playing, and McGraw did not gain any of his laurels as "the little Napoleon of baseball" in St. Louis.

Thus far McGraw has won, in a baseball sense; but they are crowding him more and more. His methods are of the dark ages at times, and fans no longer go to ball games to see and encourage fighting.

Perhaps the time is arriving when McGraw, like Evers, will have to subside. When he does, as with Evers, it will probably mean a total eclipse.



JOHN J. "BATTLING" McGRAW,

Whose recent denial of newspaper interviews saved his face with the league, but caused an indignation session among New York newspaper men, who want the National League to reopen the case and hear their testimony.

CUBS TAKE TWO GAMES FROM PITTSBURG TEAM

PITTSBURG, June 23.—Chicago won both games from Pittsburg here today, 2 to 0 and 6 to 4. The second game went ten innings Douglass kept Pittsburg from scoring in the first game. Although Jacobs pitched well, he was hit opportunely.

In the second game, five pitchers were used, Chicago changing twice. It was a see-saw affair, the Chicago team scoring mainly on the misplays of Pittsburg players. Each side tied the count twice. In the tenth inning three hits by Merkle, Deal and Wortman scored two runs and won the game. Scores: First game:

CHAPMAN'S BOOT BEATS INDIANS IN 15 INNINGS

CHICAGO, June 23.—Chicago and Cleveland battled 15 innings and the former won out 2 to 1, when Chapman allowed McMullin's grounder to go through him. E. Collins opened the inning with a walk and went to second on a sacrifice. J. Collins fouled out and Gandil was purposely passed. Coveleskie then retired and Bagby took the mound. McMullen then hit to Chapman and the ball went through the shortstop and E. Collins scored.

Hawaiian Horrors.

THERE was a young fellow named Haley.
Who purchased a small ukulele;
To the neighbors' dismay
He proceeded to play
On that torturing instrument daily.

The neighbors rose up and protested
And had the offender arrested;
They burst into cheers
When he got twenty years,
And now live in peace, unmolested.

Don't Pick on It.

The ukulele is all right if you let it alone. It doesn't bother anybody till you start to picking on it.

Now is a good time to visit the Hawaiian Islands while the ukulele players are all over in this country.

Revenge.

The only way to get even with Hawaii would be for somebody to go over there and start a cornet epidemic.

The Colonel said it looked like first division for the Cardinals. We give you this information for what it is worth.

Coming as it does from an expert first division prognosticator like Col. Hedges, we are inclined to give three rousing cheers for the Cardinals and a flock of tigers for Rickey and Huggins to split between 'em.

A. A. A. Net Stars Annex 7 Matches From M.A.A. Team

Drewes and Josties Help to Defeat Former Mates in Interclub Competition.

The Triple A tennis team continued its brilliant tournament play and lengthened its string of seven consecutive matches to 14. This time the Municipal A. A. was victimized, the Triple A entrants annexing seven matches at their expense yesterday afternoon The Triple A entrants lost but one set in 14, that being lost by Von Reppert to Hollingshead by a score of 7—5. Several of the Triple A men were former Municipal players and they aided considerably in bringing about the downfall of their former teammates.

A coincidence brought Ted Drewes and Vic Satterfield together in the first singles match. These two boys were formerly teammates on Yeatman High School's championship tennis team. Drewes easily won, 6—2, 6—0. Von Reppert and Hollingshead staged a nip and tuck match which took three sets to decide. Von Reppert won the first, 7—5, while in the second his rival just reversed these figures. Von Reppert won the third set, 6—3. Triple A does not play again until July 14.

SINGLES.

T. Drewes defeated V. Satterfield, 6—2, 6—0.

Von Reppert defeated Hollingshead, 7—5, 5—7, 6—3.

Josties defeated Finger, 8—6, 6—3.

Gautier defeated Rice, 6—4, 6—0.

DOUBLES.

Obear Beats Schneider.

The fourth round of the Triple A Club championship tourney was played yesterday afternoon. Of the five matches played, two were defaulted. Reismeyer defaulted to F. X. Muckerman and M. D. McDonald defaulted to Howard Gautier. McDonald has blood poisoning in his right hand and is in a serious condition, according to club members.

Davison Obear won in straight sets from W. R. Schneider, 6-2, 6-0. C. M. Fraizer encountered a stubborn resistance in the person of G. T. Johnson The match went three sets. Frazier won the first set, 9—7, while Johnson evened the count in the next set, winning, 7—5. Frazier won the next set and the match, 6-3. In the doubles Josties and Drewes defeated Mantor and Wood, 6-3, 6-2.

MORAN TO CONCEDE FULTON 40 POUNDS IN JULY 3 CONTEST

Bout Will Serve to Show Off Man Who Will Be Matched With Jess Willard.

Fred Fulton has filled the mind's eye for the fight fan much more satisfactorily since his defeat of the black dreadnought, Sam Langford, at Boston recently. His appearance here on the night of July 3 against Frank Moran, therefore, takes on a new significance, especially as it is now given out that Fulton is virtually matched for a battle with Jess Willard at Cedar Point, O., date unsettled, for a $50,000 purse.

Fulton is the youngest of the Behemoth class which, at present includes the Gargantuans Jess Willard and Carl Morris, besides himself. On a basis of altitude and bulk these men are the most formidable super-fighting machines of the ring today—certainly of the white fighters.

Morris and Willard are both nearing 30—they admit that much, whereas Fulton is only 26 and coming. He has the best chance to survive of all of them and therefore, as a potential title holder, he gains considerable interest, despite his defeat by the lumbering Carl Morris, the human tractor.

When Fulton shows against Moran here too much must not be expected of the contest, since his young opponent will weigh scarcely more than 175 pounds and will be at a disadvantage in height and reach. Moran is a good, game boy. He knows Fulton, for he formerly was his sparring partner. Fulton's present manager, Mike Collins, speaks in high praise of Moran.

It is improbable that Moran will be a dangerous opponent for the plasterer, although he is game and strong and willing. He has fought men who would be favored over Fulton, were they matched with Fred for a short bout, namely Jack Dillon, Bat Levinsky and Gunboat Smith. He will undoubtedly make Fulton show what he owns, at the very least.

The bout will take place in the open air at Federal Park, and is the most important heavyweight feature scheduled here since the appearance of Battling Levinsky.

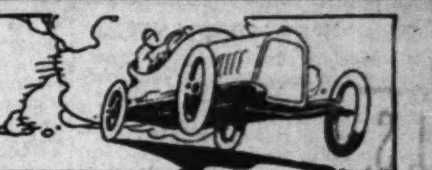
AUTOMOBILE NEWS



SHOW NEW SERIES WOODS DUAL POWPER

The Woods Electric Vehicle Co., 437 North Euclid avenue, has just received another shipment of Dual Power cars from the factory in Chicago. This season the factory brought out a luxury model of their former Dual Power which introduces decided innovations.

Its power has been doubled, and it has a much longer wheel base than the previous model.

The lines of the car are beautiful and symmetrical. Aside from the strictly mechanical improvements, many exclusive refinements have been added, such as automatic window lifters, adjustable rain shield, rear vision mirror running across the entire front, greater conveniences in light switches and many other details which make for comfort.

However, it is the principles of the Dual Power construction that will continue to interest owners, for it is a car without gears—no going through first, second and third every time the car comes to a stop—no changing at critical moments.

Controlling the car by the operation of one food pedal, the driver of a Dual Power wastes neither physical nor mental energy, giving undivided attention to road and steering wheel.

Two other Dual Power features are the dynamic braking which harnesses momentum and saves tires and brake linings. It holds back the car on grades without the assistance of the mechanical brake, at the same time storing electric power for future needs.

This auxiliary electric power absolutely precludes stalling. Even if you killed the engine in front of an express train, this power would keep the car going without reduction of speed.

Mr. MacCarthy, the local manager, says that Dual Power sells to owners of both gas and electric cars. The Dual Power will do anything that a gas car will do, and yet is as simple to control as an electric; and the former admirer of an electric appreciates the advantage of greater speed and the fact that the battery may be charged while the car is running on the streets.

MAKING DELIVERIES ON DAY OF ORDER

These are days of unusual activity around the big new home of the Brandle Motors Co., Locust-Lindell cutoff and Olive street. Less than a month ago the Brandle Co. moved into the Chevrolet building and added the Chevrolet to its Westcott line, which has meant the rebuilding of an entire sales and service organization.

During the past three weeks the new Brandle home has been overhauled from top to bottom. Workmen have just completed the installation of modern equipment in the service department, which occupies the entire second floor of the building and many changes have been made in the arrangement of offices and sales rooms.

"We are ready now for the greatest season in our history," said T. C. Brandle, president of the Brandle Motors Co. "Prospects never have looked brighter than at present and we do not anticipate any difficulty in securing the large allotment of Westcott cars we will sell this year. Of course, there will be no trouble in making Chevrolet deliveries because of the St. Louis factory's large daily production. Right now we are making Chevrolet deliveries the same day orders are placed."

The Post-Dispatch is the only evening newspaper in St. Louis that receives or publishes news gathered by the Associated Press.

GRANT'S HARD JOURNEY

The most perilous journey ever made by an automobile was made by a Grant six in crossing the Sierras and going from San Francisco to Lake Tahoe, according to reports received by J. Curtis Barcus of the St. Louis-Grant Motor Co. Buffeted by terrific snowstorms which held the nervy driver up for days at a time, confronted at times with the necessity of lowering the car down a mountain side with ropes, buried out of sight in drifts which reduced progress to one mile in fourteen hours, the Grant six finally emerged without having made a single repair and on the original tires with original San Francisco air in them.

The exploit was financed by the Frank O. Renstrom Co., Grant distributors in California. It took two months of actual traveling. Score of times the drivers of the car believed their last time had come. Probably no more hazardous undertaking was ever accomplished with an automobile.

PLENTY OF MONEY AND EASY TIMES AHEAD

"If there is one thing that the American people do not have to fear in connection with the present war, it is business depression," says James E. Newell, president Newell Motor Car Company, St. Louis, Haynes distributor.

"Instead of facing an industrial cessation, the United States stands on the threshold of an era of prosperity, and just as soon as we have readjusted ourselves to present conditions, all the lines of business which temporarily slowed down with the declaration of war and the passing of conscription measures, will swing into healthy, vigorous pace.

"It is only natural to expect that the American people will put a fair share of their surplus money into Government bonds, but three, or even four Liberty Loans of the size of the present one could be floated without a noticeable tightening in the nation's finances.

"The fact that the Government is borrowing is not to be taken as evidence that the money will go out of circulation in this country. In truth it means the existence of practically the opposite conditions since the greater part of the Government moneys will be immediately spent for supplies. This is in strong contrast to the European countries who are pouring their hoards into the United States for the purchase of materials to effectively prosecute the war.

"Present conditions can only mean one thing, and that is domestic conditions will be even more prosperous than they have been in the past. The American family, which is the determining factor of depression or prosperity, will do its share in making its usual purchases of food, clothing, building materials, house furnishings and motor cars."

ROLLERS TRAVEL TEN TIMES AROUND WORLD

"One would naturally think that the strenuous usage to which the bearings of a car are subjected in traveling a distance of more than 10 times around the world would result in appreciable signs of wear," says B. G. Koether, general sales manager of the Hyatt Roller Bearing Co. "Yet the bearings in 'The Hyatt Roller,' the world's record car now touring the United States, offer authentic proof to the contrary.

"Before starting on its present tour, this car had covered a distance of 261,800 miles on its original set of Hyatt bearings. We are curious to know what effect such unusual service would have upon the bearings and so, before sending out the car on its present test, we had the bearings removed and carefully examined. No signs of wear were perceptible to the naked eye and it was only when the bearings were measured by delicate instruments that any difference in size could be detected. The measurements taken showed that the actual decrease in size was hardly five one-thousandths of an inch.

"The bearings in question were manufactured nine years ago, the 'Hyatt Roller' being a 1909, Model 16 Buick. Their composition is a form of chrome vanadium steel, treated by a special process to insure a degree of hardness capable of resisting the wear to which automobile bearings are subjected. A number of improvements have since been made in the manufacturing process, with the result that the motorist of today may expect the Hyatt bearings in his car to give even greater service than that rendered by those in this car holding the world's mileage record."

LACK OF GEAR - SHIFT LEVER SAVES A LIFE

A magnetic gear shift is usually considered an aid to easy driving but Fred Scheiss has good reason to regard it as a safety device as well.

Last Monday a new 7-passenger Premier was delivered to him at Alton, Ill., by the Hudson-Reed Motor Co. Two days later, as he was driving to St. Louis, in passing another machine the car left the road and turned turtle.

Scheiss, who was driving, was pinned under the car, being thrown forward with a great deal of force. When the car was righted he was found to have sustained only a few bruises.

Had it not been for the absence of the gear shifting lever he would not have lived to tell the tale, for he feels certain the lever would have been driven through his body.

The car, after being righted, was driven back to Alton on its own power. The eight-inch frame had withstood the shock so firmly that neither the frame nor the body were sprung out of line. Two new fenders, a windshield and a top and the car will be as good as ever.

MERCER AGAIN HAS ST. LOUIS REPRESENTATIVE

Arrangement was completed last week by G. W. Simmons, sales manager of Mercer Automobile Company of Trenton, N. J., whereby the Mercer line, which has not been represented in St. Louis for some time, will, after July 1, be handled by the McFarlan Sales Company, 2646 Locust.

The Mercer line consists of four body styles ranging in price from $3200 to $3500 and will fit in well with the McFarlan Six. The first of the Mercer cars for St. Louis will leave the factory by express about the first of July.

S. Bernheimer, president of the McFarlan Sales Company will be in Kansas City this week where he plans to establish a branch house, will look after the distribution in the western part of the territory, the company's contract covering Southern Illinois, and all of Missouri and Kansas on both the McFarlan Six and the Mercer.

WINS BIG RIM SUIT

The Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., has just won its fight against the Perlman Rim Co., the latter company having sought to prevent the Firestone from manufacturing demountable rim. The suit of the Perlman company against the Perlman Welding Co., in February, 1916, was won by the Perlman company, and the patent sustained.

Buy Your Jeffery Six Now While Present Price Is In Force

This is your opportunity to save $150 to $200. Motor car prices are on the rise. Present price of Jeffery Six cannot be maintained indefinitely — certainly not after present supply of raw materials is exhausted. Place your order now!

NASH Jeffery MOTORS

THE cost of raw materials has gone up between twenty and fifty per cent during the past few months, and prices are still rising. Forty-four automobile manufacturers have already been forced to announce price raises due to this condition alone.

But because the Jeffery Six is manufactured ninety-three per cent in the Nash factory, because we are thus obliged to buy our materials far in advance, and in large quantities, we have been practically unaffected by the rising cost of materials.

That is why we say to you that the Jeffery Six today would cost between $150 and $200 more if it were an assembled car—if we had to go out in the market now to secure our supplies.

It is certain we cannot maintain this present price indefinitely — certainly not after our present stock of materials is exhausted.

Please remember that this is the new Jeffery Six, the leader in its field. It has been refined and improved. It has the unqualified backing of The Nash Motors Company.

Your opportunity is here if you act quickly. See your dealer at once. Arrange for a demonstration. This car will please you as it has pleased thousands of Jeffery owners. Buy and you will congratulate yourself on your shrewdness.

NEW TIRE GUARANTEE.

Instead of guaranteeing Amazon tires for a definite number of miles, their new guarantee reads "the mileage rendered is guaranteed to be satisfactory to the consumer."

In this way, if the customer feels that he has not purchased his tire mileage at the lowest possible price, he is at liberty to bring the tire back.

TIRES HELPED GAS RECORD

Ray F. McNamara uses United States "Royal Cord" tires exclusively in making gasoline economy demonstrations for the Maxwell Motor Car Co. His highest record on one gallon of gasoline was made on the Pacific coast last year when he established a record of 45.6 miles. McNamara asserts that "Royal Cords" are great assets for increasing mileage.

In driving for intercity road records, of which he now holds twenty in various parts of the country, McNamara uses United States "Chain Tread" tires.

THE OLYMPIAN TOURING CAR.

CHOSE BRIGHT COLORS FOR NEW OLYMPIAN

"While the Olympian is practically a new car on the market, it is really backed by fifteen years of experience" says H. H. Speany, assistant salesmanager of the Olympian Motor Co., who is in St. Louis helping the new Olympian distributor, the Welling Motor Equipment Co., perfect its dealer organization.

R. A. Palmer, the designer and builder of the new Olympian for more than fifteen years has served in similar capacity with some of the largest motor car manufacturers. Before starting the selling campaign, production was under way on a large scale and territory was only closed as production would enable the factory to guarantee deliveries.

The company has now moved from its first factory of 40,000 square feet to its permanent location in Pontiac, Mich., where it has 225,000 square feet.

Several innovations were made in the Olympian models. Mr. Palmer decided that the public was tired of the somber colors and he chose a light gray and a dark blue as standard both having white wheels. Another new feature is that much so-called extra equipment is made standard, as each car has an extra tire, bumper, spotlight, and motometer besides the usual accessories.

The Welling Motor Equipment Co., 5033 Delmar bl., have adopted a liberal service policy for the new cars. Each owner will be given 50 hours of service free, which can be extended over an unlimited period. The service station will be open day and night and weekly inspections will be requested. Last week five important points in the territory were closed with 25 car contacts.

The new Olympian is made in two body styles, a 5-passenger touring and a 4-passenger roadster. Among the mechanical features are full floating rear axles, full cantilever springs and a 3¾x4¼ four cylinder power plant.

MORELAND TRUCK HERE FROM FAR CALIFORNIA

The Moreland truck, which left San Francisco a little more than four weeks ago with the caravan of advertising men, headed for the Advertising Convention in St. Louis, reached here last week. The entire route of 3348 miles was made under its own power, road conditions having caused most of the other cars to either abandon the trip or to ship part of the distance. It was necessary to lay up the truck thirteen days because of impassable roads. Practically no mechanical troubles were experienced.

One of the most remarkable features of the trip was that the original California air still remained in one of the Goodyear cord casings. Punctures prevented this on the other three tires, although the original casings showed but little wear from the long, hard grind.

By use of the patent carburetor and manifold, the Moreland operated on distillate instead of gasoline. The fuel economy of distillate, which costs but 8 cents per gallon, has been quite a feature on the Pacific Coast for the Moreland.

The truck was in charge of M. W. Ferguson, technical engineer of the Moreland factory, who will remain in St. Louis to meet President Moreland, who is returning from the East.

NOTED AVIATRIX BUYS A MITCHELL

Among the more recent people of prominence to join the ranks of Mitchell satisfied owners is Miss Katherine Stinson, the "little lady from Texas," who has thrilled thousands by her daring feats in her aeroplane.

Miss Stinson decided to buy a motor car while on a visit to her San Antonio home recently and with the true characteristic of her sex insisted on seeing and investigating every automobile for sale in that vicinity. And while Miss Stinson has a woman's love for beauty, her mechanical knowledge gained through her profession, led her to insist on stability plus beauty in the purchase of an automobile.

Miss Stinson is as adept at the wheel of her new Mitchell as at the control levers of her biplane and is so thoroughly attached to her new purchase that she is having it shipped to New York, where she is now trying out a new 150 horse power army plane with which she expects to break all records for long distance flights.

REO WINS VALVE SUIT

Another patent decision that will have a far-reaching effect on the automobile industry was that handed down by Judge Hazel of New York the other day in the case of William Barber vs. the Reo Motor Car Company in which the learned jurist exonerated the big Lansing manufacturer of the charge of infringing Barber's patent on a valve mechanism.

This was the case in which the patentee sought to recover the huge sum of $1,500,000 from the motor car manufacturer for alleged infringement of an ancient patent.

OFFICE FORCE HELPED CRATE 500 TRACTORS

The Missouri Tractor Sales Co., 218 North Eighteenth street, St. Louis, has just received word of a big accomplishment by the E. G. Straude Manufacturing Co., which makes the Staude Mak-a-Tractor.

An order was received for 500 of the Staude Mak-a-Tractors. At once the entire force of the factory was put to work, and a carload of lumber was sawed by hand for crates. The tractors were crated and loaded into express cars. The work began at 7 o'clock Saturday morning and Sunday at noon the special express train loaded with 500 Staude Mak-a-Tractors was taken away by an engine. The shipment went by express straight through to London, England., a steamer having been held two days for the shipment. Machinists, office men, salesmen and demonstrators all became carpenters on this occasion.

OIL MAN TOURING WITH CAMP OUTFIT

Johnny Webb, the oil magnate from Houston, Texas, is touring the U. S. in an Oakland "8" car. He passed through St. Louis last week, stopping for a short time at the Sperreng-Oakland Automobile Co. salesrooms. He will drive through Chicago and Detroit into Canada and then return through the New England States, and south along the Atlantic coast to Florida and will reach Houston early in September. He carries a full camp equipment, which he and his family use when they fail to reach a hotel.

Throughout the entire film, the Jeffery Quad is much in evidence.

CHANDLER PRICE RAISE OF $200 COMES JULY 1

The Lewis Automobile Co. was advised last week by the Chandler factory that no additional cars could be shipped before the $200 raise in price which takes effect July 1. This leaves the regular allotment to take care of the unusually heavy demand created by the coming increase. The fact that the Chandler, after July 1, is to be identical with the present model, with the exception of the price, has caused the Lewis organization to do the biggest business in its history in the last five weeks, and they expect that every available Chandler will be sold long before the closing date of the present prices.

M'ADOO'S RELATIVE MAKES LONG DRIVE

James T. McAdoo, a close relative of Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, was in St. Louis last Thursday, driving in his Moon 66. Mr. McAdoo is a special service man for the Government and has driven his car all over the Central West since he bought it last September from the Moon Motor Car Co. in St. Louis.

During that time he has covered some of the worst roads in the West and Southwest and his report to the Moon Motor Car Co., where he went for brake adjustment, was that he had not spent 15 cents for mechanical trouble of any kind since he bought his car.

JORDAN BRINGS OUT A SPORTY ROADSTER

One of the snappiest sport models ever offered the public made its debut this week when the Jordan Motor Car Co. of Cleveland announced that it was ready to make deliveries of its new "Sixty" Sport Roadster, which will be handled locally by the Jordan Sales Co., 4152 Olive street.

Like all other Jordan models, this new roadster differs from the rank and file. Those who have seen it declare it to be just about three jumps ahead of any other car in its price class.

It is finished in three dashing colors that make it absolutely distinctive among other cars on the street. A "Mercedes" red, for the young fellow who is always going somewhere with somebody he likes pretty well. A "Liberty" blue for the busy man of affairs to whom a light, snappy, quick-get-away car is a necessity. A "Briarcliff" green, for the woman who likes a get-up-and-go atmosphere in her car for busy mornings, and the holiday sport appearance for leisurely afternoons.

The new Jordan roadster is 200 pounds lighter than the previous model and is equipped with special Vanadium steel steel springs. The rear springs are 59 inches long.

It is geared 4½ to 1 and on numerous road tests has done better than 60 miles an hour without coaxing.

In designing the car special attention was given to the body lines so that from whatever angle you view it, the effect is the same—a low, rakish combination of curves from stem to stern.

GIRL CIRCLES CONTINENT

Miss Ruby Archambeau of Portland, Ore., has just completed a trip of more than 18,000 miles in her Marmon 34. Accompanied by Miss Grace Buckingham of Milford, Conn., Miss Archambeau drove across the continent, then from New York to Miami, Florida, then west to Los Angeles, and north again to her home, spending eleven months on the trip.

The ease of handling and simplicity of operation of the Marmon 34 were demonstrated strikingly by this trip, as Miss Archambeau and her chum traveled most of the way alone, and only some girls who were college acquaintances traveled with them during the trip. No man assisted in the driving any time and Miss Archambeau found little difficulty in caring for her Marmon during her long journey.

MEXICANS BUYING CARS

According to reports which have come to Stewart McDonald, vice president and general manager of the Moon Motor Car Co. of St. Louis, the situation has been well "ironed out" in Mexico, and that country is now open as a market for the United States in general and St. Louis in particular.

From a letter from Eduardo H. Serrano, representative of the Moon company in Mexico and Central America, merchants are buying and the people are buying in all parts of Mexico at this time, except around Chihuahua. Everybody seems to have money, and everybody is willing to spend it for necessities and luxuries. An automobile comes under both headings.

Thursday orders were received by Moon company from R. Montval of Valparaiso, Chile, for nine Moon cars. Mr. Montval visited the Moon factory and placed the order for the nine, and insisted on shipment that day of four of the cars.

Peerless
"All that the name implies"

Race with the Hare
—Hunt with the Hounds

You can—in your Peerless Eight—for it has two separate and distinct power ranges that give it a "dual personality."

The "Loafing" Range

In its "loafing" range you may "race with the hare." You have the nimble "getaway" for quick acceleration at all speeds, you have the soft, smooth, purring motor that will wind its way through traffic taking the slow crawl or the swift spurt, or the smooth, even gait—everything required in ordinary driving—with the utmost grace and distinction.

You would imagine that the car was designed and built only for that kind of work and to utterly excel in it. In ordinary driving it performs entirely in its "loafing" range at half rations, using fuel so sparingly as to shame many a six of less power—even many a four.

The "Sporting" Range

But when you want to "hunt with the hounds" you have a brute of a car ready to pace the best of the pack. You have only to open your throttle wider to call upon your "sporting" range and utterly change the character of your motor.

That same softly purring motor now utters a deep growl of brute power. No ordinary car can hold with you now. You have unleashed eighty horsepower on full rations and few indeed are the cars that can contend with you—only the few that are built especially for thundering speed and prodigious feats of power without regard for the gentler virtues which the Peerless exhibits in its "loafing" range.

Let us demonstrate what it means to drive a car capable of almost unbelievable contrasts of performance, a car that will maximize your pleasure yet minimize your expense.

MADE LOW GEAR TEST.

The first low-gear test of long duration to be made by an automobile was successfully completed several days ago by a Chalmers five-passenger stock car which was driven through the streets of St. Paul and Minneapolis. The test lasted 24 hours without the motor being stopped.

The trial was made under direction of W. F. Sturm, Chalmers contest manager, and sanction No. 1027 was secured from the American Automobile Association. L. A. Hillman, technical representative from Chicago, had charge of the test for the A. A. A. The car averaged slightly more than 10 miles an hour throughout the test, covering 257.6 miles in 24 hours. Oil consumption was three quarts. Four gallons of water was used. Despite the adverse conditions of the test from the standpoint of economy possibilities, the car averaged 7.36 miles per gallon of gasoline.

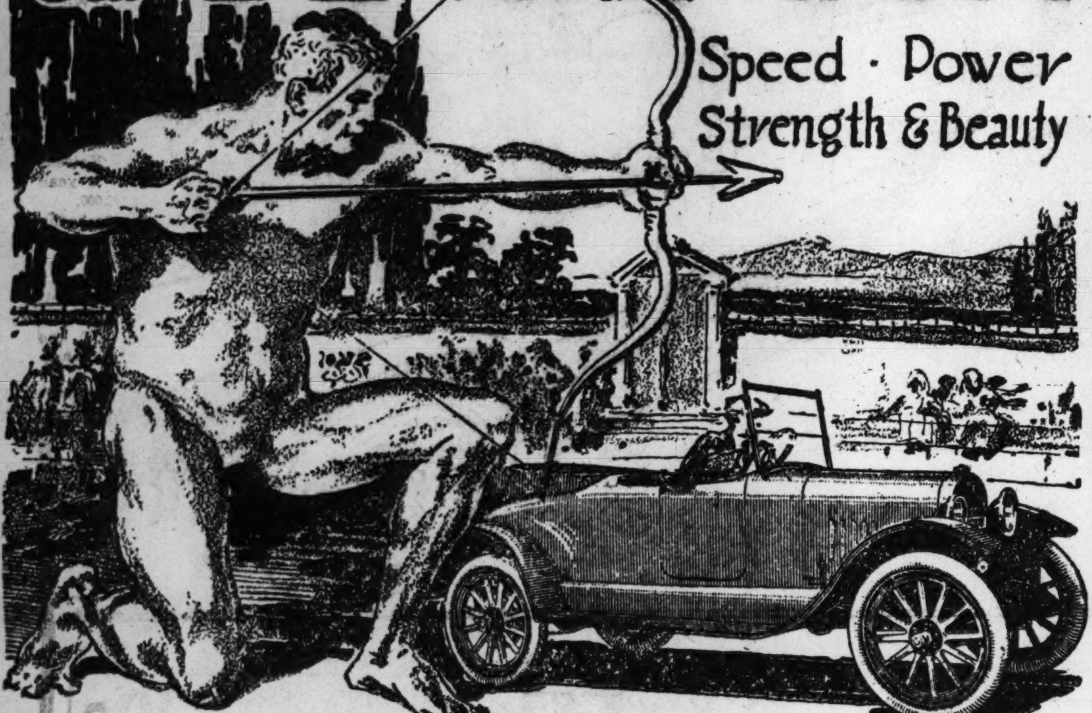
The Car OLYMPIAN



THE attainment of features long desired. "Live"—in a flash it's away. Or it starts gently and glides away noiselessly—slowly. Passersby turn and gaze after it—because its ensemble is "smart"—because it looks substantial, yet full grace and beauty of line are retained. No matter if the way be rough, its passenger enjoys real riding-comfort—no recoil devices are needed, as there's no "throw" nor jolt to the springs. The face of its owner shows contentment and the pride of ownership—and, if he be the driver, confidence is there also.

Again We Say "Luxury With Economy"

In the construction of the Olympian, a few of the ultra-refinements of the big, costly car have been dispensed with. Also its excessive weight and its many-cylindered motor with its voracious appetite for gasoline. Thus the Olympian has the economy of the small car—small consumption of fuel—easy on tires. Yet it has none of the discomforts of the small car—lack of room—hard riding qualities—lack of style. Truly, it combines "LUXURY with ECONOMY."

Why It Pleases Experienced Automobilists

Full streamline design with nominal sacrifice in width—splendid coachwork—long wheelbase — luxurious upholstering — long, easy-riding springs (rear, full cantilever) —extra strength in all parts subject to strain —extra powerful and quick-acting brakes —a three-point suspension, non-vibrating crankshaft—full-floating rear axle—a high-speed engine of ample power—a real one-man top—COMPLETE EQUIPMENT, speedometer, spotlight, bumper, spare tire, etc.—the ONLY car with complete equipment priced under $1000.

The Prudent Motorist

For the prudent motorist who desires the luxury of the big, costly cars—but who thinks it not advisable to pay the excessive cost of upkeep. For the motorist who has owned a small, cheap car and who is, therefore, heartily tired of its discomforts and embarrassment. For these two types of motorists is the Car Olympian admirably adapted.

AUTO DEALERS TO HAVE NATIONAL ORGANIZATION

More than 10,000 organized automobile dealers in the United States will be represented at the convention of automobile distributors and dealers in the La Salle Hotel, Chicago, July 10 and 11, by 150 delegates appointed to organize the National Automobile Dealers' Association. The delegates to the convention will represent 32 states and about 100 automobile dealers and automobile trade associations including the St. Louis Automobile Manufacturers' and Dealers' Association. There will also be a number of delegates from unorganized territory and representatives of state organizations on the roll call.

George W. Browns and Bart J. Ruddle, Milwaukee, are serving as chairman and secretary of the temporary convention, and the organization Committee consists of Albert T. Clark, Kansas City, Kan.; G. A. Will, Minneapolis, Minn.; Edwin P. Bodley, Chicago, and Ernest T. Conlon, Grand Rapids, Mich.

LONG TIRE SERVICE.

A tire performance which is believed to be a record, is reported by Mr. R. C. Shumway, who is operating a Chandler car in jitney service in Seattle, Wash. The Goodyear cord tires on the rear wheels of this car have now given 29,000 miles of service over the city streets and do not show any signs of going out of commission as yet. This tire performance is the more remarkable when it is remembered that frequently the tires have carried heavy overloads.

NEW SUBSTITUTE FOR GASOLINE TRIED

"Nuoline," a new substitute for gasoline, which seems on the surface to be a real substitute, was tested out at the West Side Y. M. C. A. Automobile School, New York, with the heads of the Atkinson and Strobridge schools as observers.

M. Louis Clemont, the inventor, supervised the test, with the help of his asociate, Robert Grogan, an assistant in the Secretary of State's local automobile office. A King Eight engine used for shop instruction was first used. The gas was disconnected and the vacuum tank drained and then filled with nuoline. Principal H. C. Brokaw pushed the starter button and the engine started on the first turn. To all appearance the new fuel did its wortk perfectly. The engine ran much smoother than with gasoline, and when the petcocks were opened the explosion was found to be quite as snappy as from gasoline, while the flame was blue, instead of reddish, showing a more perfect combustion. It is claimed that there is no carbon formed by nuoline, and that it will burn out carbon formed by the use of gasoline. The engine ran until the vacuum tank was empty and a second trial showed the same results.

M. Clemont explained that the Nuoline was really three-fifths water and that the other ingredients were so cheap and so unlimited in supply that the cost would be practically stationary. He thought perhaps, if the price of coal keeps going skyward, it might make a cent or two difference in the price but with a manufacturing cost of 2½ cents a gallon, not including overhead charges, it will be possible to sell the nuoline at 10 cents a gallon and leave a fair margin of profit.

HARD DRIVE PREVENTS A MEXICAN RAID

A Willys-Knight Four prevented a repetition of the Columbus, N. M., disaster at Clarkdale, Ariz., several days ago, according to advices received by T. L. Hausmann, the local Willys-Overland dealer.

Clarkdale and Jerome are two small copper mining camps located in the mountains, 70 miles from Prescott.

Not long ago the Mexicans in that vicinity began massing for trouble. Before the Americans were able to realize the gravity of the situation, the Mexicans had bought up all the ammunition in the camp. All evidences pointed toward another massacre of Americans, when Thomas Taylor, superintendent of the United Verde Copper Co., in that district discovered the trend of affairs.

He at once dispatched his Willys-Knight four for Prescott to get ammunition and rifles, and after a trip which threatened to wreck the car at every turn, got back to Clarkdale with 2000 rounds of ammunition and a number of rifles.

The shipment averted trouble in the nick of time, as the Mexicans had just formed for the attack when the news reached them that the ammunition and rifles had gotten through.

CAR INCREASES EFFICIENCY

"'Buy a Liberty Bond and step lively,' is my advice to all those who ask me what the civilian can do to help win the war, said J. E. Newell, Haynes Light Six distributor in St. Louis yesterday.

"Every civilian who has been doing useful work in peace times can make that same work doubly useful in war times, for the efficiency of our industrial and agricultural organization is just as material to eventual successes as are the accomplishments of our soldiers and sailors.

"It is the obligation of the farmer to raise more crops, of the manufacturer of necessities to make more goods, of the railroads to increase transportation facilities, of the middleman to keep production moving, of the doctor at home to take care of the patients of the doctor at the front—of every man to carry on his work with more speed and more skill. Everyone must be an actual or contributing producer and in the latter class I can think of none more important than the man who sells automobiles.

"I believe that by putting automobiles in the hands of new owners, or selling present owners cars that will serve them better, I am doing a real service to the Government. I believe that each and every salesman who is not drafted for military duty will be able right here to contribute a creditable share toward winning the war for an automobile will increase any man's efficiency 100 per cent.

SHE DRIVES AMBULANCE

Ethel Staples is an Englishwoman. More than that, she drives a war ambulance. More than that, she gives it complete care.

Miss Staples volunteers this information in a letter from London to the Cadillac Motor Car Co. She says that she has driven an eight-cylinder Cadillac ambulance seven days a week for the past three months, and that everything has gone and is going lovely. In her letter she asks for a book of instruction, so that she may familiarise herself more thoroughly with the car's mechanical construction.

COLE CLAIMS RECORD.

Officials of the Cole Motor Car Co. are jubilant over a stock car demonstration of the Cole Eight just reported to the factory from Norfolk, Neb.

On high gear and at a speed of 15 miles an hour, the powerful Cole Eight went over the famous Louis Wachter hill at Norfolk. Automobile men in that district declare that it is the only car which ever crossed this hump on high and but few of the big cars ever made it on second. In fact, many of them have failed to make the grade in low.

Studebaker

ANNOUNCEMENT

THE increased cost of materials and labor may force us to make an advance in prices at any time without notice. But you may buy your new Studebaker car today and be assured that no sudden change in models will discount or depreciate the value of your purchase. There will be no change in Studebaker models this year.

Furthermore, your investment in a Studebaker car is protected and safe, and it is much more likely to appreciate in value than depreciate.

The sturdy quality, the splendid value, the proven dependability and durability of the present models will be continued.

Studebaker daily sales continue to show that the public is quick to recognize, and always to give its support to an honest, well made product, the value and service of which have been proven in actual performance.

Their power, their easy riding features, their freedom from trouble have made Studebaker cars leaders in every part of the country where automobiles are subjected to the hardest use.

The most recent proof of their durability is the performance of two Studebaker cars taken directly from a dealer's stock on the trip of the San Francisco Ad Club to the recent St. Louis convention.

Both these Studebaker cars came over the snow filled passes of the Rocky mountains, through seas of hub deep gumbo mud on the Western Plains and finished in perfect running condition

Further evidence of Studebaker dependability is shown by the popularity of Studebaker cars in California, where people test and prove their cars by continuous service every day in the year and where there are more Studebakers registered than any car selling at over $500.

In Detroit where 80% of all cars are made, where thousands of people are directly connected with the industry, where they know the materials and workmanship that go into cars and the organizations behind them, there are more Studebakers registered than any other car selling at over $500.

The foregoing is proof that people who know cars from service rendered and people best equipped to judge automobile values prefer Studebakers.

There could be no better guide than this for you in purchasing your car.

More than 300,000 Studebaker cars in every part of the world have made good in the hands of their owners—as yours will make good for you.

PLAZA AND PARK OPPOSITE UNION STATION PLANNED

PROPERTY OWNERS FAVOR PROJECT

Sale of Nearby Half Block as Business Sites Suggested as Method of Raising Fund for Paying Cost of Proposed Improvement.

By Berry Moore.

John A. Watkins is endeavoring to interest the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange in plans for a plaza and park to embrace the city block opposite Union Station and extending from Eighteenth to Nineteenth streets.

The plan provides for the condemnation of this block and the half block on the north side of Chestnut street from Eighteenth to Nineteenth streets, and for the subdivision of the latter block into sites of uniform size except the corners, the dimensions of which will be large or small, as may be deemed best. It is proposed to resell these lots as sites and to use the proceeds to pay for the block opposite Union Station, and to embellish its as a plaza and park.

As the city block proposed to be subdivided and sold would dominate the plaza and park and Union Station, it would form alluring sites for business enterprises, especially for high-class shops, hotels and cafes and automobile show windows.

These sites, the value of which would be greatly enhanced by the civic project, would command prices which would go a long way toward paying for the block for the plaza and park, it is pointed out. The balance of the money, Watkins suggested, might be forthcoming from the Terminal Railway Association, which would be the greatest single beneficiary. The city could well afford to defray the cost of the execution of the plaza and park, which would transform into a beauty spot a section that is an eye-sore and reproach to the city, according to Watkins.

Realty Agents Favor Project.

Watkins is urging an early meeting of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange, of which he is a member, to consider his plaza and park plan. The project, many real estate agents believe, would appeal to property owners in the block opposite Union Station, which is largely occupied by saloon and cheap resorts. They further declare that the improvement would reflect a civic pride and create an impression on visitors that would be well worth the cost.

Property owners on Market and Chestnut streets who have been approached by Watkins in this connection are enthusiastic over the idea, he says, and many of them intimate that they will be willing to pay their proportion of the cost in event a benefit district is established to raise funds to carry out the plan.

According to real estate experts, this project would have a wholesome effect on Chestnut and Market streets between Jefferson avenue and Twelfth street, which now is in process of transition.

Commended by Haller.

Julius Haller, president of the Julius Haller Real Estate Co., and a member of the Board of Aldermen, of which he was formerly president, says Watkins' idea is both resourceful and meritorious. It would form, Haller believes, the nucleus of a central parkway, which must sooner or later be introduced as a solution of the traffic problem in St. Louis.

"The project is attractive from both a civic and real estate view point," Haller said. "It not only would replace an eyesore, but would have a most wholesome effect upon the section south of Olive street, between Jefferson avenue and Twelfth street.

"For instance, the Lionberger block, between Chestnut and Pine, Seventeenth and Eighteenth streets, which has lain vacant and dormant for a decade, would at once be converted into one of the most attractive hotel sites in the city. As a matter of fact, the good effect of such a project would be reflected at once throughout this district.

"Off-handed, I believe I would lend my support to Watkins' plan in both the Real Estate Exchange and on the Board of Aldermen."

MASONS UNITE IN CELEBRATION

Commemorate Founding of Order in England 200 Years Ago.

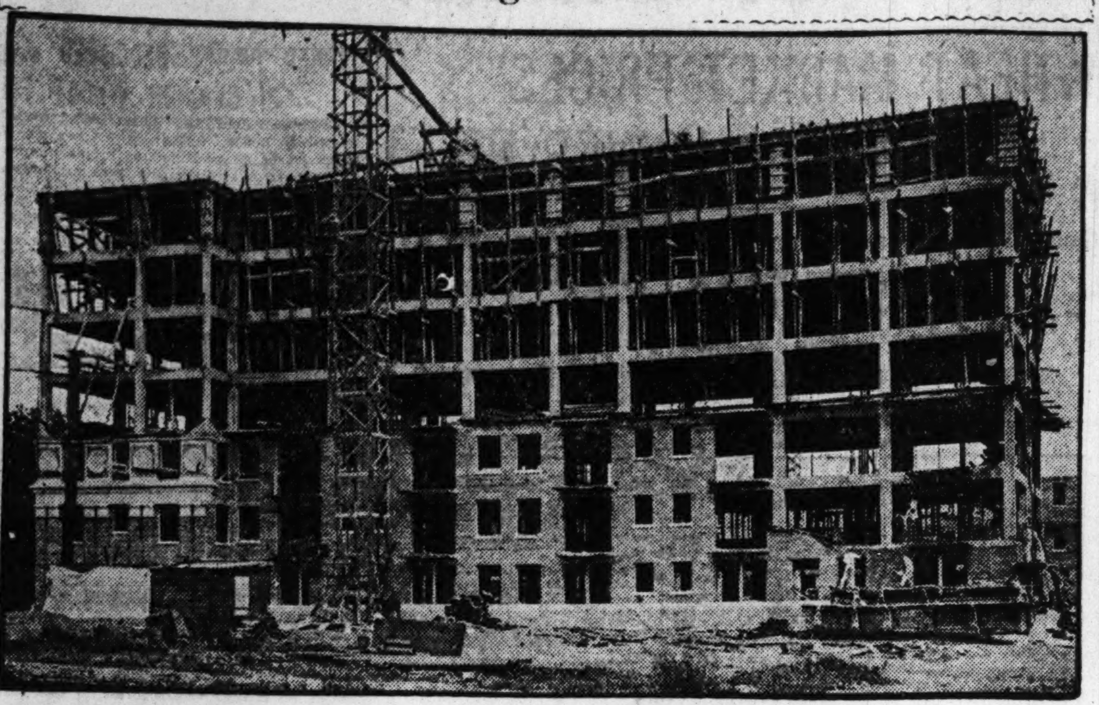
St. Louis Masonic lodges united yesterday afternoon in a bi-centenary celebration at the municipal open-air theater in Forest Park, marking the 200th anniversary of the founding of the first grand lodge of the order in England.

Music was furnished by the children from the Masonic Home, by a band and an orchestra, and by a Masonic chorus. The Rev. Dr. E. Combie Smith, grand orator for the Grand Lodge of Missouri, reviewed the history of the order in England and the United States. Teams of Zouaves from Alhambra Grotto, Moolah Temple and Ainad Temple, East St. Louis, gave exhibition drills. J. J. Kessler was master of ceremonies.

Slacker Hides Behind Baby.

LONDON, June 24.—A Midland Railway drayman appealed to the Matlock tribunal for exemption from military duty on the ground that his baby was cutting its teeth. When refused exemption he asked for two months to teach the child to walk and was granted 14 days.

Hotel-Apartment Being Erected on Berlin Avenue



RAPID progress is being made on the Westmoreland Hotel Apartments, an eight-story fireproof structure, being erected on the south side of Berlin avenue, west of Union boulevard, by the Sam Koplar Building Co. for Sam Hamburg Jr., and associates.

The building will comprise 80 apartments, ranging from two to four-room units. It will have every known convenience, including electric stoves, telephone service, free ice and three high-speed passenger elevators.

The structure is designed in modern Italian style, with low bas relief panels and friezes in terra cotta.

The highest order of construction is prescribed for the building, which will give it rank with the most representative apartment-hotel structures in the city. The sit ovrlooks Forst Park and is otherwise attractive.

The building was designed by Preston J. Bradshaw, architect.

SEED COMPANY LEASES HEADQUARTERS HERE

St. Louis Chosen After Extended and Observant Tour of Central States.

The Mercantile Trust Co. reports having closed a lease with the American Seed Co., with headquarters in Fort Worth, Tex., for the three-story and basement building, 1410 North Broadway.

A. E. Bell, president of the American Seed Co., has traveled through the central states with a view of locating a branch in this territory. After going over the situation thoroughly he decided that St. Louis was the ideal location for a distribution headquarters.

The building is located on both the Terminal and L. & N. switches.

The Mercantile Trust Co. represented both the American Seed Co. and the Louisville Property Co., owner of the property.

Was Last Vacant Building on That Thoroughfare Between Market St. and Chouteau Avenue.

The Missouri Bag Co. has acquired a long lease, through John A. Peck, managing trustee of the Charles H. Peck estate, of the warehouse at 428-32 South Fourteenth street.

The leasing company, which was organized about two years ago, manufactures bags of all kinds and specializes in the cleaning of old canvas and burlap bags by a vacuum process. The new building, which comprises four stories and a basement, of approximately 40,000 square feet, will give the company ample room.

This lease, together with that by which the Manhattan Electric Co. obtained possession of the building at Fourteenth and Papin streets, removes from the market the last vacant building on Fourteenth street between Market street and Chouteau avenue.

George L. Schaberg of the Peck estate office represented the Peck estate and Will K. Roth of the Hildebrandt & Noble Realty Co. the Missouri Bag Co.

HIGH WATER, LOW ALIMONY, IS RULING OF ALTON JUDGE

Ferryman Cannot Pay Usual Sum When Roads Leading to Boat Landing Are Flooded.

Alimony fluctuates by contraries with the flood at Alton. High water means low alimony and as the water goes down the alimony comes up.

Capt. W. D. Fluent, an elderly ferryman, haled before City Judge Yager yesterday for not paying alimony to Mrs. Hattie Fluent, explained that the ferry business was bad because the roads were under water and nobody could get to the landing.

The court agreed that high water and high alimony made it hard on the Captain and lowered the alimony to $15 a month until the river gets low, with the understanding that as the river fell the alimony would rise. It was hardly fair, the Judge said, to expect a man to pay alimony if he couldn't afford it and it was a wife's duty to share her husband's hard times even if she wasn't living with him.

DRINKS DISINFECTANT AND DIES

Mrs. Daisy Ladd, 30 years old, of 1048 Oregon avenue, died yesterday after drinking disinfectant. Relatives could not explain her action.

She entered the room of her sister, Mrs. Flossie Ward, and announced that she had taken the poison. After kissing her sleeping 8-year-old son, Lee, she fell unconscious. She was a divorcee.

Thrift Garden Products at Carnival.

Children of the Holy Rosary parish on July 12, 13 and 14 intend to bring the products of their thrift gardens as their offering at the annual church carnival, to help pay the church debt. The children hitherto have had a "country store" at the annual carnival. The children's beans, potatoes and cabbages will all be in the "country store" on the parish grounds, Newstead and Margaretta avenues.

PROPERTY IN COUNTY AND CITY IN WEEK'S MAIN DEAL

450-Acre Farm Given as Part Payment for Holdings on Locust and Pine Streets—Two New West End Apartments Sold.

The week in realty, though comparatively listless, was signalized by operations which show positive underlying strength in both city and suburbs. The prime event was a deal between the Bushnell-Palmer Real Estate Co. and the Burdeau Real Estate Co., of which George T. Burdeau is president, whereby holdings in the city and in St. Louis County, appraised at approximately $200,000, changed control.

These included a series of new one-story brick buildings at 3215-17-19 Locust street, with a lot 66x135 feet, a new one-story building at 3027 Locust street, a new two-story building at 1410 Pine street, on a lot 25x100 feet, which were sold by the Burdeau company to the Bushnell-Palmer Co.

The principal tenants of the building in the 3200 block on Locust street, which yields an annual rental of $3400, are Fred Campbell, the St. Louis Battery Co., Dixon Film Co., and the Efficiency Gas Co. The building at 3027 Locust street is not occupied, but the annual rental fixed for it is $1800. The building at 1410 Pine street is occupied by the Wholesale Cut Flower Co., to which it is under lease at an annual rental of $1620.

Property in Part Payment.

As part payment for the holdings mentioned, the Bushnell-Palmer Co. transferred to the Burdeau company a nine-room residence, with lot 31x213 feet, at 3950 Lindell boulevard, six houses, 1112-22 South Tenth street, inclusive, occupying a lot 105x150 feet, and an 80-foot lot on the south side of Lesperance street between Third and Fourth streets. The improvements in the latter instance consist of buildings of negligible value.

The Burdeau company also acquired by this deal a 450-acre farm in St. Louis County, adjacent to Creve Coeur Lake and just this side of the Missouri River.

The valuation placed on the different pieces was not disclosed, but the Bushnell company, it is understood, already has had several opportunities to resell the property at atrractive prices.

This deal was engineered by the William Mathews Real Estate Co., which has handled a number of extensive operations for the Burdeau Real Estate Co., this being the third sale of this company's holdings to the Bushnell-Palmer company.

The West End feature of the week was the sale of two new apartment buildings, 4936-42 West Pine boulevard, inclusive, by Victor E. Rhodes, the builder, to Charles L. Geraghty, for $85,000. This sale was negotiated by the William & J. Steck Real Estate Co., whose offices are at 5936 Easton avenue.

Each building has six apartments of five rooms and sun parlor and sleeping porch, with spacious front stairways as features. The appointments include modern lighting fixtures, copper screens, awnings and enameled ranges. The aggregate annual rental of the apartments, according to the agents, is $8700.

William & J. Steck also announce the sale of a lot 95x275 feet on the north side of Easton avenue, just west of 4825 Easton avenue, for $10,000, to a client whose name has not been disclosed. It is understood that this site has been acquired for a handsome business block, comprising stores and apartments.

The Chauncey P. Heath Real Estate Co., in connection with the Rosenbaum-Hauschulte Real Estate Co., announces the sale to Samuel Koplar of 50x213 feet on the south side of Lindell boulevard, opposite the Columbia Club, at Vandeventer avenue. This site, according to Sam Hamburg Jr., who represented Rosenbaum-Hauschulte in the transaction, will be improved by Koplar with an apartment building to cost, including the site, $90,000. The building will comprise three stories and a French basement, and will be subdivided into 36 apartments.

The M. B. O'Reilly Realty & Investment Co., 723 Chestnut street, reports the sale of 4228 Osceola street, a two-story modern brick house, tile bath, frunace, electric lights, lot 30x120 feet, for Percy D. Jones to the Frankor Realty Co.

LITTLE CITY FARM IDEA FOREMOST AT RIVERVIEW GARDEN

Selling Agency Says North St. Louis Subdivision Is Getting Much Public Favor.

Riverview Gardens, overlooking the Mississippi River below the Chain of Rocks, is a real estate development that is meeting with much public favor. Sales of lots in four weeks aggregate $60,000. Many are buying for permanent home sites along Riverview Drive, some for summer cottages and others for chicken ranches, but the biggest call is for the "little city farm." The prices on some of the latter and on chicken ranch sites are as low as $390, on monthly payment plan. The contracts provide for a suspension of payments if the buyer is sick or enlists in the army or navy.

Robert Sikking of the firm of Sikking & Beckwith, who is in charge of the development, said:

"Men of small means cannot buy and equip a first-class farm, therefore a compromise must be made, and the 'little city farm' fills the bill. The owner continues to work in the city but lives in the country. Our standard sized 'little city farm' is 100 feet front and 220 feet in depth, which, generally speaking, provides 100 feet square in the front of the house, a large lawn, flower garden, fancy fruit and the like; 100 feet square for garden and ample room for chicken yards beside.

"We claim that our 'model little city farm' will not only cut down the high cost of living, but actually pay for itself in a very short time.

"As the season for gardening is pretty far advanced, many are selecting the 'farm' with the idea of preparing for an early start in the spring."

SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH'S REVIEW OF MARKET CONDITIONS

MIXED CHANGES ARE SCORED IN STOCK MARKET

Some Issues Are Higher and Others Lower on the Week's Dealings.

Large Sales of Liberty Bonds on Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, June 23.—Heavy dealings in the Liberty bonds, all at par, were the feature of today's trading on the Stock Exchange. Blocks of $100,000 to $600,000 changed hands in the early part of the session. Later a block of $5000 sold at 100 1-50 and another block of the same amount at 100 2-50.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 23.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"Next week is certain to provide a peculiarly interesting test of our new banking system. It would be no great exaggeration to say that, up to this time, it has not been tested at all. When we went to war, rediscounted bills of member banks held by the twelve reserve institutions aggregated only $17,900,000. This in the face of a total cash reserve of $584,200,000. Last week, as a consequence of the large locking up of money paid by applicants for the war loan, these rediscounts had increased to $202,800,000, and still the credit resources of the reserve banks were but slightly tapped. Next Thursday, however, the required installment of 18 per cent, against allotments of the $2,000,000,000, will be called in.

"This $360,000,000 payment (which will be increased to the extent that subscriptions are paid in full at once) will come on a market which will itself be in the midst of preparations for the large semiannual corporation payments.

"A year ago the requirements of those settlements alone carried the New York surplus bank reserve down $56,000,000 in the two weeks preceding and following July 1, and put up Wall street money rates to 6 per cent, which was then the highest since the end of 1914. But, on the other hand, the banks did not use the Federal Reserve facilities at all in June or July last year.

The Banking Position.

"During the fortnight corresponding to that which is now ahead of us, the member banks increased their rediscounts at the 12 reserve banks barely $1,000,000. The new banking machinery was in point of fact ignored. We are now about to have a test of it.

"Until this test is applied, it will remain impossible to say how far our banking system is in all respects adequate. It may be, indeed, that even this experiment will not be conclusive, for the special arrangements made on this occasion, whereby rediscounts based on the new war bonds as collateral will be granted at 3½ per cent, creates at least the possibility of a situation somewhat alien to the original purpose of the law. That fundamental purpose was, to make up the basis for the reserve credits at the Federal banks, or for the notes issued by them wholly from commercial paper running off automatically in three months or less.

"But with Government bond collateral there is no automatic maturity. The rediscounts granted will expire in 90 days. But the question will remain to be settled whether the original loan secured by the new war bonds will be then paid off at the member bank, or whether the same collateral will reappear in subsequent rediscounts.

"As to what the total demand for credits at the Federal banks will be, to finance the markets over this interesting period, that is as yet a matter of pure guesswork.

"When Germany's $3,100,000,000 war loan of last April was subscribed for, and the subscriptions came along with the heavy quarterly settlements, loans and rediscounts at the Imperial Bank of Germany actually increased $1,000,000,000 in a week, though they decreased $900,000,000 in the next week. Germany is believed to be on a basis of highly and artificially inflated credit. But when the $5,000,000,000 British war loan was put forth last February, rediscounts at the Bank of England increased $750,000,000 in three weeks, and were reduced only $400,000,000 in the ensuing month and a half.

Bond Issue Big Success.

"Yesterday's official announcement that the Government's offer of $2,000,000,000 war bonds elicited applications of $3,035,226,850; that more than four million separate applicants were heard from, and that subscribers for $10,000 or more will receive only 20 to 60 per cent of their application (the ratio decreasing as the size of the application rises) bears several implications. It is first, the kind of proof which the outside world, and Germany in particular, will understand as to what our entry into the war means to the balance of economic power in the conflict.

"'In a deadlocked military situation,' wrote Germany's oracle Bernhardi, 'victory will go to the side that can hold out longest financially.'

"As concerns our own position, the implications of this over-subscription are that the American people are abundantly able to bear the burden of the war, and that the next loan should be another great success. It probably means, unless as a result of conditions now unforseen in the security and money markets, that the autumn war loan will be offered at the same rate of interest as this present loan. How much of a bearing the enormous applications for this 3½ per cent war loan have on such questions as our community's power to sustain prices of other investments, and to continue the necessary financing of the neutral world, events will have to show."

London Review.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening World.

LONDON, June 23.—"To what extent your country is today the pivot of the whole world's financial machinery has been illustrated by the fact that the dearness of money in New York, this week, practically explains every development in all financial markets. Here in London, although the Bank of England reduced its special deposit rate on clearing bank balances from 4½ per cent to 4, and although discounts for longer periods weakened accordingly, short money actually increased in value.

"Every foreign exchange market was affected by your higher money rates, which at once occasioned the desire to remit to you. Our chief anxiety is not as to the measure of your financial wealth, which is virtually unbounded, but as to your power to liquify and render it quickly available and arrange all credits without financial congestion. It is recognised that continued dearness of money, at the end of your fiscal year, on July 1, is probably inevitable.

Money to Be Easier.

"After a brief time, however, it is thought that the rapidity of your Government disbursements should ease the position. Financial experts are as a rule more apprehensive of rigidity even in your new banking laws, especially in regard to the proportion of gold holdings against liabilities arising from extension of credit. With us, that has never been legally defined; hence, in the old times, we were always able to finance your requirements without any extraordinary high interest rates here.

"Notwithstanding this week's large gold shipments to you, on English accounts, it is felt in Lombard street that you and your allies should reach a common understanding concerning gold. The proposition that, as compared with the period before the war, the allies should supply gold enough to raise your base of reserve proportionately to your extension of new credits to the allies, sounds reasonable. But the total sent to you within two years, already overprovides for that requirement.

"It is up to you to prevent either hoarding or unnecessary exports of the metal. Otherwise, no nation or combination of nations can possibly finance the war on a gold basis. For the attempt might easily overtax the world's supplies.

"Repayment of the £10,000,000 in banking credits, granted by your banks to ours 18 months ago, and which matured last Tuesday, was effected without a ripple in the market.

"The conviction grows that your Liberty loan subscription was a genuine triumph. The result of that, and the results which we expect from your future war loans will go far towards consolidating your country's economic power after the war."

Quarter of a Million Dollars in 46 Days From One Oil Well

Famous Goose Creek Field.

The well mentioned above came in flowing oil at the rate of 6000 to 10,000 barrels daily on March 25, 1917, is owned by the West Virginia Oil Company. It is located in the Goose Creek field, which has become famous for big wells. Two more gushers have recently come in within a few hundred feet of our No. 1 well, one making about 7000 barrels daily. The discovery well at Goose Creek is estimated to have made 20,000 barrels daily.

Our Holdings in Same Locality.

The Gulf Seaboard Oil Association has a 100-acre lease at Goose Creek, as well as other holdings. Well No. 1 is being drilled within about 500 feet of the West Virginia gusher and right near other gusher wells. We expect to drill several wells in this rich field, where many wells have come in making thousands of barrels daily. Fortunes being made quickly. Well No. 1 is expected to make at least 5000 barrels when completed.

Gulf Seaboard Oil Association.

This organization, with its valuable holdings at Goose Creek, is now developing a part of these holdings and offers a small allotment of treasury shares at par, $10 per share for development purposes. Stock will be withdrawn from market when first big well comes in. Liberal terms of payment if desired. One company operating within few hundred feet has paid 400% dividends in last 90 days and has only one well. Stock of same company is worth 2500% above par now. Some of the most prominent business and professional men of Missouri have purchased Gulf Seaboard shares.

Maps and Prospectus Free.

Send at once for FREE maps of the wonderful Goose Creek oil field, prospectus giving particulars and showing views of the big wells and bank references. Be prompt, as stock may be withdrawn from market very soon. Write TODAY.

BIG MONEY IN OIL

The oil industry is now entering the greatest era known in history and fortunes are being made in Kentucky and other fields. Crude oil is advancing and so are oil securities.

New oil fields are being opened up. Drilling for oil is being carried on as never before. Oil leases bought for a song a few months ago are increasing in value almost daily. Payment of hundreds or thousands of dollars per acre for land worth practically nothing a year ago is today a common occurence.

According to one of the leading financial authorities "War is making the oil companies richer, but peace will bury them with wealth."

Lack of Rain Damages Corn in Texas.

DALLAS, Tex., June 23.—Lack of rain has injured the corn crop in several sections of Texas to an extent that has necessitated cutting it for dry forage. Almost the entire crop in Caldwell County is being cut and a large portion of the crop in McLennan and other counties will not mature. Silo dealers are said to be unable to supply the demand.

Farmers in the San Marcos River Valley were the last in the drouth section to begin cutting.

Downward movement of prices formed the general rule in the local wheat market last week, mainly because of increased offerings from the new crop. As compared with a week previous values closed about 7c to 12c lower, despite a sharp rally in the market on Friday. Corn showed no decided difference, varying from 1⅛c off to a like advance. Oats were unchanged to 1c down.

Word that new wheat was being moved in Texas, at a cost less than for old wheat, gave the bears an advantage from the outset, especially as it was estimated that as much as 60,000,000 bushels of the 1916 crop still remained in the United States, rather for export before July 1, or for carrying over into the new crop year, not counting domestic bread and seed requirements.

Assertions were also current that North America and Argentina would show a net increase of 150,000,000 bushels of exportable surplus from the 1917 harvest as compared with the previous year. Besides, excellent crop progress was reported and there was much uncertainty in regard to the shape which the food bill would take in the final stages of enactment at Washington.

Prices Score a Rally.

About the only important rally in the wheat market took place Friday. Talk of arrangements perfected for an increase of available commercial vessel tonnage for shipments to Europe was partly responsible. In addition the Kansas official crop report indicated that the production in the State this season would be the smallest since 1896.

Active export demand together with signs that the stock of corn east for immediate delivery was about exhausted put corn values up sharply at times. Gossip, though, that President Wilson was likely soon to interdict shipments that might fall into hands hostile to the United States, acted as a bearish offset.

Optimistic crop advices tended to weaken oats. On the other hand, for the first time this season, the visible supply fell below the aggregate for the corresponding time in 1916.

HIGHER PRICES RECORDED IN CHICAGO WHEAT PIT

CHICAGO, June 23.—Wheat prices tended to harden today, influenced by reports of improvement in conditions as to the number of vessels available for shipments to Europe. Transactions in future deliveries, however, were confined to the September option. The market for that month opened 1c higher at $1.85 and later rose to $1.90.

Unfavorable weather hoisted the corn market. Besides, country offerings to arrive were light and seaboard demand was again apparent. After opening ½c to 1⅛c up, prices scored a moderate further advance. Oats sympathized with the rise in other cereals.

Later the July option started at $2.16, an advance of 6c, but reacted with September, owing to sales to even trades for the week end. The close was firm, 3c to 4c net higher, with July at $2.14 and Sept. at $1.87.

Coffee Market.

NEW YORK, June 23.—The market for coffee futures continued quiet today, and fluctuations were narrow. The opening was at a decline of 6 to 7 points under further scattering liquidation, but the loss was partly recovered with prices moving on small orders in a narrow market. March rallied from 7.95c to 7.95c, with the close showing a net loss of 1 to 5 points. Sales of 7750 bags included exchanges of July for September at eight points and of July for March at 31 points.

The official cables showed an advance of 75 reis at Rio. Santos spots were 300 reis below the last quotations and futures showed a decline of 50 to 75 reis. Victoria cleared 5000 bags for New Orleans, and Santos 61,000 bags for New York. Brazilian port receipts, 13,000 bags; Jundiahy, 12,000 bags.

NEW YORK, June 23.—The cotton market showed renewed strength early today, while all deliveries making new high records for the season. Reports that the Government has closed contracts for 50,000,000 yards of cotton duck were followed by a further bulge during the middle of the morning, with October selling at 26.78c, and with the general list showing a net advance of 54 to 59 points. Realizing caused reactions of 10 or 15 points later, with the market closing irregular, net 37 to 44 points higher.

LARGE RECEIPTS CAUSE A LOWER CATTLE MARKET

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last Week.	Week Before.	Last Year.
Cattle	32,800	27,200	24,300
Hogs	49,900	41,100	53,000
Sheep	17,800	11,800	26,800

CATTLE: receipts last week showed a material increase, being close to 1000 head per day, due to the fact that grass cattle are coming more freely. This had a marked influence upon the general market, especially upon the common to medium classes of cattle. Best beef steers, however, are holding up well and are not suffering the competition offered by grassers to any great extent. In fact, they closed the week on about a steady basis, while the common to medium kinds were 35c to 50c lower. Stockers and feeders were slow sale at about steady prices. The good beef cows and yearling butcher cattle declined about 25c per cwt, while the common to medium ones were anywhere from 25c to 50c lower.

Choice to prime beef steers are quoted at $12.50 to $13.75; good to choice $11 to $12.25; medium to good $10 to $11; common to medium $8.75 to $10; common off-colored light killing steers $7.25 to $8.75; good to choice stockers and feeders $8.50 to $9.50; medium to good $8 to $8.75; common to medium $7 to $8; good to choice stock cows $7.25 to $7.50; common to fair $6.75 to $7; good to choice stock heifers $7.50 to $8.25; choice to prime fat yearling butcher cattle $12 to $13.25; good to choice $11 to $12; medium to good $10 to $11; common to medium $8 to $9; choice to fancy heavy beef cows $10 to $10.50; good to choice $8.50 to $9.50; medium to good $8 to $8.50; cutters $7.25 to $8; canners $6.25 to $6.50; good fat beef bulls $9.50 to $10.25; heavy sausage bulls $8.75 to $9.25, and light sausage bulls $7.25 to $8.

Hog Receipts Are Large.

Receipts of hogs showed a material increase last week, being close to 9000 head more than the previous week. The trade, however, for the greater part of the week, showed but slight variation, though prices closed yesterday about 25c lower than at the close of the previous week. The top of the market a week ago yesterday was $15.90, while $15.75 was the best price attained on yesterday's market. The worst feature to the market is on the green and half-fat kind of hogs. All buyers are discriminating against that kind, and they are very uncertain in values, as all purchasers are seeking quality and fat, as well as weight, which makes rough sailing for the green and half-fat swine.

On yesterday's market choice hogs 180 lbs up sold at $15.40 to $15.75; mixed hogs 160 lbs up, $15 to $15.40; 120 to 140 lb pigs, $14.50 to $15; lighter pigs, $13.75 to $14.50, with Southern pigs at $10 to $13.50; best rough hogs, $14.75 to $15, and half-fat roughs, $10 to $12.

Sheep receipts increased about 6000 head last week, yet the market was active and stronger all the while, and closed the week on a "red-hot" basis, spring lambs having reached 19c per lb, with clipped lambs up to $16.50. It was a satisfactory market throughout the week, and places the trade back close to the high level recorded a few weeks ago.

Lack of receipts yesterday made a nominal market for the day, but on Friday's market, which is virtually the close of the week, choice spring lambs sold at $18.50 to $19; medium springers, $17 to $18.25; best cull springers, $12.50 to $14.25; skippy culls, $8 to $11; medium to best clipped lambs, $15.50 to $16.50; good fat sheep $10 to $10.25; choppers, $7.50; canners, $4.50 to $5.50, and breeding ewes, $10.50 to $12.50. Choice fat kids sold at $8.50 to $10.50, with fat aged goats at $7 to $8.

Horses and Mules.

There is a broad demand for war horses here now. At any rate the trade's present uncertainty is enough to keep high-priced animals off the market. The English started buying and there will be a market for British types for at least several months. Prices are $175 to $205. There is also a contract for United States cavalry and two classes of artilleries at $150, $175 and $210 per head. Now that the rush for farm horses is about over, some good runs are looked for. Heavy draft, extra, $160@235; Eastern chunks, $150@175; Southern horses, good to choice, $150@185; Southern horses, plain, $75@90; Southern horses, common, $25@40.

There are two contracts on the market for British war mules, standing 15-2 hands and over and 5 to 9 years old. A lot of mules are needed for this job. There is also an outlet for United States types of lead, pack and wheel mules, but dealers have plenty to fill the present order. However, a more general contract is scheduled for the near future. The receipts for the week have been light, with no change in the general market. Demand confined to good big mules and miners. 16 to 16¼ hands, $200@275; 15 to 15½ hands, $200@225; 14 to 14½ hands, $125@150; 13 to 13½ hands, $100@125; 12 to 12½ hands, $85@115; plugs, $25@65.

NOLKER'S PLEA FOR NEW TRIAL TAKEN UNDER ADVISEMENT

His Attorney Argues Judge Erred in Refusing to Grant Divorce—Expense Allowance Fought.

Judge Cave has taken under advisement Robert E. Nolker's motion for a new trial in the suit in which he was denied divorce from Pearl Nolker.

A. M. Frumberg, attorney for Nolker, argued that the judge had erred in refusing a decree to Nolker. He said the evidence showed that Mrs. Nolker never loved her husband and that she married him for the purpose of geting the "sinews" with which to pursue her musical studies abroad.

In regard to the court's finding that the plaintiff was not the injured and innocent party and was not "in court with clean hands," Attorney Frumberg argued that the defendant's indifference and neglect of him should be considered. "What stronger invitation for a husband to stray than the plaintiff had in this case?" asked the attorney.

Frumberg also argued against the Court's judgment that Nolker pay to his wife $5000 for her expenses in the case. He said the evidence showed she had cash and bonds of more than $16,000, besides costly jewels, which were given to her by the plaintiff. Charles M. Hay, representing Mrs. Nolker, answered Frumberg by saying that the Court's decision was correct. He said Nolker had made very damaging charges against the defendant in order to get a divorce and had been unable to substantiate them.

FAIR-HAIRED GIRL A NEW FIGURE IN COLE ACID TRAGEDY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, June 23.—It developed today that a fair-haired girl, who lives in one of those light housekeeping suites which are so numerous in the Back Bay district, figures in the acid throwing tragedy, known as the "Cole case," which which will be presented to the Suffolk grand jury. She is expected to be called as a witness.

It also was announced that the late William H. Cole's mother, Mrs. William Cole of 1275 Wagner place, St. Louis, would be asked to return to Boston as a grand jury witness.

The grand jury will investigate the circumstances of the sulphuric acid throwing which resulted in Cole's death at the Brooks private hospital in Allston on June 7, after a month of suffering. His wife, Mrs. Cleopatra Freeling Cole, whom he met in St. Louis three years ago and married in Edwardsville, Ill., in 1915, is slowly recovering at the Scobey Hospital in Brookline from burns received in the acid throwing quarrel.

Girl Subject of Discussion.

It has been learned by the authorities that the girl was the frequent subject of discussion between Mr. and Mrs. Cole.

It was Cole's efforts to take the girl to a Shriners' dance on May 7, when Mrs. Cole insisted on going herself, that led to bitter quarrels between the man and wife on their way to their apartment at 18 Bellevista road, Brookline, after the festivity.

At their apartment the acid throwing took place. Mrs. Cole has been reported as steadily accusing her husband of having thrown the acid. Cole, on the other hand, was quoted as having declared that it was "all an accident."

Often Together on Horseback.

Cole's mother, in an interview at St. Louis with a Post-Dispatch reporter, declared that her son, on his deathbed in the presence of herself and physicians, asserted that his wife in a jealous moment had thrown the acid upon him, and that he went to the hospital alone in his machine. It was two hours later, the mother asserts, before it was learned that Cole's wife also was burned with the acid.

The mother's recent statement that her son was considering divorce proceedings, but had not said anything to his wife about such a plan, gives an even more sensational aspect to the case. Cole was an auto sales manager, who was known to his friends in St Louis as "Candy" Cole.

One of the fair-haired girl's favorite pastimes is horseback riding She and Cole patronized the same riding academy and often were seen together on the saddle path in the Fenway. Mrs. Cole is said to have gone to the girl's apartment shortly before the acid quarrel, but the girl was out that day.

GOUNIS CASES DISMISSED

Charged With Selling Soft Drinks on Sunday.

Two cases against Peter G. Gounis, manager of Eden Park at Meramec Highlands, in which he was charged with selling soft drinks on Sunday, were dismissed by Justice of the Peace Jacobi of Kirkwood Friday because of insufficient evidence.

Justice Jacobi maintained that because no one outside of Eden Park had been arrested for a similar violation, it appeared to him to be a persecution instead of prosecution. A similar case against Gounis' wife, Sophia, eight against bartenders and waiters employed by Gounis and one against a concession owner also were dismissed.

POULTRY, BIRDS and ANIMALS

CAPONIZING PLACES PROFIT IN POULTRY

Proress Simple, and Keeping of the Birds for Development Not Expensive.

By T. E. QUISENBERRY
President American School of Poultry Husbandry.

In Nebraska there is a farmer's wife who has been clearing about $1000 or more per year on capons. She annually hatches and raises about 2000 chickens. Approximately half of this number are cockerels. Is she to sell these when they are only 2 months old at little more than the cost of production? No, she caponizes the cockerels and carries them through the summer on range, or on a maintenance or growing ration, or in the cheapest and easiest possible way. In the fall and winter she lets them follow her husband's fattening cattle. They are housed in large, temporary straw sheds. She places these birds on the market when they are fat and when prices are highest, the result being that she nets about $1000 a year from capons alone, which is more in proportion to the amount invested than anything else produced on the farm. The pullets are kept for layers and breeders.

One great drain upon the poultry industry in past years has been that caused by poultrymen having to market practically one-half of their young stock each year at a loss, or at not more than the mere cost of production.

Thousands of cockerels are likely to be marketed this fall at a price that hardly pays for their feed, to say nothing of the care and trouble required to raise them. There is no reason why young males that are intended ultimately for market should be held until they become staggy, develop small spurs, weigh from four to six pounds and then only bring from 15 to 40 cents each on the market, depending on their size, quality and the general market conditions. These same cockerels as capons would weigh eight to 12 pounds each and would bring 18 to 25 cents or more per pound, live weight. If such cockerels are not going to be caponized they should be sold as broilers or friers.

Someone asks "why are there not more poultrymen and farmers caponizing their surplus cockerels?" There are several reasons. A great many do not know there is such a thing as capon. Still others consider the operation of caponizing either difficult or cruel, and refuse to attempt it. Probably the most common reason, however, is that very few people realize how much more profitable the capon is than the cockerel, consequently capons are a rare thing on most farms and poultry plants.

Some poultrymen claim the reason they are not raised generally is because they do not find a market for them. It is true there is no market in a few of the small towns and cities, but if they raise enough to make a shipment to any of the larger cities they could be readily sold, and at fancy prices.

The operation of caponizing is so simple that a 10-year-old child of ordinary intelligence can easily learn to perform it With a little practice one becomes very skillful and can caponize from 20 to 40 cockerels per hour. Cockerels should be caponized when they are not larger than quails, or at least as soon as you can distinguish the cockerels from the pullets. It is not advisable to caponize cockerels after they begin to crow or worry the hens. Time and experience have proven it is not cruel to caponize them.

It is important to have good caponizing instruments. They will last a lifetime and will save trouble. If you have your cockerels in the right condition before you attempt to caponize them the operation is half performed. Keep them confined to a coop which should be placed in a dark, cool room. Do not feed or allow them to have a drop of water or feed for at least 36 hours before they are operated on. There will be little or no bleeding in this case.

Both testicles can be removed from the same side, but for beginners two incisions are the best, being less difficult and not as dangerous to the fowl. Some recognized authorities on caponizing say that two incisions are the safest for anyone, professional or amateur, and almost as rapid. Also the fowls will recover as soon from two incisions as from one. If both testicles are removed from the same side, the lower one should be taken first because the blood runs down and if the upper one was removed first the blood would cover the lower one and you would be unable to see it.

After caponizing, the capons should be kept in a clean, quiet, cool pen for a week, until the wounds have time to heal. During this period they should be supplied with soft food and water in limited quantities. Each capon should be examined within two or three days after the operation for wind puffs under the skin. These can be reduced by puncturing one side of the swelling with a sharp darning needle or penknife. After a week they can be turned out with the rest of the flock, where they should be kept growing until about three weeks before marketing, when they should be penned and fattened.

Let Sunshine Stream Into Poul'ry House

Sunshine is essential in raising almost everything but mushrooms and worms. Sanitation is as important as food, and the first element in sanitaion is sunshine.

Sunshine is a germicide. It fights dampness, which is a source of a variety of trouble. The hen seems to reach the height of happiness when she can dust herself in the sun on a winter's day. It means profit for the owner.

In building the house and in the arrangement of the yards provide sunlight by means of windows and muslin curtains, or both. Space devoted to window glass costs no more than the same space filled with wood. Muslin costs much less.

Poultry Problems Solved.

Baldness.

I have Rhode Island laying pullets, and now I notice they are losing their head feathers. Can you tell me what to do for them? They have no lice.—W. M., St. Louis, Mo.

It is possible that your birds are starting to moult. If these pullets have been laying heavily through the winter and spring it is very probable that the near exhaustion thus brought about is causing the feathers to fall out. Exhaustion by starving or through sickness also has the same result, frequently. This is no cause for alarm, but a nourishing feed should be given in such event to bring back their vitality and stimulate a new crop of feathers. Then there is a disease known as "favus" or "white comb" that has somewhat the same effect on the feathers of head and neck. This disease first causes dry, scaly, grayish crusts to appear on the bare spots of the head. Olive oil with 1 per cent of carbolic acid, or 8 parts vaseline to 1 part calomel, applied to these parts daily, will usually be efefctive in case of this disease. This ailment is contagious and the necessary precautions should be taken to prevent its spread. A third possibility is that the depluming mite, a very small parasite is at work on your pullets. Applications of carbolized vaseline are effective in this case.

Directions for Caponizing.

I noticed your sketch in last Sunday's paper on caponizing. I should like to know more about this.—Mrs. J. T., Moline, Ill.

The subject of caponizing could not be covered in a single article on this page, giving you all the information needed to start in this branch of the poultry business. It will pay you to write to your State experiment station at Urbana, Ill., or to the Missouri Poultry Experiment Station at Mountain Grove, and ask for bulletins published on this subject. The United States Department of Agriculture at Washington also has some very good publications with illustrations, on this subject. All may be had without cost by applying to the addresses given.

Double Yolks.

We placed an extra large egg in one setting from which the hen hatched two well developed chicks, but they were somewhat smaller than the others. One has died since but the other is doing well. We have the R. I. Reds—J. W. A., St. Louis, Mo.

The large egg had a double yolk, which accounts for the two chicks coming from it. It is not advisable to use such eggs for hatching purposes as the chicks are undersized, and therefore not desirable either for laying or market purposes.

Limberneck in Chicks.

I have had a lot of chicks hatched this spring and they have a queer disease. I feed chick food, plenty of green stuff, and give them fresh water twice a day when the weather is right hot. They will eat heartily, and after a while they close their eyes, throw their heads back, shake as though they had a chill, and then fall over dead. I have lost as many as 13 in a day in this manner.—Mrs. L. C., Springfield, Mo.

These symptoms point to a form of disease akin to ptomaine poisoning commonly known as "limberneck." There also is a possibility that a form of apoplexy, or heat prostration, may be the cause of the trouble. The fact that you are feeding chick food and green feed in abundance makes it improbable that the ailment is apoplexy. This is caused by feeding too rich and unbalanced a feed, particularly in hot weather. "Limberneck" is most commonly caused by the birds having access to some spoiled food such as carrion, mouldy feeds, etc. Treatment is very unsatisfactory, although a dose of olive oil occasionally has affected cures. A close examination of the yards and houses may reveal the cause of the trouble in the form of a dead animal or some putrid meat from which the chicks have been eating.

Approximately 5,016,000 dozen eggs spoil needlessly every year in cold storage simply because someone has let clean eggs get wet or has washed dirty eggs before sending them to market, according to the specialists of the Department of Agriculture.

Careful investigations show that from 17 to 22 per cent of washed eggs become worthless in storage, whereas only 4 to 8 per cent of dirty eggs stored unwashed spoil. The explanation is simple. Water removes from the shell of the egg a gelatinous covering which helps to keep air and germs out of the inside of the egg. Once this covering is removed by washing or rain which gets to eggs in the nest, germs and molds find ready access to the contents and spoils the eggs.

This enormous loss largely can be prevented if producers and handlers will refrain from washing eggs destined for the storage markets and take pains to reduce the number of dirty eggs by providing plenty of clean, sheltered nests for their hens. Millions of eggs spoil in storage because they have been exposed to dew, rain, dirt and sun in stolen nests in the grass or fence corners.

In view of this great loss of valuable food, the department urges country storekeepers and hucksters not to accept washed eggs for shipment in case lots. Shiny eggs, especially in the early spring, probably have been washed. All washed eggs purchased should be sold locally for immediate consumption.

High Prices for Eggs in Storage

By RUSSELL F. PALMER
Leavenworth, Kan.

Western and Central Western eggs went into cold storage this spring at prices ranging from 27 to 30 cents. The United States Government, under date of May 8, reported that returns from 350 cold storage houses showed that on May 1, 1917, only 1,739,692 cases of eggs were in storage, as compared with 2,327,174 cases May 1, 1916, a decrease of 25.2 per cent.

The report shows that on May 1, 1917, the average price of market eggs throughout the country was 30 cents per dozen, compared with 18.1 cents per dozen May 1, 1916. These averages include, of course, all Southern eggs, which always have sold at lower prices than Northern eggs. In 1915 eggs that went into cold storage during April and May brought only 17 to 21 cents per dozen. Thus it will be seen that the commission buyers and cold storage men have paid close to 100 per cent more for the future "pickled eggs" than was paid two years ago.

Economy in Brooding Late-Hatched Chicks

Late hatched chicks can be given to hens in larger numbers than earlier in the season. I know one poultryman who continues hatching up to July 1 or later, and he puts 40 to 50 chicks with one hen. She cannot brood them all, but they do not require much brooding in mid-summer. Provision is made for protection at night and, of course, the chicks must be looked after when it rains. The hen keeps the chicks together, affords them protection from some of their enemies and finds food for them. This is a much better plan than to have three or four hens caring for the same number of chicks, because the hens should be laying.

It is better to have small chicks with hens than to let them run by themselves, even in summer, especially on the farm where they have free range. This method is one of the effective ways of eliminating waste, because one hen performs the task of three or four.

Lengthen Hatching Season This Year

With many the hatching season closes in April or May. But that is too early this year. The country needs more fowls and more eggs. They can be hatched by many poultry raisers in June, July and even later. Summer-hatched chicks are profitable, and will be especially so this year. They will be ready for market during the fall and winter and, while the late hatched pullets cannot be expected to lay many eggs during the winter, they will be especially good layers next spring and summer.

Unless you are sure you have out enough chicks for the season it will be well worth while to continue hatching operations for a month or two longer.

DRIVE HERE THIS WEEK TO HELP FILL "THE REGULARS"

Civic Organizations to Co-operate in Carrying Out President's Desire.

70,000 SOLDIERS NEEDED

Men Who Join Standing Force Likely to Be Sent to Front Soon.

It is President Wilson's desire, as expressed in an official proclamation, that recruiting activities this week in all parts of the country be centered on the enlistment of men for the regular army.

The President desires that 70,000 additional soldiers be added to the regular force by next Saturday night. These are to be men between 18 and 40 years of age who are unmarried and without dependents and who are not engaged in occupations vital to the prosecution of the war.

St. Louis has been called upon to do its share and it is expected that civic and other organizations which heretofore have given such valuable aid in recruiting for other branches of the service will direct their concerted effort to filling the ranks of the regulars.

Status of Those Who Enlist.

Men who enlist in the regular army now will have the assurance that they will actually be in the service within 24 hours after they are accepted. There will be no waiting for specific units to be filled. When their names are placed on the rolls they will be a part of the army and practically on their way to the front, for it is conceded that the regulars will have the earliest possible opportunity to see actual service in the war zone.

Gen. E. J. Spencer of the Missouri National Guard will aid in big recruiting drive and civic, patriotic and church organizations also will help.

Even those who cannot enlist, including women and children, will have an opportunity to aid in the work and thereby do a valuable service to the country. Individuals are asked to talk with men of their acquaintance who are eligible for military service and to persuade them to join the regular army.

The names of all persons who succeed in inducing at least one man to join the army will be placed on a roll of honor which will be posted in the recruiting offices and will be published. It will be a proud distinction to be on this roll of honor.

Appeal of Major Goode.

Maj. George W. Goode, in charge of the recruiting office here, yesterday appeared before the War Board of the Chamber of Commerce and made a strong appeal for aid during "regular army week."

"It must be made clear," Maj. Goode explained to the War Board, "that the need is urgent, else President Wilson would not have made it the subject of a proclamation. The President has specified in his appeal for recruits that they are to volunteer for the regular army as distinguished from any other unit.

"The regular army is the nucleus about which the other forces are to be organized, and the law provides that this regular army must be filled up to war strength of 300,000 men by June 30.

"Men who have registered for the draft can enlist. The regular army cannot depend upon conscription to fill its ranks; it must be filled at once by voluntary enlistment.

"St. Louis has contributed generously in its work of helping the Government. Every appeal has shown results which place her at the top of the roll of honor. She is now asked to send her sons to become trained soldiers at once, for the regular army is the active branch of the service. Recruits are put into training at once. Many of the volunteers received this week will be trained and ready to drill the large army that will be raised from those who have registered for the draft.

"Young men from 19 to 22 can be appointed from the ranks to West Point, and between 21 and 27 years they can get commissions as second lieutenants—direct from the ranks after one year's service in either case."

Army Week in Churches.

Pastors have been asked to mention "regular army week" in their sermons today and large business concerns have been urged to send recruits.

The Chamber of Commerce War Board yesterday wired George Creel, national director of publicity, asking that the "Four-minute Men" be turned over to the regular army recruiting effort for the week. These men, trained speakers, have been an important factor in the Liberty Bond and Red Cross campaign here. They make four-minute speeches in theaters, moving picture houses and other public places.

Recruiting at Low Ebb.

Washington dispatches state that army recruiting dropped to its lowest ebb Friday, with only 771 men accepted throughout the country. An average of near 10,000 men a day must be obtained this week to bring the army to its war strength.

In St. Louis yesterday 12 men had been accepted at noon, but Maj. Goode thought enlistments would begin to pour in tomorrow.

When the presidential proclamation was prepared the army was short 45,000 infantrymen and field artillerymen and 25,000 reserves for all arms. The cavalry, signal corps, engineers and other branches had been filled up. Since then 10,000 men have been accepted.

When the expansion of the regular army to its full strength of 300,000 was ordered on April 11, the service was 184,000 men below that total. Since then about 124,000 men have been obtained and are now under training. At least four infantry divisions will be ready soon for European service, whenever the President decides to send them.

to enlist in the Regular Army and have sent him with this slip to the U. S. Army Recruiting Station, fourth floor, Old Custom House, corner Third and Olive streets, to be enlisted.

The only requirements are that the applicant be unmarried and between the ages of 18 and 40 years; he does not have to be naturalized, but must not be a subject of the enemy countries.

Cut this out, get your man, send him down to enlist and your name and his will appear on the "Honor Roll" published in the Post-Dispatch during "Army Recruiting Week," June 23—30.

FIRST ARTILLERY WILL START CAMPAIGN HERE FOR RECRUITS

Battery A to Form Nucleus of New Regiment Now Being Organized in St. Louis.

Active recruiting will be undertaken this week for the First Regiment, Missouri Field Artillery, being formed in St. Louis, with Battery A as a nucleus. Applicants will be received at the Armory, Grand avenue and Hickory street, or at the downtown recruiting office, Sixth and Olive streets.

Battery A has the necessary strength, it was announced yesterday; the fourth separate battery has been mustered in, and the fifth separate bttery will be complete within a few days. Another battery is being formed in Webster Groves.

It is believed Lieut. Col. Frank M. Rumbold, now assistant to the chief of the Bureau for Militia Affairs in the War Department in Washington, will be colonel of this regiment. Horace S. Rumsey, former excise commissioner, is to be captain and regimental adjutant.

Walter J. Warner and Robert C. Rutledge, first lieutenants of Battery A, will be majors in command of the two battalions and James Lucas Turner, who saw service in the regular army, will be adjutant of the first battalion. Dr. Lewis T. Prim will become a major and command the sanitary detachment.

A field artillery regiment consists of six batteries divided into two battalions, a sanitary detachment and headquarters detachment, in which the mounted band is included, altogether a minimum strength of 47 officers and 893 men.

Recruiting Stations in 25 Churches in Chicago.

CHICAGO, June 23.—Twenty-five Chicago churches will be opened as recruiting stations for the regular army next week. They will fly the American flag and the recruiting flag just as regular recruiting stations do, to aid in raising the 70,000 volunteers called for by President Wilson.

EXPERT BAKER AND CHEF FEED JACKIES ON U. S. FLEET ABROAD

Life So Pleasant Aboard Flotilla's "Mother Ship" That Men Do Not Go Ashore.

BASE OF AMERICAN FLOTILLA IN BRITISH WATERS, June 23.—Jackies of the American patrol are getting the best of care and fare, as one result of the adequate equipment of the flotilla's mother ship and the efficiency of the men who man it.

"It is really marvelous what you Americans can do," remarked a British officer. The ship not only keeps the fleet in trim but bakes the bread and performs innumerable other services for the men.

The mother ship is the only place in the British Isles where bread other than "war bread" is made. A baker, formerly with two of the biggest hotels at a famous Atlantic coast resort, turns out daily several hundred loaves of the finest white bread. The meals for the packies are cooked by a chef from one of New York's popular Broadway hotels. In fact, life is so pleasant aboard this beehive of industry that five members of her crew have not set foot ashore since her arrival.

MUST CARRY REGISTRATION CARD TO PREVENT POLICE DETENTION

Negro Porter Arrested and Held Until Credentials Are Brought From Home by Relative.

Men of army draft age, who have registered under the selective draft act, must carry their registration cards with them if they wish to avoid possible detention by the police. This was shown by the experience of Thomas Holland, of 4209 St. Louis avenue, a negro porter in the employment of the Post-Dispatch

Holland is a boxer of local note. He registered June 5, but made the mistake of leaving his card at home. When a policeman asked him for the card, at Jefferson avenue and Pine street Friday night, he was unable to show it. He was taken to a police station and held until a relative, to whom he was permitted to telephone, appeared with the card.

FILM OF WAR TANKS IN ACTION

The Columbia Theater, for the week beginning tomorrow afternoon, will show "The Tanks in Action at the Battle of the Ancre," the latest official British Government war pictures, not shown before in St. Louis, displaying close-up fighting.

Soldiers are shown leaving their trenches to charge with bayonets, falling here and there. The land dreadnoughts, or tanks, are seen lumbering forward, bullets raining upon their metal hides and their guns spouting fire. British guns seek out a blockhouse containing a nest of German machine guns, and shells are seen falling nearer and nearer until the eighth shot strikes and wipes it out.

Scottish Clan Picnic Plans.

Gifts of groceries and fancy articles to be sold from booths at the Scottish Clans' patriotic picnic and bazar for the benefit of the American Ambulance service in France, at Normandy Grove, July 4, have been generous and the indications are for a marked success. A business meeting furthering the cause will be held next Monday night at the Parish house, Church of the Redeemer.

Doctors Tell Why They Prescribe Bon-Opto. Explain How It Strengthens Eyesight Remarkably in a Week's Time In Many Instances

Has Seen Eyesight Improve from 75 to 100% in a Remarkably Short Time.

"Bon-Opto Is Hastening the Eyeglassless Age in Bespectacled Boston."

Boston, Mass.—Victims of eye strain and other eye weaknesses, and those who wear glasses, will be glad to know that Doctors and Eye Specialists now agree there is real hope and help for them. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored, and many who once wore glasses say they have thrown them away. One man says, after using Bon-Opto: "I was almost blind. Could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without my glasses, and my eyes do not hurt any more. At night they would pain dreadfully. Now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can read even fine print without glasses." Another who used it says: "I was bothered with eye-strain caused by overworked, tired eyes, which induced fierce headaches. I have worn glasses for several years, both for distance and work, and without them I could not read my own name on an envelope or the typewriting on the machine before me. I can do both now, and have discarded my long-distance glasses altogether. I can count the fluttering leaves on the trees across the street now, which for several years have looked like a dim green blur to me. I cannot express my joy at what it has done for me."

It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time, and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses.

Dr. Beck, an eye specialist of nearly twenty years' practice, says: "Two prominent eye specialists, after a thorough examination of a young girl aged 12, decided that to save the sight of her right eye the left must be removed. A friend advised her father to try Bon-Opto before permitting the operation. Within three days a decided improvement was noticeable, within a week the inflammation had almost disappeared, and at the end of six weeks all danger was past and the eye saved. I saw the case again today. The eyeball has perfect motion. When she began to use Bon-Opto it was in a fixed position. The conjunctival inflammation has disappeared. Her vision is now 20-30 (20-20 is normal, as you know), as against 20-2000 when she began the use of Bon-Opto. Another patient came to me suffering from Blepharitis Marginalis, with all the usual symptoms, such as morning agglutination of the lids, chronic conjunctivitis and ephiphora. Her eyes had the dull, suffused expression, common to such cases. She used Bon-Opto, and not only overcame her distressing condition, but so strengthened her eyesight that she was able to dispense with her distance glasses and her headache and neuralgia left her. In this instance I should say her eyesight was improved 100 per cent."

Dr. Judkins says: "While house surgeon at a New England Eye and Ear Infirmary and during many years in general dispensary practice, I found oculists too prone to operate and opticians too willing to prescribe glasses, and both inclined to neglect the strengthening and developing of the eyesight. The success of Bon-Opto in strengthening the eyesight will soon make eyeglasses old-fashioned. The Director of Medical Inspection of Boston Schools, in a report published February 20, 1917, states that only 14,016 pupils out of 89,175 examined need to wear glasses now, a marked decrease over the previous report. Bon-Opto is hastening the eyeglassless age in bespectacled Boston."

Dr. Smith, an oculist of wide experience, says: "I have treated in private practice a number of serious opthalmic diseases with Bon-Opto, and am able to report ultimate recovery in both acute and chronic cases. Mr. B. came to my office suffering with an infected eye. The condition was so serious that an operation for enucleation seemed imperative. Before resorting to the operative method I prescribed Bon-Opto, and in twenty-four hours the secretion had lessened, inflammatory symptoms began to subside, and in seven days the eye was cured and retained its normal vision. Another case of extreme convergent strabismus (cross eyes) escaped the surgeon's knife by the timely use of your treatment. The tightened external muscles yielded to the soothing and anodyne effects of Bon-Opto. By cleansing the lids of secretions and acting as a tonic for the eyeball itself, the vision is rendered more acute, hence the number of cases of discarded glasses."

Dr. Connor says: "My eyes were in bad condition, owing to the severe strain arising from protracted microscopical research work. Bon-Opto used according to directions rendered a surprising service. I found my eyes remarkably strengthened, so much so I have put aside my glasses without discomfort. Several of my colleagues have also used it, and we are agreed as to its results. In a few days, under my observation, the eyes of an astigmatic case were so improved that glasses have been discarded by the patient."

Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by the use of Bon-Opto, and if you want to strengthen your eyes, go to any drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and let it dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start, and inflammation and redness will quickly disappear. If your eyes bother you even a little it is your duty to take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have saved their sight if they had cared for their eyes in time.

NOTE—A city physician, to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Yes, Bon-Opto is a remarkable eye remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. I have used it very successfully in my own practice on patients whose eyes were strained through overwork or misfit glasses. I can highly recommend it in case of weak, watery, aching, smarting, itching, burning eyes, red lids, blurred vision or for eyes inflamed from exposure to smoke, sun, dust or wind. It is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." Bon-Opto is not a patent medicine or secret remedy. It is an ethical preparation, the formula being printed on the package. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time, in many instances, or refund the money. It is dispensed by all good druggists in this city, including Johnson-Enderle-Pauley, Judge & Dolph and Wolff-Wilson Drug Companies.—ADVERTISEMENT.

In Memoriam.

In loving remembrance of my dear husband, Edward G. Watkins, who departed this life June 20, 1916.

In the graveyard softly sleeping,
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one I loved so dearly
In his lonely, silent grave.
Peaceful be your sleep, dear husband,
'Tis sweet to breathe your name.
In life I loved you dearly,
In death I do the same.
Just one year ago you left me,
How I miss you, husband dear,
And remember all your kindness
As I drop a silent tear.

Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of my dear husband, Hugo Schneider, died June 25, 1915.

One long year ago today
Since my dear husband passed away;
I saw him suffer and heard him sigh,
With aching heart and weeping eyes;
I saw him sinking hour by hour;
Yet could not stay death's awful power.
He calmly sleeps at last,
All aches, all pains, all suffering past;
The stars are shining on the solemn grave
Of the one I could not save.

Sadly missed by wife.
MILLIE SCHNEIDER.

Don't go "up against" that heavy priced stuff. We give you the benefit of our immense buying capacity and the elimination of all unnecessary expense. There are no high rents, no free deliveries, no credit accounts with the resulting bad debts. This policy enables us to save you $5 to $10 on your suit. What you keep and "don't spend" is "profit." Just received 75 fine suits, all sizes, all colors; mohair, English and plain models, $10, $12.50 and $15. Fun on the Farm

THE MILKMAID.

Said Mrs. F., the farmer's wife,
Next morning, "It's my wont
To ask the guests to help me milk,
Then to the village jaunt."
She smiled when I admitted that
"To milk, I'll have to learn,"
It was her little trick, said she:
"Well, then, I'll let you churn."
But, say, some recreation there,
And my! How we all ate.
Me for the Summer on a farm
To rest and rusticate.

A. RIMER.

The Value of a Guaranty of Title

You may ascertain the value of a Guaranty of Title by finding out whether the title papers you hold would protect you against forgeries, false releases of deeds of trust, suits pending, or claims of parties not appearing of record.

If you are not protected against all of these possibilities, you owe it to yourself and to those dependent upon you, that you obtain such protection.

A Guaranty of Title protects you against all claims whether of record or not, excepting only those reported in the Guaranty.

SOUTHEAST MISSOURI is just on the eve of being discovered. For years the outside world has heard nothing whatever of it or the stories of its swamps that it has heard have created an altogether erroneous impression. Within the past 2 years prices at which lands have changed hands have advanced somewhat, but the prices for even its most wonderful soils are still absurdly low. We have well located tracts in the Little River Drainage District which we are selling to discriminating buyers at from $48 to $62, with some absolutely perfect soil as low as $50. Lands more or less developed at correspondingly low figures. It is our judgment that these lands will advance presently in much livelier fashion to two or three times the figures at which they can be acquired at the moment. Box A-5, Post-Dispatch. (c99)

YOU will buy this land if you see it. Now is the time to buy land in the Little River Drainage District, Southeast Missouri, Stoddard County, while prices are low and terms easy. No. 3, 80 acres cutover, ½ mile of Ardeola, on Cotton Belt R. R.; drainage ditch on north line; county road on east line; 1¼ miles of Toppertown, on Frisco R. R.; N½NE 15-27-11, $41 per acre. No. 37, 200 acres, 80 acres in cultivation; good 4-room house, good 30x40 barn, ¼ mile of Avert, on main line Cotton Belt R. R. Lot No. 1, northwest of river, and lot 1, northwest location, and lots 8 and 9, located 35-27-11, $65 per acre. No. 54, 120 acres, 25 acres in cultivation, ¼ mile of Cline's Island, E½NE and NE SE 7-26-12, $55 per acre. No. 64, 15,000 acres, $450,000. Griff Glover, 5070 Waterman av., St. Louis, Mo. (c99)

THE greatest bargain I have ever offered and by all odds the best buy in Southeast Missouri, of which I have knowledge; authorities agree that better land does not exist than is found in Stoddard County, Southeast Missouri, between Little River and Castor River, in the Little River Drainage District. I own and offer an exceptionally well located tract of 5000 acres, 1000 acres in cultivation, 1500 acres deadened; 18 sets of improvements, 2 railroad shipping points and town sites. Zeta and Toppertown, on the land; price, for prompt acceptance, ¼ cash, balance 20 years. Griff Glover, 5070 Waterman av., St. Louis. (c99)

YOUR LAST CHANCE

I believe unimproved land in the Little River Drainage District, now selling from $40 to $75, will not be obtainable below $125 before the close of 1918. I and my correspondents have listed over 12,000 acres of cutover, unimproved land, which we will sell at $45 to $60. Some of this land is as fine as there is in the entire district, and is today well worth double what we are selling it for; terms, one-fourth to one-half cash, balance to suit. Box A-13, Post-Dispatch. (c99)

42½ Acres at Ellisville, on Manchester Rd.

GOING FAST

Little River Drainage District lands, in Southeast Missouri, are going fast; we have sold 114 tracts in 25 months; $50 up for cutover land, $85 up for improved; have absolutely nothing to offer in trade and therefore decline to answer trade propositions. Box A-14, Post-Dispatch. (c90)

JEFFERSON CO. FARM & STOCK, Cheap

Thirty-five acres of very good land, 1 mile of Horine Station on Iron Mountain and Frisco railroads, on good county road, with good improvements, including growing crop; fine orchard; splendid water in abundance; team of mares, brood sow, large number of chickens; price $3500.

J. CONCANNON, 212 Wainwright Bldg.

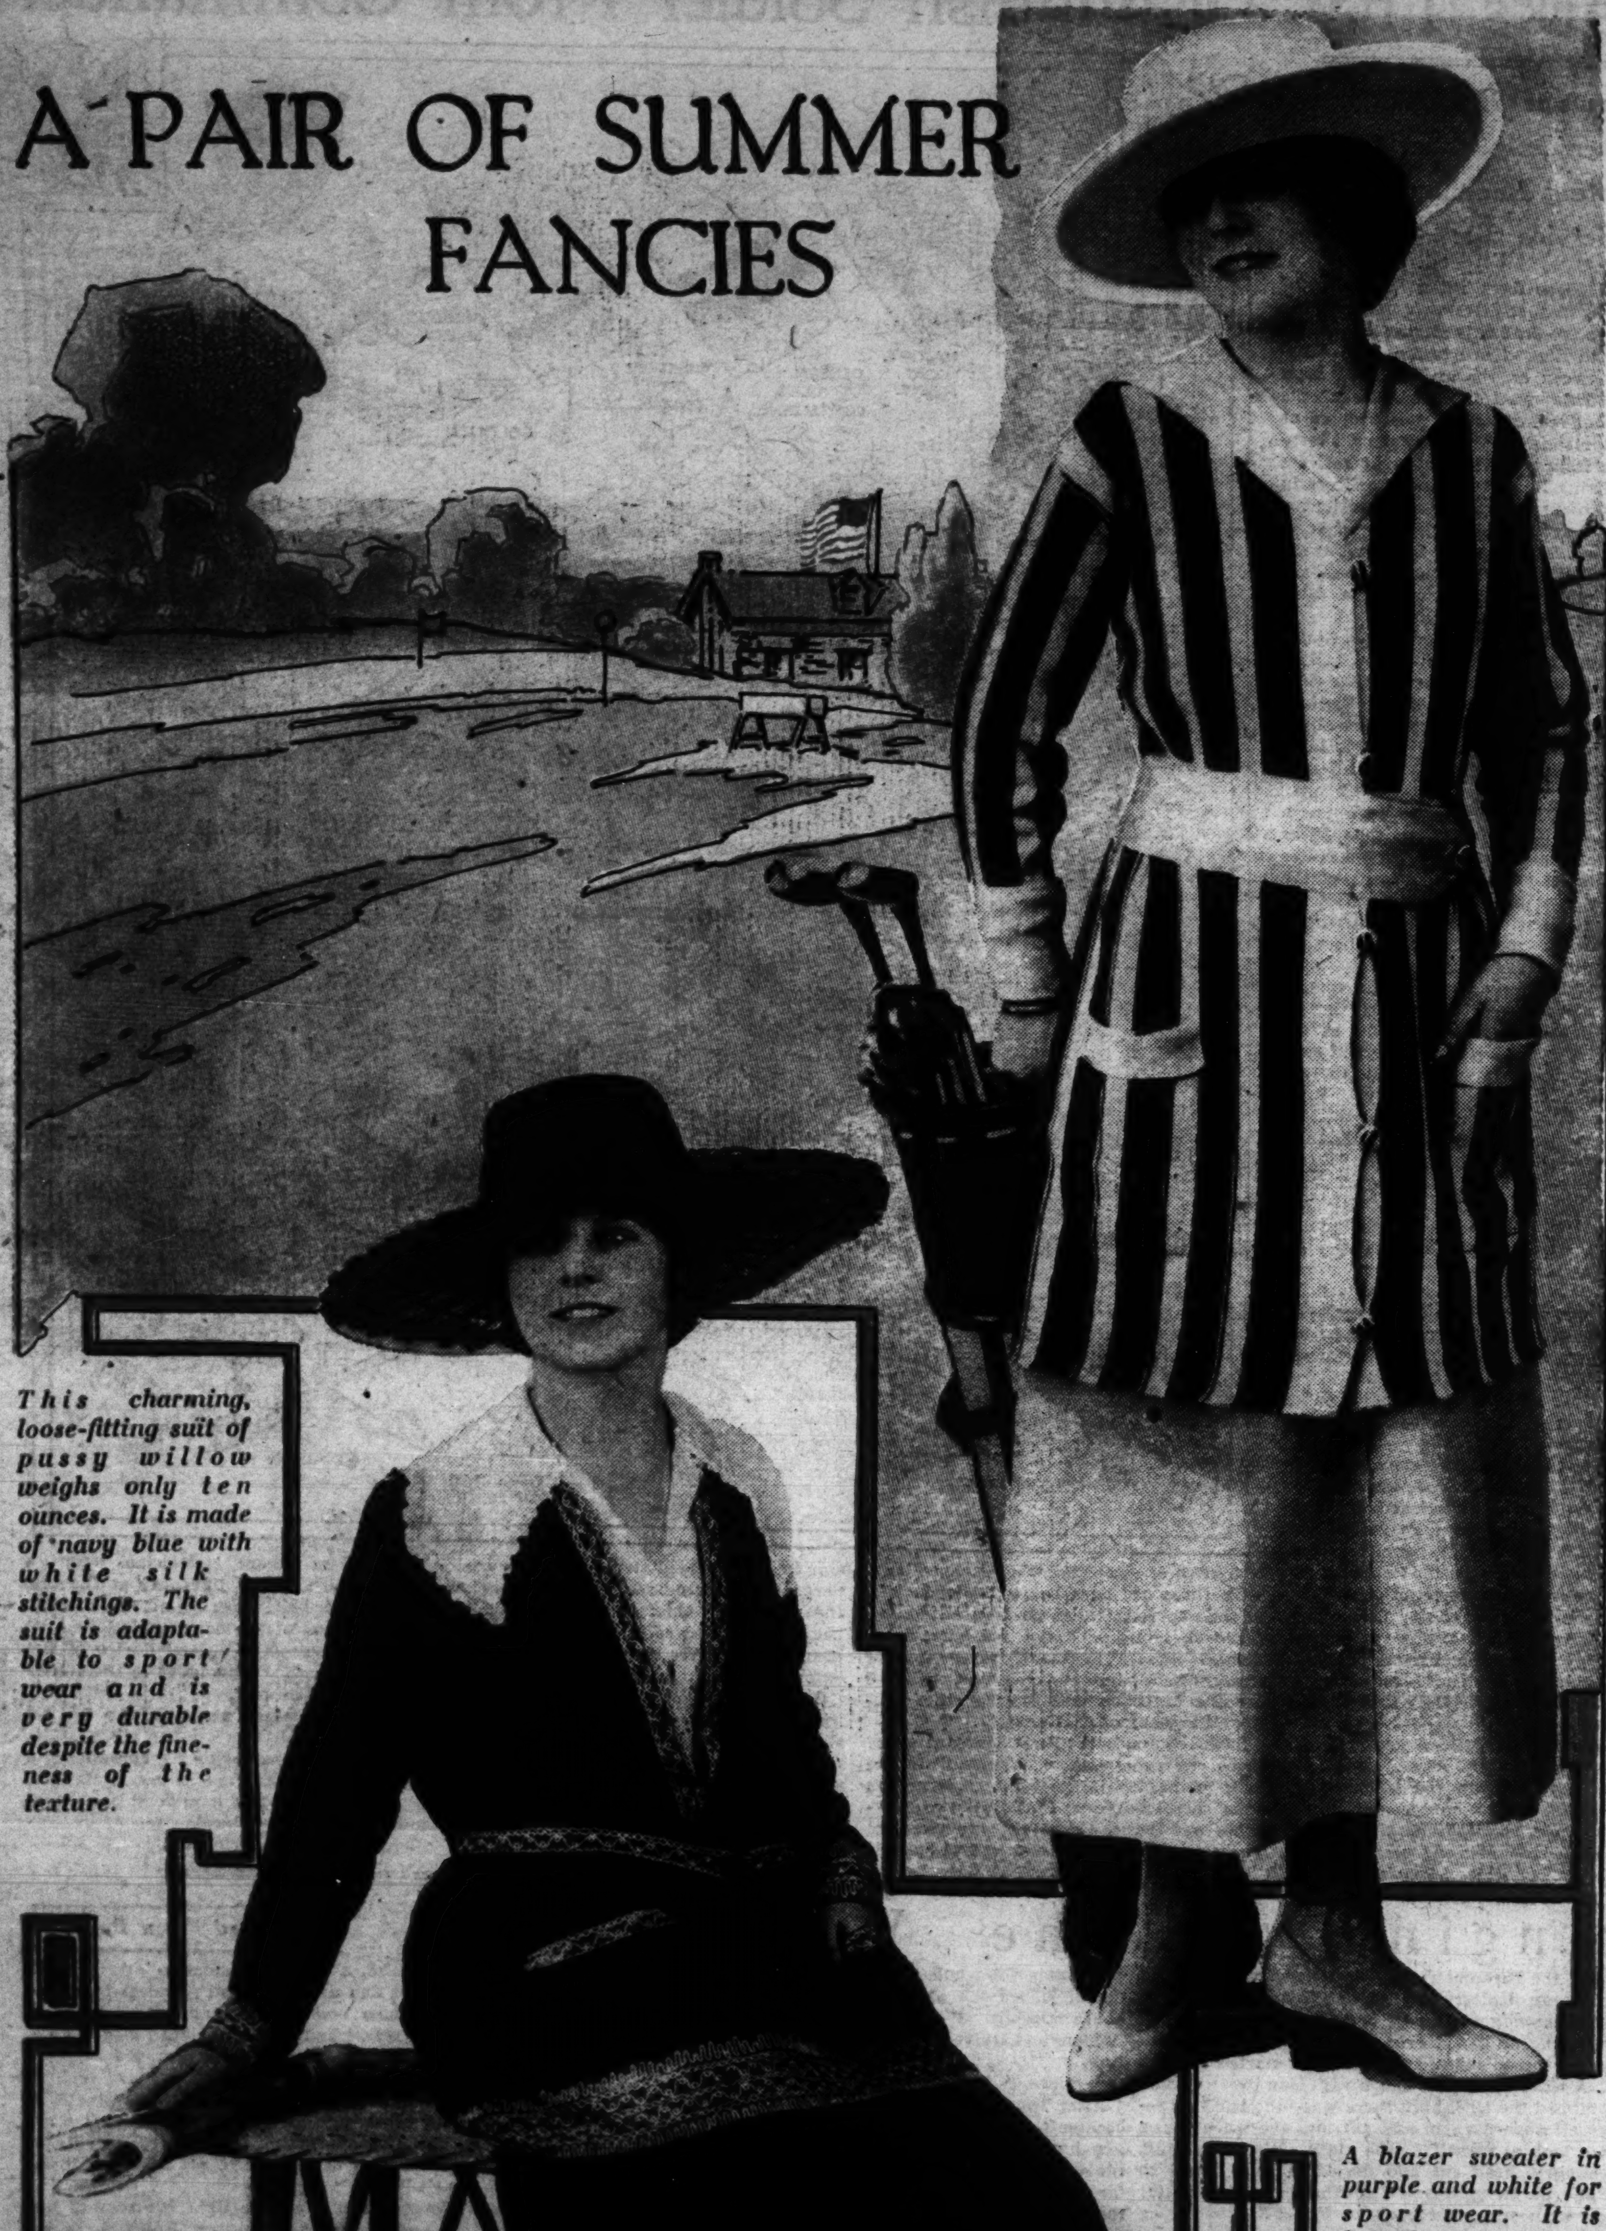
"A STUDY IN YELLOW"

THIS poster is the work of an American woman artist, Miss Mary De B. Graves. It is one of the scores that have been made by the most notable artists in America for the purpose of arousing our men and women to the country's needs in this critical hour.

Miss Graves is the daughter of a professor in the University of North Carolina. She studied in the art school of the Pennsylvania Academy in Philadelphia. Later she went to New York and worked under William M. Chase, the great painter, who began his art career in St. Louis. Miss Graves' ultimate goal is painting, but she could not resist the appeal of these stirring times—thus the poster, which she calls a "poster for slackers."

A PAIR OF SUMMER FANCIES



This charming, loose-fitting suit of pussy willow weighs only ten ounces. It is made of navy blue with white silk stitchings. The suit is adaptable to sport wear and is very durable despite the fineness of the texture.

A blazer sweater in purple and white for sport wear. It is bound to make a game of golf more attractive—at any rate for the gallery. It is not only good to look upon but is comfortable to move around in.

What Council of National Defense Is Doing

Hundreds of millions saved in Government contracts, thousands of industrial plants placed on bases of efficiency and labor and transportation problems solved, all in a few months :: :: ::

NAPOLEON'S measure of a man was the answer to his famous question, "What has he done?"

And "What have the Council of National Defense and its Advisory Commission done?" is a question which many ask and few answer, for the simple reason that both have been so busy "doing" they have had little time and less inclination to talk of accomplishments.

Nevertheless, those accomplishments have been very real, and of far greater scope and importance than is generally realized.

Because it is impossible in the short space here available to present more than a sketch of these activities, it is necessary to draw attention to the fact that any mobilization of a nation's resources, be they military or industrial, scientific or human, of materials or brains, requires the immediate solution of an endless list of problems, each one of which may be likened to a cog on a wheel—in itself a small part of the machine, yet which, imperfect or ineffective, may hamper the operation of the whole.

The chart published herewith shows at a glance the organization and the principal ramifications of the council and its advisory commission, and a moment's study of it will differentiate sharply between the two.

The council itself, meeting every day, hears reports from the director, and plans, directs and refers matters for investigation and report to the boards and committees of the council and to the advisory commission and its co-operative committees—the advisory commission and its co-operative committees report back with recommendations to the council.

It is difficult to assign any one activity the premier place in a scale of importance. But as active warfare is impossible without munitions, perhaps the work of the General Munitions Board and the Munitions Standard Board may not unjustly be mentioned first.

Not least among its accomplishments has been the elimination of competitive buying between army and navy departments. Many conferences with munitions manufacturers, present and prospective, have been held, with very definite results. A rifle supply sufficient for 1,000,000 men has been developed, including arrangements for sufficient ammunition. Manufacturers of artillery ammunition, gun forgings, machiners of forgings, gun carriages, limbers, caissons, forge wagons, military vehicles and machine guns, have been interviewed, in many cases contracts arranged, in others modifications of existing specifications effected. Whenever a lack of material or of sufficient manufacturing facilities has been discovered, steps have been taken to meet the shortage. In some cases this has been done by elimination of nonessential supplies, as in the case of optical glass and military instruments, from the list of which certain instruments desirable, but not indispensable, have been cut out. The co-operation of the Bureau of Standards for the calibration of gages and safe-keeping of master gages has been secured, a most necessary step, since a uniformity of material is an absolute essential, both to economy of production and speed of delivery of all varieties of munitions. Add to the above the fact that a confidential list, carefully investigated and comprehensively compiled, of some 660 manufacturers of munitions, present and possible, has been submitted to both war and navy departments, and it will easily be understood that the General Munitions Board has been able to save millions of Government money, simply by its work of co-ordination of purchases and its elimination of duplication of effort, both purchasing and manufacturing.

Chart showing activities of the Council of National Defense and its Advisory Commission.

Much newspaper complaint of the lack of aeronautical preparedness and progress is in evidence. But the Aircraft Production Board, under the chairmanship of Howard E. Coffin, is working tooth and nail to remedy our lack of flying eyes, and has some real accomplishments to its credit, in spite of the fact that it has been in existence only since April 17 of this year. United States aircraft manufacturers have been organized in an association, looking to standardization and co-operation. The long-standing controversy between the Wright-Martin and Curtiss companies, regarding patents, has been settled in an agreement, at least as far as Government contracts are concerned, a most important accomplishment. A comprehensive training plan for army aviators has been developed, in co-operation with Gen. George O. Squier, Chief Signal Officer, and, through the presidents of military engineering universities, six schools for preliminary training of aviator cadets have been started to work. Plans for battleplanes are now being drawn, orders for machines are being placed, a standardized training machine, applicable to English, Canadian and United States services has been developed, the whole production field has been surveyed, school buildings and sites have been planned and in some cases leased.

Medical mobilization has, under the general supervision of Dr. Franklin H. Martin, been carried far on the way to accomplishment. Twenty-one thousand competent physicians have been selected and certified to the Surgeon-General, instruments, supplies and equipment used in army, navy, public health and Red Cross services have been standardized.

Little is known publicly of the work of the Interdepartmental Advisory Committee, created in March of this year. Yet its efforts to co-ordinate and thus speed up the work of national defense and to avoid needless duplication of work have been productive of a saving of time and money hardly to be measured. A general tightening up of departmental machinery is aimed at.

Of the work of the council in the realm of invention, little can be said, for obvious reasons. The Naval Consulting Board, with Edison at the head, acts as the Inventions Board for the council. That it has been actively engaged for some time in important investigations regarding a remedy or remedies for the submarine menace will be no news to those who follow events.

A. W. Shaw heads the Commercial Economy Board, the functions of which are to find out how business may best aid the Government and how labor, supplies and equipment may best be used in the preparedness campaign without impairment of regular commercial efficiency or the working of unnecessary hardship to the general public.

One result of the work of the board has been an investigation regarding store delivery and arrangements by which many retail establishments can release men and equipment from delivery service to governmental use—a plan, incidentally, aimed at one of the many octopus arms of the high cost of living. Solution of problems of economics in wrapping, packing, reduction of size of catalogues, the reselling of returned bread, modification of the ordinary commercial demands to allow a diverting of supplies to Government use, as, for instance, in the case of raw wool for blankets, even questions of style in garment and footwear, looking to a conservation of materials, are under way.

The Committee on Coal Production has aided the Department of Labor and the American Federation of Labor in the settlement of serious coal labor difficulties. Long hauls of coal to Indian schools and agencies, which can as well use nearer supplies, have been eliminated, thus releasing cars. Increased facilities for the loading of navy coal have been arranged, and the acute situation for the supply of coal to the Government buildings in Washington has been relieved.

The National Research Council is at present engaged in investigations of detection means for completely submerged mines and submarines, range finders, detectors for invisible aeroplanes and sappers, improvements in wireless, military photography, prevention of electrolytic action on metal hulls, balloon fabric, slicker fabrics, new explosives, utilization of wastes and by-products, the nitrate supply and optical glass problems, antitoxins and serums and other medical problems, sterilization of drinking water, soldiers' clothing and blankets, the study of occupational disease, with special reference to the conservation of health of munitions workers, ear protection from high explosive shock, protection from poisonous gas, etc., etc.

The Department of Co-operation With the States has done wonderful work in bringing these political units of the United States together in a coherent whole, looking to the use of state machinery to the good of the nation. The advisory commission and its subcommittees have been doing an immense amount of constructive work, which should have pages instead of the few paragraphs available here. A complete mobilization of the nation's railroads has been effected, through the special committee on national defense appointed by the American Railway Association. In effect, this mobilization is to make the railroads of the United States one system for war purposes, eliminating red tape and the commercial factor and, in some measure at least, approaching the wonderful transportation efficiency of the German Government railroad system.

This is not a paper accomplishment. Coal is being given preference in car supply and movement, ore comes next, car service rules have been modified to facilitate free movement, passenger service is being modified and curtailed to expand freight service, nine reserve engineer regiments of skilled railway workers to aid France in rehabilitating her railways have been organized, food movements have been simplified and made faster—in fact, the whole railways service has been speeded up for governmental and economic preparedness in a way which warring commercial interests held to be impossible until the contrary was shown by actual accomplishment.

The same course of procedure in telegraphic and telephonic communication has resulted in the elimination of lost motion, not only between companies and the Government, but between company and company.

The Committee of Supplies has many accomplishments to its credit, first of which has been the elimination of the advertising and bidding method of Government purchase, satisfactory in peace times, even though leading to competition and inflation of price, but too cumbersome and slow for war. The committee has largely stopped the Government from competing with itself in the open market, by similar purchases through different channels. New specifications, required by existing trade conditions, have been written for many supplies; the middleman is being eliminated as far as possible, options on great quantities of important supplies have been secured and a vast amount of money saved the country.

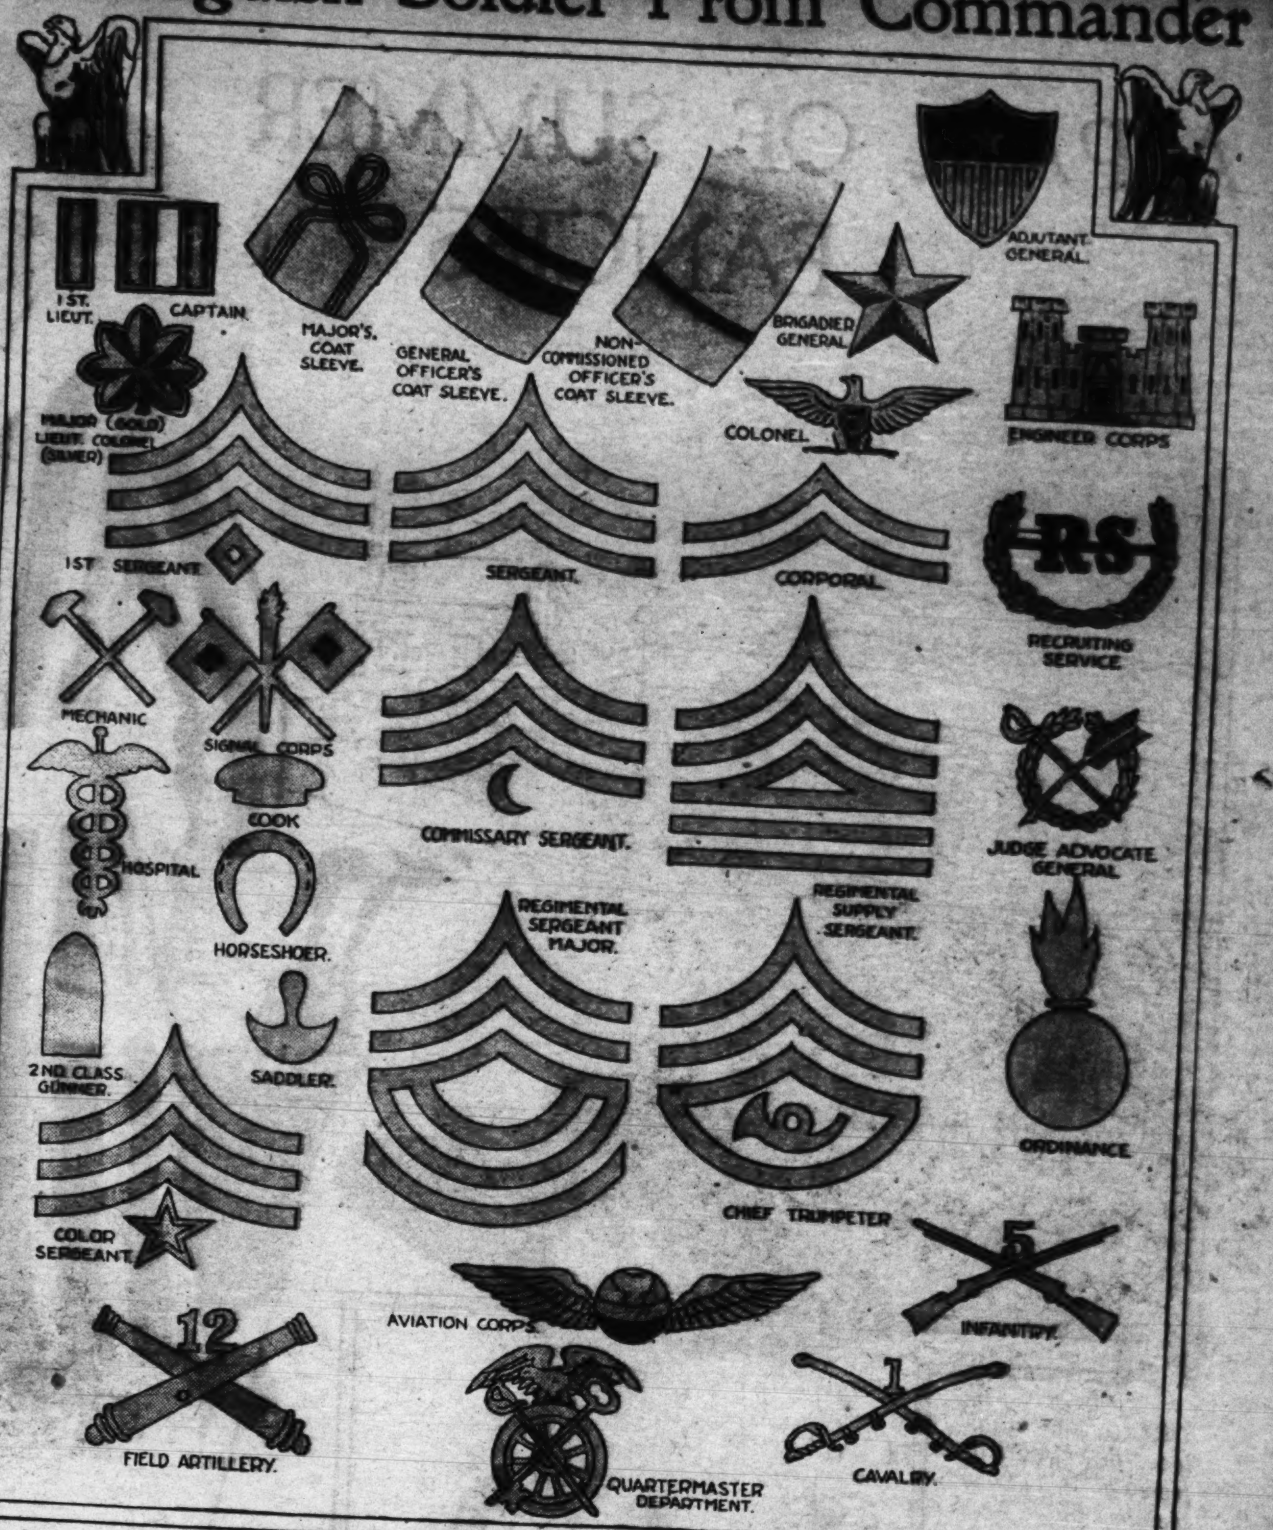
The Committee on Raw Materials, Minerals and Metals has saved the Government ten millions on the purchase of 45,000,000 pounds of copper. Twenty-five millions pounds of zinc at two-thirds the market price have been secured, several hundred thousand tons of ship plates bought at $58 a ton instead of the commercial price of $160 a ton, and aluminum, chemicals, oil and a hundred other materials purchased at prices correspondingly below the market rates.

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, is chairman of that Committee on Labor which has done such fine work for the council and the Government. Too long to detail here, these labors are typified by the patriotic co-operation promised the Government by organized labor everywhere.

The council has more than 27,000 detailed reports in its files of manufacturing plants the country over showing capacity and product, almost wholly the work of Mr. Howard Coffin's Committee on Industrial Preparedness.

Marks That Distinguish Soldier From Commander

Uniforms of Officers and Men Differ Only in Insignia Indicating Rank and Branch of Service :: :: ::



IN these days when the United States soldiers are wearing the olive-drab it is almost impossible at first glance to distinguish between officer and enlisted man. This was intended when the olive-drab for all was adopted as the best means to prevent enemy sharpshooters from readily identifying officers on the firing line. The loss of officers in the past owing to conspicuous uniforms was so great that the efficiency of commands was seriously affected, and it has been deemed better strategy to keep the officers under cover in uniforms difficult to identify at a distance.

The service uniform of the United States army today is a cap with brown, falling visor; a coat and breeches of olive-drab cloth, the same shade as the cap; leggings of either leather or canvas, or some shade of brown harmonising with the clothing. So far the uniforms of officers and men are similar.

The first difference to be seen is on the front of the cap, where the officer wears the escutcheon of the United States and the enlisted man the insignia of the branch of the service—crossed rifles for infantry, crossed cannon for artillery, crossed sabers for cavalry, etc. These ornaments are of dark bronze, but the officer's cap is distinguished by the spread eagle. Officers wear the bronze letters U. S. and also the crossed arms of the branch of the service. Enlisted men have a round disk bearing weapons and the letter and number of the unit and a U. S. on another disk on the other end of the collar. The officer also has a plain band of brown braid three inches from the bottom of the sleeve. For the general staff corps black instead of brown is used.

The field uniform is the campaign hat and cord, olive-drab shirt and the remainder is the same as the service uniform. Field uniform hats for officers and men are identical except that officers below the grade of General wear a hat cord of black and gold and the enlisted men a wool cord—blue for infantry, red for artillery, yellow for cavalry, orange for signal troops, maroon for medical and hospital service.

A General is distinguished by five-pointed stars—one for a Brigadier, two for a Major, worn on the shoulder strap or shirt collar. Insignia for field and line officers are worn on the strap or collar—Colonel, silver spread-eagle; Lieutenant-Colonel, silver leaf; Major, gold leaf; Captain, two silver bars; First Lieutenant, one silver bar; chaplain, Latin cross of silver and line rank, usually that of Captain.

Noncommissioned officers are indicated by chevrons on each sleeve. On dress uniforms chevrons are the color of the branch of the service represented as explained above. The regimental Sergeant-Major wears chevrons above the elbows, composed of three inverted V-shaped bars, with three arc bars below the open side of the chevron; battalion Sergeant-Major, three chevrons with two arc-bars; regimental Supply Sergeant, three ties or straight bars below the chevrons, with two for the battalion and one for the company Sergeant of that duty.

In the company the First Sergeant wears three chevrons with a "diamond" in the included angle below. All duty Sergeants wear three chevrons; Corporals two chevrons, and Lance-Corporals one chevron. The Color Sergeants wear a five-pointed star in the included angle of the chevron; Sergeant of Commissary, a crescent below the chevrons; chief trumpeter, one arc below three chevrons, a bugle inclosed; drum major, three chevrons, with crossed batons in the included angle.

First-class privates in the hospital service wear the design illustrated on the sleeve, which insignia is worn by all officers, in gold or bronze finish, in the appropriate position on coat or shirt. In the same way, first-class privates in the signal companies wear a device of crossed signal flags with a burning torch between.

The master signal electrician wears a wreath with forked lightning at the top, inclosing crossed flags. In all cases where the chevrons of the noncommissioned officer are worn, the special device of the branch of service is included in the angles or set just below.

Bringing In the Vigilant

smaller and the barometer went up slowly. Thirsty and hungry! I only kept from choking by chewing tobacco. We stopped the engine and let her drift while I tried to get that grating off the steering gear astern. The turtle-back was too low to swing an ax in and I started back to get help. A wave struck me and I was clean over the side when I grabbed the last thing there was—the back stay—pulled myself aboard again and got into the wheelhouse. I caught a look at myself in the glass. Wet, shivering, thirsty, hungry, head cut and nose bleeding, I said to myself, 'So you thought you'd tackle the old Atlantic! Don't you wish you were back in Frisco?'

"I took a big chew and whistled down that the worst was over. The boys kept asking if there wasn't some water in my bottles, so I went down and treated them to a chew. The coal was gone, except a few tons in the side bunkers that Smith was too all-in to handle. They wanted to drift and rest up. I told them the submarines would pop us if we stayed there, but they insisted. While they were resting I took an observation. We were 20 miles off Cape Clear. Then I played on my accordion to keep myself awake.

"I helped the boys pass coal out of the side bunkers, and we got up steam again and made good headway on an easy sea. We went along like a bird with one wing, owing to the bad rudder, but at 7 p. m. we arrived off the Bantry Bay harbor entrance. There were red lights up, which signified the harbor was closed with mines. I paid no attention to that, though, and once inside I backed and filled till daylight to avoid the reefs. It was a job, with that bad helm.

"In the morning the Flying Fox, a Government tug, came along just outside, and asked how we passed the guard ship and the mines. He ordered us out, and when I asked him for a line, refused to risk coming in there. So we got out alone and made for Castletiwn. We got there at noon, made fast to the dock, and yelled for water! I took in nearly a gallon, and between us we ate three dozen fried eggs and a lot of bacon.

"It had been over 60 hours since I closed my blinkers, and I was gone past all sleeping. All night I lay living over again the whole storm and stress. Next day Lloyd's doctor doped me and I slept like a dead one for 33 hours straight. We lay at Castletown six days, shipped 10 men, and arrived at Cardiff, our destination, at 6 p. m., Nov. 9. It was good to see the bright lights and hear the voices of landsmen and the girls."

After that Fergusson's tale had no heroics in it. It became the usual sordid story of owners who would allow him and his brave mates only wages and $500 for the salvage of a vessel they were selling to Great Britain for $175,000, but the shrewd little man who had braved the Atlantic was not afraid of lawyers, and took his salvage case to the Admiralty Court in London.

And this is what Sir Samuel Evans, the President, had to say in making his award four months later: "The courage, fine spirit and absence of all physical fear displayed by these men command instant and unstinted admiration. The vessel had been abandoned by the Captain and 13 of her crew. These three men, led by Fergusson, saved the vessel. The amount I award is 5000 pounds; of that I think Fergusson ought to receive 2550 pounds, and the other men 1200 pounds each. If it were not in wartime the amount of the award would be doubled in recognition of the brave act of these three American mariners."

Interviewing Hindenburg

When the Russian Gen. Rennenkampf was forced to evacuate Insterburg in the winter of 1915 he was unable to find transport for about 50,000 loaves of bread and he ordered paraffin poured upon the lot. When the Germans entered the town and saw what had been done with the bread Hindenburg was frantic with rage. The next day, after he had calmed down, he said to one of his aides:

"Well, it seems to be a matter of taste. If the Russians like their bread that way, very well; give it to the Russian prisoners."

The order was carried out.

"HINDENBURG and I talked about 20 minutes on various subjects—Holland, Italy, America and, of course, the Russian campaign. Although he did not express the opinion to me, I have it on excellent authority that Hindenburg believes that the war will last four years and will end in a stalemate. He does not believe that the allies will be able to push the Germans out of France, Belgium or Poland.

"Personally I found it impossible to get him to make a definite statement on the probable outcome and duration of the war. 'Until we have gained an honorable peace,' was his cryptic reply. He refused to state what in his opinion was an honorable peace program. If I am to believe several of his officers—and I discussed the subject nearly every day—Hindenburg must now be a very disappointed man. I was told that he counted as a practical certainty peace with Russia after the fall of Warsaw.

"WHEN Hindenburg learned that I had come all the way from Berlin without a pass from the General Staff he appeared very much amused, but in a quasi-serious manner he said:

"'Well, you know that I ought to send you back at once, otherwise I shall risk getting the sack myself; still, as all ordinary train service between here and Posen will be suspended the next four days, the only way for you to get back is by motor car. It would be a pity to come all the way to this Siberian cold and not see something of the campaign. Travelling by motor car you will have ample opportunity to see something of the country and of fighting as well.'"

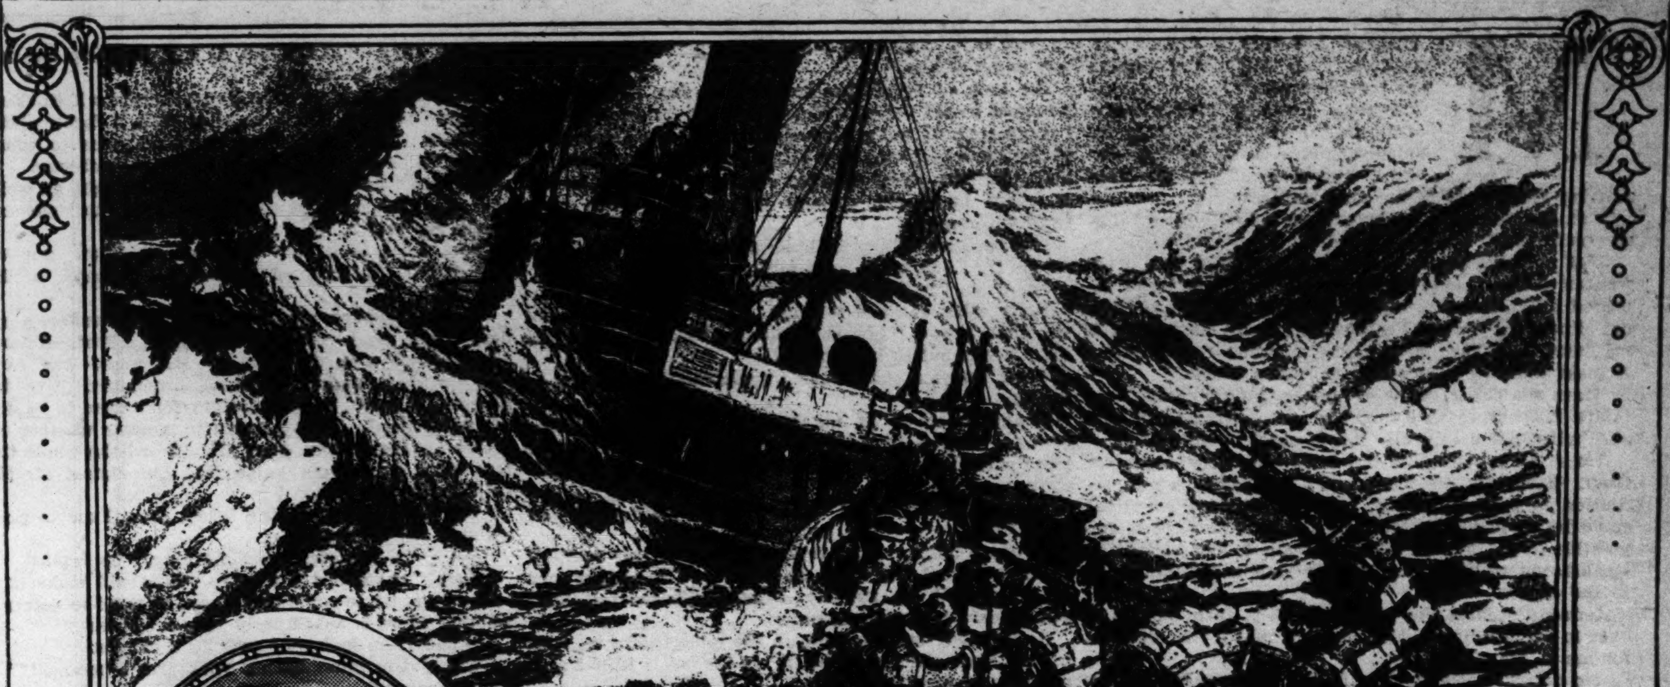
Beaufort spent two weeks on the eastern front and then returned to Berlin without difficulty.

BRINGING IN THE VIGILANT

A True Story of the Sea That Outdoes the Heroism of the Vikings



"The Rijndam came up at 6:30 and her officer, on taking off our last boatload of men, was surprised to learn that three of us were staying. 'What's the matter with you?' he yelled."

Robert Fergusson, who brought the Vigilant in.

How three men carried a 165-ton tugboat through the trough of the Atlantic after it had been abandoned by its captain and crew of 13 and brought it safe into port after terrible sufferings -:- -:- -:-

WHEN war was declared against Germany by this country a sea-faring man in San Francisco telegraphed an offer of his services to the Navy Department at Washington. Five minutes after the receipt of the message in Washington a reply was sent to Robert Fergusson, the sender of the telegram to report at once to Philadelphia where a commission awaited him. The Navy Department wasn't going to take any chances of losing Fergusson.

Fergusson, who is 39 years old, is the hero of one of the most daring adventures of the sea, an adventure which a British Admiralty Court went out of its way to characterize as so hazardous and courageous as to demand unstinted admiration. Briefly here is what Fergusson did: Last October he shipped as second mate on the tugboat Vigilant, 165 tons, about to make a trip from Norfolk, Va. to Cardiff, Wales. In mid-ocean the tug was on the verge of going to the bottom when a Holland American liner came to the rescue. The captain of the little craft abandoned the ship with 13 men Fergusson and two of the crew refused to leave and brought the craft safe to shore after sufferings of the cruelest sort and with death a constant companion by the wheel. Let Fergusson tell the story of the trip in his own words:

"I WAS in New York when I received the offer to ship as second mate of the Vigilant. A couple of engineers left with me for Norfolk. We learned there that the Vigilant had tried to make the voyage a week before, and had put back with a bad list. She was anything but seaworthy, though a heavy wooden turtle-back had been built over her. But to Cardiff she had to go. The British Government had bought her for $175,000.

"We got to Newport News, where everybody quit but the captain, chief mate, chief engineer and myself. With a new crew we made Brooklyn, where once more all the hands quit. We hired a full crew of 13 at handsome pay and sailed Oct. 11 for St. Johns, N. F. The men didn't like the ship, and at St. Johns two quit. So we sailed short handed.

"Eighty miles off shore it began to blow, and a gale astern gave us good progress. On Friday, Oct. 27, the barometer started down, and soon it was blowing great guns. The coal consumption had made her topheavy, and I could see the captain was badly scared. So were all the crew, for that matter.

"Queenstown answered our S O S, saying a patrol boat would come to help us, but nothing appeared all day. As the coal and water, her only ballast, were used up, she got crankier and crankier, and the way she rolled her sides under it was mighty hard keeping your feet. Saturday morning came at last, and how the seas were rolling! Every time a big one hit us the men were in blue funk, thinking she would turn turtle. It blew a high gale all day, and that night the men slept in clothes and life preservers. We all expected to go to the bottom before daybreak. But Sunday came and found us 380 miles from Bantry Bay. At 9 a. m. we got an answer to our S O S from the Holland liner Rijndam. She was 90 miles southwest, bound for New York, but said she could come to us.

"'When she comes,' said the Captain, 'we're going to abandon this hulk. The coal and water are nearly gone, and she's too top-heavy to last.'

"Stay with her, I insisted. "If you don't stay, I will," and I went below. The crew was in the messroom, life-belts on. 'What kind of sailors are you all?' I asked. 'Some of you stay aboard with me. I've got a master's license, and I'll take her in.'

"There was nothing doing, so I went to the engine room, and picked out Tom Welch, an oiler. 'Tom, I said, 'you were blowing your head off today about not being a barroom sailor. Stay with me and you'll get $5000. Show them what a real Yank is.'

"Tom turned to John Smith, a fireman. 'Will you take a chance, Smithy?' he asked. 'Five thousand dollars in it.' But Smithy shook his head. 'He can't stay at the wheel all the time and navigate her, too,' he objected.

"'I'll stay there for a week,' I said, and got the two of them. We shook hands on it. The gale had moderated, but the barometer was still going down. The Rijndam came up at 6:30, and her officer, on taking off our last boatload of men, was surprised to learn that three of us were staying. 'What's the matter with you?' he yelled. 'The barometer is falling fast. Better get out of there!'

"'Nothing doing,' I answered. 'See you in Liverpool.' Then I got on the bridge and gave the Rijndam three long blasts on the whistle. She looked mighty safe and inviting with all her lights shining, and the Vigilant looked small and lonesome with just us three aboard. Her passengers got on to what we were doing and cheered us till she had steamed out of hearing.

"Full speed for Erin we went. About 8, I whistled and asked Welch how much water we had. 'Forward tank empty,' he called back. 'After tank half full. No water showing in the gauges. We'll have to draw our fires.'

"'Forget that!' I yelled. 'Fill up the tanks with sea-water. Never mind if it does hurt the boilers. We've got to get her in.'

"About 9 o'clock a sea flooded the pilot house and Tom brought it up. I gulped half of it the first swallow. 'You bum,' I yelled, 'you've gone and put salt in that coffee!'

"You ought to have seen his face. He'd filled up cook's tank and everything with sea water. There we were, about to make the worst kind of a fight for our lives in the North Atlantic, and not a drop of fresh water to drink. Thirsty? I guess, yes. And all we could eat was what cold grub we could grab.

"About 5 next morning (Sunday) I picked up a ship Morseing us with a flashlamp. I blinked him our name with an electric portable flash, and about daybreak saw a patrol boat, the Lavender, two miles to the north. She had been doing the signaling. The gale was at its height then, seas 40 feet high if an inch, and a hurricane glass down to 28:40. I often lost sight of the Lavender, for the black squalls made a dirty sky, and the little Vigilant was tossed around like a chip. I didn't see how she could last.

"About 9 o'clock a sea flooded the pilot house and broke in the bulkheads of the turtle-back. The tug was thrown on her beam ends and the rudder gear jammed by a loosened grating. Things went smash down below. Welch yelled up that he and Smith had been slung clear over the engine from port to starboard side. The dynamo cylinder had been caved in, leaving us without lights, for our oil was gone.

"There we were, lying down, pilot house flat down and the sea rushing in. I never thought she could right herself. But another big sea struck her on the starboard side and flung her back on her keel. I tried to heave her to then, but being so light and the rudder working badly, she wouldn't mind the helm. I whistled to Welch to reverse his engine slowly, and that saved her. The screw acted as a drag and kept us out of the trough.

"About noon the seas got a little battles of Mons and the Marne, and they had all been wounded. They were perfect examples of a type.

"Men," said one of them, very politely, in the midst of drill, "when I see you handle your rifles I feel like falling on my knees and thanking God that we've got a navy."

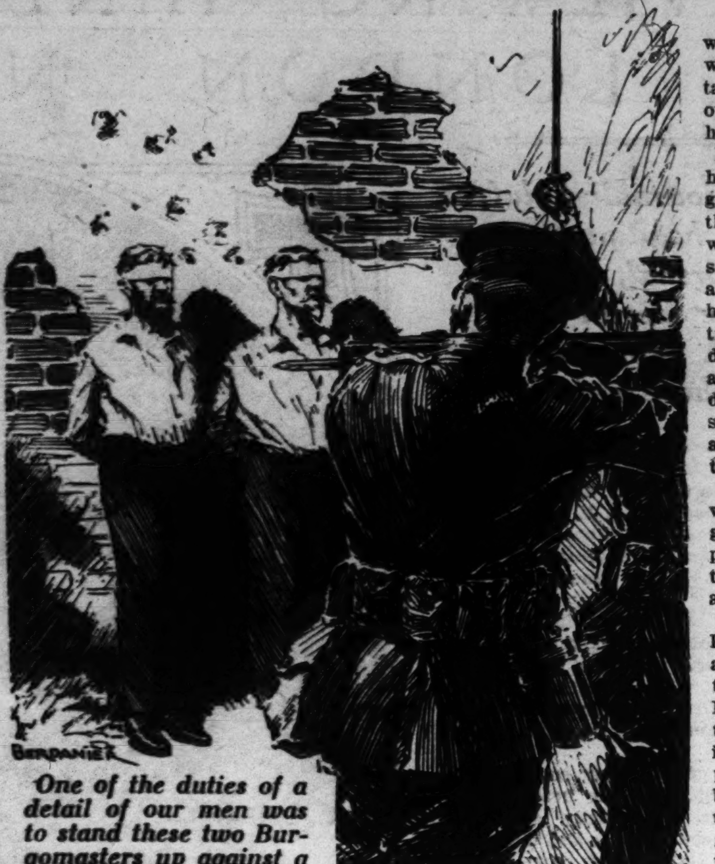
In June, after the third battle of Ypres, while McFarland and I were sitting wearily on our bunks during a strange hour in the afternoon, when nobody had thought of anything for us to do, a soldier came in with a message from head quarters which put a sudden stop to the discussion we were having about the possibility of getting leave to go to London. The message was that the First, Second and Third divisions of the Canadians had lost 40 per cent of their men in the third fight at Ypres and that 300 volunteers were wanted from each of our battalions to fill up the gaps.

"Forty per cent," said McFarland, getting up quickly. "My God, think of it! Well, I'm off to tell 'em I'll go."

I told him I was with him, and we started for headquarters, expecting to be received with applause and pointed out as heroic examples. We couldn't even get up to give in our names. The whole battalion had gone up ahead of us. They heard about it first. That was the spirit of the Canadians. It was about this time that a story went 'round concerning an English Colonel, who had been called upon to furnish volunteers from his outfit to replace casualties. He backed his regiment up against a barrack wall and said:

"Now, all who don't want to volunteer, step three paces to the rear."

In our battalion, Sergeants and even officers offered to go as privates. McFarland and I were not accepted, our volunteers went at once and we were reinforced up to strength by drafts from the Fifth Canadian Division, which was then forming in England.



One of the duties of a detail of our men was to stand these two Burgomasters up against a wall and shoot them."

In July, when we were being kept on the rifle ranges most of the time, all leave was stopped, and we were ordered to hold ourselves in readiness to go overseas. In the latter part of the month we started. We sailed from Southampton to Havre on a big transport, escorted all the way by our destroyers. As we landed we got our first sight of the harvest of war. A big hospital on the quay was filled with wounded men. We had 24 hours in what they called a "rest camp." We slept on cobble stones in shacks which were so utterly comfortless that it would be an insult to a Kentucky thoroughbred to call them stables. Then we were on the way to Belgian town of Poperinghe, which is 150 miles from Havre and was, at that time, the rail head of the Ypres salient. We made the trip in box cars which were marked in French: "Eight horses or 40 men," and we had to draw straws to decide who should lie down.

We got to Poperinghe at 7 a. m. and the scouts had led us into the front trenches at 2 the next morning. Our position was to the left of St. Eloi and was known as "The Island," because it had no support on either flank. On the left were the Yser Canal and the bluff which forms its banks. On the right were 300 yards of battered-down trenches, which had been rebuilt twice and blown in again each time by the German guns. For some reason, which I never quite understood, the Germans were able to drop what seemed a tolerably large proportion of the output of the Krupp works on this particular spot whenever they wanted to. Our high command had concluded that it was untenable, and so we, on one side of it, and the British, on the other, had to just keep it scouted and protect our separate flanks. Another name they had for that position was the "Bird Cage." That was because the first fellows who moved into it had made themselves nice and comfy and put up wire nettings to prevent anyone from tossing bombs in on them. Thus, when the Germans stirred up the spot with an accurate shower of "whiz-bangs" and "coal boxes," the same being 13-pounders and six-inch shells, that wire netting presented a spectacle of utter inadequacy which hasn't been equaled in this war.

They called the position which we were assigned to defend "The Graveyard of Canada." That was because of the fearful losses of the Canadians here in the second battle of the Ypres, from April 21 to June, 1915, when the first gas attack in the world's history was launched by the Germans, and, although the French on the left and the British on the right fell back, the Canadians stayed where they were put.

Right here I can mention something which will give you an idea why descriptions of this war don't describe it. During the first gas attack, the Canadians, choking to death and falling over each other in a fight against a new and unheard of terror in warfare, found a way—the Lord only knows who first discovered it and how he happened to do it—to stay through a gas cloud and come out alive. It isn't pretty to think of, it's like many other things in this war which you can't even tell of in print, because the simple description would violate the nice ethics about reading matter for the public eyes which have grown up in long years of peace and traditional tendency. But this thing which you can't describe meant just the difference between life and death to many of the Canadians, that first day of the gas. Official orders now tell every soldier what he is to do with his handkerchief or a piece of his shirt if he is caught in a gas attack without his mask.

The nearest I can come, in print, to telling you what the soldier is ordered to do in this emergency is to remind you that ammonia fumes oppose chlorine gas as a neutralizing agent, and that certain emanations of the body throw off ammonia fumes.

Now that I've told you how we got from the Knickerbocker bar and other places to a situation which was just 150 yards from the intrenched front of the German army in Belgium, I might as well add a couple of details about things which straightaway put the fear of God in our hearts. At daybreak one of our Fourteenth platoon men, standing on the firing step, pushed back his trench helmet and remarked that he thought it was about time for coffee. He didn't get any. A German sharpshooter, firing for the first time that day, got him under the rim of his helmet, and his career with the Canadian forces was over right there. And then, as dawn broke, we made out a big painted sign raised above the German front trench. It read:

WELCOME,
EIGHTY-SEVENTH CANADIANS.

We were a new battalion, we had been less than 72 hours on the continent of Europe and the Germans were not supposed to know anything that was going on behind our lines!

We learned, afterward, that concealed telephones in the houses of the Belgian Burgomasters of the villages of Dinkiebusch and Renninghelst, near our position, gave communication with the German headquarters opposite us. One of the duties of a detail of our men, soon after that, was to stand these two Burgomasters up against a wall and shoot them.

In concluding this first article, I want to say frankly that any man who claims he is not afraid when, for the first time he goes into that hell of fire on the western front is a liar, and I'll tell him so to his face. Later we became impervious, but that first day I prayed and I would have bent down and prayed, only my knees shook so. (Copyright, 1917, by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

The Tango Thief

She had just been shocked to know that she was charged unjustly. But had she been cleared from one peril only to fall victim to another—the one she already feared? Was Sherburne to escape, after all, and ruin her?

The telephone tinkled insistently. Kennedy seized the receiver.

"Who is it?" we heard him ask. "Mr. Sherburne—oh, yes."

Quickly Craig had jammed the receiver down on a little metal base which we had not noticed near the instrument. Three prongs reaching upward from the base engaged the receiver tightly, fitting closely about it. Then he took up a watch-case receiver to listen through, in place of the regular receiver.

"Sherburne, you say," he repeated. "H. Morgan Sherburne?"

We waited impatiently as he reiterated the name. Why was he so careful about it? The moments were speeding fast and Mrs. Seabury found the suspense terrific.

"Must pay—we'll never get anything on you?" Craig repeated after a few moments' further parley. "Very well. I am commissioned to meet you there in 10 minutes and settle the thing up on those terms," he concluded as he clapped the regular receiver back on its hook with a hasty good-by and faced us triumphantly.

"The deuce I won't get anything. I've got it!" he exclaimed.

Judson Seabury was too stunned by the revelation that he had a cancer to follow clearly the maze of events.

"That," cried Kennedy, rising quickly, "is what is known as the telescribe—a new invention of Edison that records on a specially prepared phonograph cylinder all that was said—both ways—over a telephone wire. Come!"

Ten minutes later, in a cab that had been waiting at the door, we pulled up at the Vanderveer.

Without a word, leaving Judson Seabury and his wife in the waiting cab, Craig sprang out, followed by me, as he signaled.

There was Sherburne, brazen and insolent, in the cafe as we entered, from a rear door and came upon him before he knew it, our friend Dunn, whom we had met in lobby, hovering concealed outside, ready to come to our assistance.

In a moment Kennedy was at Sherburne's elbow, pinching it in the manner familiar to international crooks.

"None of your damned insolence!" he ground out, then paused, cutting the next remark short, as he gritted. "What do you mean? Shall I send a wax impression of that key"——

Kennedy had quickly flashed the cylinder of the telescribe before his eyes and instinctively Sherburne seemed to realize that with all his care in using typewriters and telephones, some kind of record of his extortion had been obtained.

For a moment he crumpled up. Then Kennedy seized him by the elbow, dragging him toward a side door opposite that at which our cab was standing.

"I mean," he muttered, "that I have the goods on you at last and you'll get the limit for blackmail through this little wax cylinder if you so much as show your face in New York again. I don't care where you go, but it must be by the first train. Understand?"

A moment later we returned to the cab, where it had pulled up in the shadow from the carriage entrance.

"You, you'll forgive me—for my—unjust suspicions—Agatha?" we heard a voice from the depths of the cab say.

Kennedy pulled me back in time not to interrupt a muffled "Yes."

As he reached a hand in through the cab door to bid good-night to the reunited couple, I saw Mrs. Seabury start, then turn and drop into her handbag the key which Kennedy had extracted from Sherburne's pocket in the melee and now conveyed back to her in the handshake.

Gained Over 30 Pounds

Mr. Ferguson's Experience

"I smoked cigarettes ever since a boy. From six to eight sacks of tobacco I used weekly.

"They were doing me great harm. I became so nervous that I couldn't sleep until I smoked. Each morning I had an awful taste in my mouth.

"Several times I tried to quit by will-power, but it just seemed that I would go wild if I couldn't have cigarettes.

"I had almost given up hope of ever quitting, until one day I sent for a book that told me what to do. After learning the way, I quit easily in 3 days and haven't touched a cigarette in years. I have gained over 30 pounds, and cannot praise the method too highly. I say to every cigarette smoker, if you can't quit without help, let Mr. Woods help you quit quickly and happily," so says Mr. S. H. Ferguson of Crumps Park.

The foregoing remarks are like those of many other men who have been freed from the habit of smoking cigarettes, pipe or cigars, or who have been chewing tobacco excessively.

THE TANGO THIEF

Newest Craig Kennedy Stories

By ARTHUR B. REEVE

"MY husband has such a jealous disposition. He will never believe the truth—never!"

Agatha Seabury moved nervously in the deep easy chair beside Kennedy's desk, leaning forward, uncomfortably, tense lines marring the beauty of her fine features.

"You say you have never written a line to the fellow nor he to you?" Kennedy asked.

"Not a line, not a scrap—until I received that typewritten letter about which I just told you," she repeated vehemently, meeting his penetrating gaze without flinching. "Why, Professor Kennedy, as heaven is my witness, I have never done a wrong thing—except to meet him now and then at afternoon dances."

"Have you the letter here?" asked Craig quickly.

Mrs. Seabury reached into her neat leather party case and pulled out a carefully folded sheet of note paper.

It was all typewritten down to the very signature itself. Evidently the blackmailer had taken every precaution to protect himself, for even if the typewriting could be studied and identified, it would be next to impossible to get at the writer through it and locate the machine on which it was written among the thousands in the city.

Kennedy studied the letter carefully, then handed it over to me, nodding to Mrs. Seabury that it was all right for me to see it.

"No ordinary fellow, I'm afraid," he commented musingly, adding, "this thief of reputations."

I read, beginning with the insolent familiarity of "Dear Agatha."

"I hope you will pardon me for writing to you," the letter continued, 'but I find that I am in a rather difficult position financially. As you know, in the present disorganized state of the stock market, investments which in normal times are good are now almost valueless. Still, I must protect those I already have without sacrificing them.

"It is therefore necessary that I raise $50,000 before the end of the week, and I know of no one to appeal to but you—who have shared so many pleasant stolen hours with me.

"Of course, I understand all that you have told me about Mr. Seabury and his violent nature. Still, I feel sure that one of your wealth and standing in the community can find a way to avoid all trouble from that quarter. Naturally, I should prefer to take every precaution to prevent the fact of our intimacy from coming to Mr. Seabury's knowledge. But I am really desperate and feel that you alone can help me.

"Hoping to hear from you soon, I am

"Your old tango friend,
"H. MORGAN SHERBURNE."

She was watching our faces anxiously as we read.

"Oh," she cried wildly, glancing from one to the other of us, "he's so clever about it, too. I—I didn't know what to do. I had only my jewels. I thought of all the schemes I had ever read, of pawning them, of having paste replicas made, of trying to collect the burglary insurance, of"——

"But you didn't do anything like that, did you?" interrupted Craig hastily.

"No, no," she cried, "I thought if I did, then it wouldn't be long before this Sherburne would be back again for more. Oh, I am utterly wretched—crushed."

"The scoundrel!" I muttered.

Kennedy shook his head at me slowly. "Calling names won't help matters now," he remarked tersely. Then in an encouraging tone he added, "You have done just the right thing, Mrs. Seabury, in not starting to pay the blackmail. The secret of the success of these fellows is that their victims prefer losing jewelry and money to going to the police and having a lot of unpleasant notoriety."

"Yes, I know that," she agreed hastily. "But—my husband! If he hears he will believe the worst, and I—really love and respect Judson—though," she added, "he might have seen that I liked dancing and—innocent amusements of the sort, still. I am not an old woman." Judson Seabury, I knew from hearsay, was a man of middle age to whom, as to so many, business and the making of money had loomed as large as life itself. Competitors had even accused him of being ruthless when he was convinced that he was right.

"Where did you usually—er—meet Sherburne?" asked Craig, casually guiding the conversation.

"Why—at the Vanderveer—always," she replied.

"Would you mind meeting him there again this afternoon so that I could see him?" asked Kennedy. "Perhaps it would be best, anyhow, to let him think that you are going to do as he demands, so that we can gain a little time."

She looked up, startled. "Yes—I can do that—but don't you think it is risky, do you think there is any way I can get free from him? Suppose he makes a new demand. What shall I do?"

"Mrs. Seabury," reassured Craig earnestly, "I'll take up your case. Clever as the man is, there must be some way to get at him."

The look of relief that crossed her face as Kennedy promised to aid her was almost painful. As often before, I could scarcely envy Kennedy in his ready assumption of another's problems that seemed so baffling. It meant little, perhaps, to us whether we succeeded. But to her it meant happiness, perhaps honor itself. She hesitated no longer.

"I'll be there—I'll meet him—at four," she murmured, as she rose and made a hurried departure.

For some time after she had gone, Kennedy sat considering what she had told us. As for myself, I cannot say that I was thoroughly satisfied that she had told all. It was not to be expected.

"How do you figure that woman out?" I queried at length.

Kennedy looked at me keenly from under knitted brows. "You mean, do I believe her story—of her relations with this fellow, Sherburne?" he returned thoughtfully.

"Exactly," I assented, "and what she said about her regard for her husband, too."

Before Kennedy could reply the door buzzer sounded and the colored boy from the lower hall handed a card to Craig, with an apology about the house telephone switchboard being out of order.

As Kennedy laid the card on the table before us, with a curt "Show the gentleman in," to the boy, I looked at it in blank amazement.

It read, "Judson Seabury."

Before I could utter a word of comment on the strange coincidence, the husband was sitting in the same chair in which his wife had sat less than half an hour before.

Judson Seabury was a rather distinguished looking man of the solid, business type. Merely to meet his steel gray eye was enough to tell one that this man would brook no rivalry in anything he undertook.

Craig twirled the card in his fingers, as if to refresh his mind on a name otherwise unfamiliar. I was wondering whether Seabury might not have trailed his wife to our office and have come to demand an explanation. It was with some relief that I found he had not.

"Prof. Kennedy," he began nervously, hitching his chair closer, without further introduction, in the manner of a man who was accustomed to having his own way in any matter he undertook. "I am in a most peculiar situation."

Seabury paused a moment, Kennedy nodded acquiescence, and the man suddenly blurted out, "I—I don't know whether I'm being slowly poisoned or not."

I covered my own surprise by a quick glance at Craig. His face was impassive as he narrowly searched Seabury's. I knew, though, that back of his assumed calm, Craig was doing some rapid thinking about the ethics of listening to both parties in the case. However, he said nothing.

"I may as well tell you," Seabury proceeded, with the air of a man who for the first time is relieving his mind of something that has been weighing heavily on him, "that for some time I have not been exactly—er—easy in my mind about the actions of my wife. It's not that I actually knew anything about any indiscretions on Agatha's part, but—well, there have been little things—hints that she was going frequently to the dansants, and that sort of thing, you know. Lately, too, I have seen a change in her manner toward me, I fancy. Sometimes I think she seems to avoid me, especially during the last few days. Then, again, as this morning, she seems to be—er—too solicitous."

He passed his hand over his forehead, as if to clear it. I noticed that he had a peculiar look, a feeble state of the body which he was at times at pains to conceal, a look which the doctors call, I believe, cachectic.

"I mean," he added hastily, as if it might as well be said first as last, "that she seems to be much concerned about my health, my food"——

"Just what is it that you actually know, not what you fear?" interrupted Kennedy, perhaps a little brusquely.

"Well," Seabury answered slowly, "I suffer a good deal from such terrible dyspepsia, Prof. Kennedy. My stomach and digestion are all upset—bad health and growing weakness—pains, discomfort. I've tried all sorts of cures, but the doctors don't seem to be doing me much good. I have begun to wonder whether it is a case for the doctors, after all. "Why, the whole thing is getting on my nerves so that I'm almost afraid to eat," he concluded.

"You have eaten nothing today, then, I am to understand?" asked Craig.

"Not even breakfast this morning," he replied.

"Good!" exclaimed Kennedy. "That will make it just so much easier to use a test I have in mind to determine whether there is anything in your suspicions."

He had risen and gone over to a cabinet.

"Would you mind baring your arm a moment?" he asked Seabury.

With a sharp little instrument, carefully sterilized, Craig pricked a vein in the man's arm. Slowly a few drops of darkened venous blood welled out. A moment later Kennedy caught them in a sterile test tube and sealed the tube.

"I feel sure that the test I shall make will tell me positively, soon, whether your fears are well grounded or not, Mr. Seabury," Kennedy concluded briefly, as he accompanied the man out into the hall to shake hands with him at the elevator door. "I'll let you know as soon as anything develops."

The remainder of the forenoon, and for some time during the early afternoon, Craig plunged into one of his periods of intense work and abstraction at the laboratory.

It was, indeed, a most unusual and delicate test which he was making. For one thing, I noticed that he had in a sterilizer, some peculiar granular tissue that had been sent to him from a hospital. This tissue he was very careful to cleanse of blood and then by repeated boilings prepare for whatever use he had in mind.

Among the many peculiar pieces of apparatus he had, I recall one that consisted of a glass cylinder with a siphon tube running into it halfway up the outside. Inside was another, smaller cylinder. All about him as he proceeded were glass containers, capillary pipettes, test tubes, Bunsen burners, and dialyzers of porous parchment paper whose wrappers described them as "permeable for peptones, but not for albumins."

Carefully set aside was the blood which he had drawn from Seabury's veins, allowed to stand till the serum separated out from the clot. Next he pipetted it into a centrifuge tube and centrifuged it at high speed, some 16,000 revolutions, until the serum was perfectly clear, with no trace of a reddish tint, not even cloudy. After that he drew off the serum into a little tube, covered it with a layer of a substance called toluol from another sterile pipette, and finally placed it in an incubator at a temperature of about 98.

It was well along toward 4 o'clock when he paused as if some mental alarm clock had awakened him to another part of the plan of action he had laid out.

"Walter," he remarked, hastily doffing his stained old laboratory coat, "I think we'd better drop around to the Vanderveer."

It was not many seconds before we were on our way.

Through the lobby of the famous new hostelry we slowly lounged along, then down a passage into the tea room, where, in the center of a circle of quaint little wicker chairs and table, was a glossy dancing floor.

Kennedy selected a table not in the circle, but around an "L," inconspicuously located so that we could watch the dancing without ourselves being watched.

At one end of the room an excellent orchestra was playing. I gazed about, fascinated. At the dancing tea, was represented, apparently, much wealth.

About it all was the glamour of the risque. One felt a sort of compromising familiarity in this breaking down of old social restraints through the insidious influence of the tearoom, with its accompaniments of music and dancing.

"Well, there is what psychologists might call a real dance neurosis," remarked Craig after we had for some time settled ourselves and watched the brilliant scene. "In fact, few persons can withstand the physical effect of the peculiar rhythm, the close contact, and the sinuous movements."

"Some time ago," she hurried on, "I missed my latch key. But today, just after the dance, he told me he had it."

INTERVIEWING HINDENBURG FOR A LONDON NEWSPAPER

How an American trained journalist bluffed his way into the secret headquarters of the German Field Marshal, despite the best efforts of the Berlin war office to prevent it—A remarkable narrative of nerve and sheer audacity

"The cruelest eyes I have ever seen."

EARLY last year there appeared in the London Daily Telegraph an interview with Von Hindenburg at that time in command of the German armies on the eastern front. The statements in the article were commonplace enough but J. M. De Beaufort, the journalist who obtained the talk with the Field Marshal has just caused to be published the first account of how he obtained the interview without the consent or knowledge of the Berlin Foreign office or the War Department.

The story of how the newspaperman went to the secret headquarters of Hindenburg without even a pass and armed only with a general letter of introduction from a nephew of the general is one of the greatest triumphs for bluff and nerve ever recorded. The tale of the Hindenburg interview is contained in a book of German impressions called "Behind the German Veil" (Dodd, Mead and Company). Excerpts follow:

"FOR weeks I had used every effort at my command to find out where Hindenburg was. The headquarters on the eastern front were a carefully concealed secret in Berlin. Finally, one night, I had Maj. von Bitterfeld of the General Staff in my room at the Hotel Adlon, with three bottles of rare French wine. The Major grew very genial toward the end.

"I knew that Hindenburg had been at Posen for some time and in the course of the conversation I remarked on the beauty of the castle there occupied by the Field Marshal.

" 'Why, man,' roared the befuddled Von Bitterfeld, 'you must be drunk or asleep. You're a fine wide-awake journalist! Hindenburg left Posen months ago. At present he is at Fortress Boyen, near that dirty little hole, Loetzen. No castle there, I can tell you.'

"WHEN I alighted from my taxi at the Frederichstrasse station there were a number of soldiers standing at the entrance. They all jumped into position and saluted. That gave me a sudden inspiration. Though I was not wearing a uniform, of course, I had the next best thing to it. I wore my long British-made automobile coat, buttoned high a la militaire, a green, peakless cap with chin strap and on it the large badge of a neutral coat of arms.

" 'Here you,' I bawled in my best imitation of a German Lieutenant's tone of voice. The effect was dynamic. All five ran toward me, clicked their heels and shouted in a chorus: 'Zu Befehl!' I sent one of them to the office to buy me a ticket to Allenstein. He returned with a 'miliaerbillet.' Of course, I was much surprised at that because I had not told the man to ask for a military ticket; but it was too late now to change, and so, accompanied by a faithful soldier carrying my baggage, I passed through the gate, taking the salute of the ticket puncher, the policemen and various soldiers.

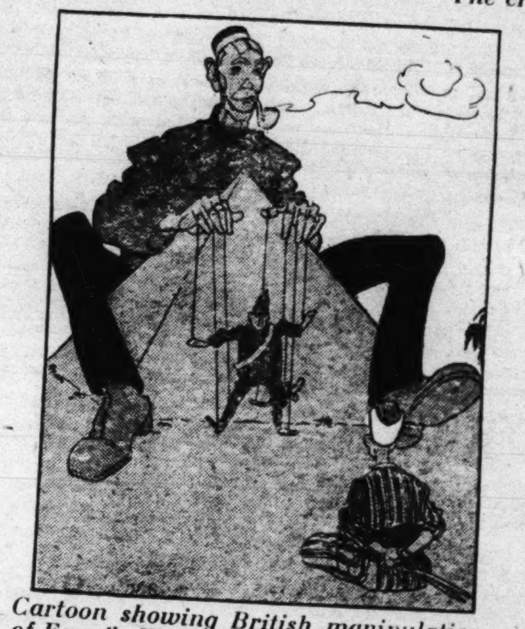
"AT the next station an ensign entered my compartment and saluted. He begged pardon for disturbing me, but I soon put him at ease. Later, when I showed him my letter of introduction to Von Hindenburg, he jumped up, saluted and asked me if he couldn't bring in some of his friends to pay respects to me. In this way I met young Von Bethmann-Hollweg, cousin of the German Chancellor (later killed in action).

"We arrived at Posen at 4 a. m. As we had half an hour to wait I thought a walk would do me good, so I slipped my great coat over my pajamas, thrust my bare feet into pumps and a moment later was on the platform.

"But when I wanted to return to the train the fun started. Besides the ticket collector, soldiers and policemen stood at the doors of all compartments. Shades of Napoleon! No ticket, no permit, no identification paper of any kind, not even a visiting card. I had been a fool.



Cartoon showing British manipulation of Egypt's Khedive which has a conspicuous place in Hindenburg's quarters.

Of course, I offered to take them to my compartment and show them all kinds of permits. I was asked to open my great coat. I did. The soldiers stared at my purple-striped pajamas, when suddenly a vioce exclaimed, 'Englander!' It was finally decided to send for the station master. On his arrival we adjourned to the compartment to verify my statements. I had young Bethmann-Holweg aroused and he came from his berth half clad.

"In a voice that would have wakened the dead Bethmann demanded to know how they dared have the impertinence to disturb the distinguished foreigner. Did they realize who I was? Did they know that I was a personal friend of Von Hindenburg? My captors slunk away humiliated.

"WE arrived at Allenstein at 8:30 a. m. Before Von Bethmann-Hollweg left me he had me introduced to Gen. von Schlieffen of the Twentieth Army Corps. He received me kindly, read my letter to Von Hindenburg, promised to take me to him the next day and chatted a half-hour on various subjects. Everything was running so smoothly that I was beginning to be worried. I was about to leave the headquarters when Von Schlieffen remarked casually, 'Of course, Herr Beaufort, you have all your passes and permits from the General Staff at Berlin?'

"I feigned great surprise at his question. Of course I had my passport, then that letter to Hindenburg and also one to Gen. von Buelow—assuredly all my papers were in order.

"Yes, yes, he knew all that, but what he meant was a permit to visit the front.

"I assured him that I had no desire to go to the front—only to shake hands and pay my respects to the Field Marshal.

"It was no use. There was a train back at 11 p. m. and Schlieffen insisted that I take it. * * *

"I waited at the station despondently. The Berlin train was late. At 2:30 I was the only civilian left in the room. Suddenly a train official rushed up to me and announced the arrival of a military train.

" 'Where for?' I asked indifferently.

" 'For Korchen, Insterburg and Loetzen. You change at Korchen for Loetzen.'

"I did not hesitate a fraction of a second. I permitted my baggage to be taken into a first-class compartment and the train started. We had only gone a few miles when we were sidetracked to permit the up express to pass. It was the Berlin night train.

"The change at Korchen was effected without mishap and at 7:30 a. m. we arrived at Feste Boyen.

"AT Allenstein, the day before, I had bought a huge portrait of Hindenburg. Approaching Hindenburg's headquarters I had this under one arm. Under the other I carried a large umbrella and in my hand the letter of introduction. On my face I wore that beatific, enthusiastic expression of 'the innocent abroad.' I had blossomed out into that modern pest—the autograph hunter.

"Two landsturmers guarded the little wooden gate. I produced the letter. Both of them saluted and one of them ran ahead to ring the bell. An orderly ushered me into a sitting room. Later a young officer entered and told me the General would be back by noon. Would I condescend to wait? I would. The subaltern was voluble and discussed the military situation freely. In the midst of a graphic discussion of the plight of Russia he suddenly stopped. A car had halted outside. A moment or two later the door opened and Germany's giant idol entered. I rose and bowed. The officer and two Sergeants clicked their heels audibly and replied to the stentorian 'Morgen, meine Herren,' with a brisk, 'Morgen, Excellenz.'

"Hindenburg looked questions at me, but I thought I would let my young friend do the talking. He handed the Marshal my letter and introduced me as 'Herr Beaufort.' The General read his nephew's letter, shook hands with me, assuring me of the pleasure it gave him to meet me.

"NOW for my impressions of Germany's—and as some people try to make us believe, the world's—greatest military genius. They might be summed up in two words: 'Strength and cruelty.' Hindenburg stands over 6 feet high. His whole personality radiates strength, brute animal strength. He was, when I met him, 69 years of age, but looked much younger. His hair and mustache were still pepper and salt color. His face and forehead are deeply furrowed, which adds to his forbidding appearance. His nose and chin are prominent, but the most striking feature of the man's appearance are his eyes. They are steel blue and very small, much too small for his head, which, in turn, is much too small compared to his body. But what the eyes lack in size they fully made up for in intensity and penetrating powers. Until I met Hindenburg I always thought that the eyes of the Mexican rebel Villa were the worst and most cruel I had ever seen. They are mild compared with those of Hindenburg. NEVER IN MY LIFE HAVE I SEEN SUCH HARD, CRUEL, UTTERLY BRUTAL EYES AS THOSE OF HINDENBURG.

"He has the disagreeable habit of looking at you as if he didn't believe a word you were saying. Frequently in conversation he closes his eyes and even then it seemed as if their steel-like sharpness pierced the eyelids. Instead of deep circles such as, for instance, I have noticed on the Kaiser, he has big, fat cushions of flesh under the eyes, those cushions almost touching his bushy eyebrows. His hair, about an inch long I should say, was brushed straight up. The general contour of his head seemed a square rounded off at the corners.

Speaking about cruelty, one story about Hindenburg is worth retelling.

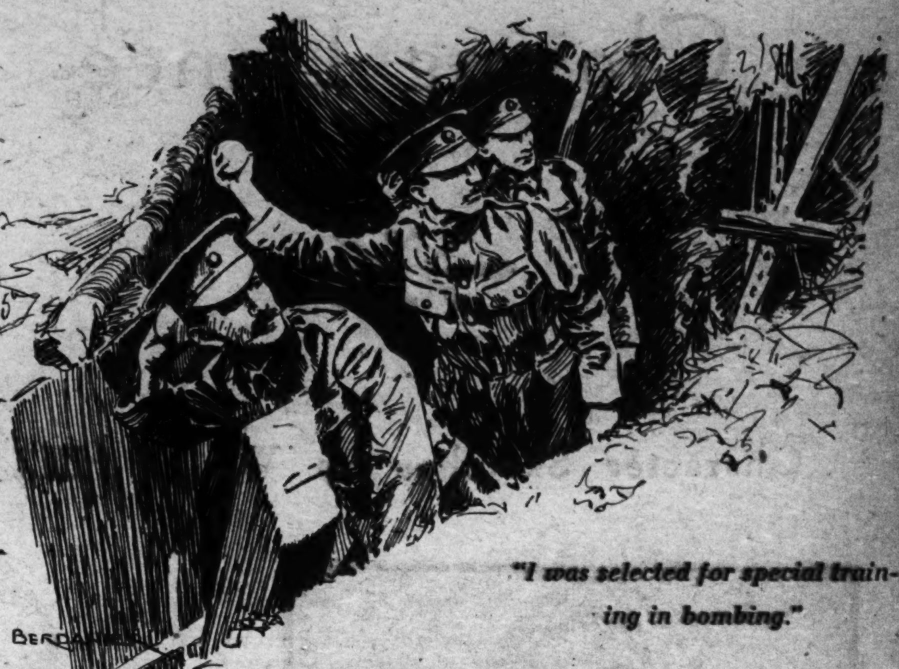
An American Boy at the Front

HIS OWN NARRATIVE

First of a series of articles dealing with the day by day experiences of a Kentucky youth in the Ypres death salient—His training and the arrival in the first line trenches :: :: :: ::

HERE is the simple, unadorned narrative of an American boy who fought with a Canadian contingent in the Ypres salient which is especially interesting at this time when the United States is preparing to send an overseas force of its own to France. The story of Sergt. Alexander McClintock is one that will doubtless be duplicated by hundreds of American boys.

McClintock, a native of Lexington, Ky., and a graduate of the Virginia Military Institute, joined a Canadian detachment in the fall of 1915. He was wounded at Ypres and the King and Queen of England visited him at the hospital. He also received a distinguished conduct medal. He has come to the United States on leave but is preparing to return with another Canadian contingent, this time as an officer. Below is the first installment of McClintock's narrative. Others will follow on succeeding Sundays:



"I was selected for special training in bombing."

By SERGT. ALEXANDER McCLINTOCK, D. C. M.

87th Overseas Battalion, Canadian Grenadier Guards.

IN the latter part of October, 1915, I decided that the United States ought to be fighting along with England and France on account of the way Belgium had been treated, if for no other reason. As there seemed to be a considerable division of opinion on this point among the people at home, I came to the conclusion that any man who was free, white and 21 and felt as I did, ought to go over and get into it single handed on the side where his convictions led him, if there wasn't some particular reason why he couldn't. Therefore, I said good-by to my parents and friends in Lexington and started for New York with the idea of sailing for France and joining the Foreign Legion of the French army.

A couple of nights after I got to New York I fell into conversation in the Knickerbocker bar with a chap who was in the reinforcement company of Princess Pat's regiment of the Canadian forces. After my talk with him I decided to go up to Canada and look things over. I arrived at the Windsor Hotel, in Montreal, at 8 o'clock in the morning a couple of days later, and at 10 o'clock that morning I was sworn in as a private in the Canadian Grenadier Guards, Eighty-seventh Overseas Battalion, Lieutenant-Colonel F. S. Meighen commanding. They were just getting under way making soldiers out of the troops I enlisted with, and discipline was quite lax.

They at once gave me a week's leave to come down to New York and settle up some personal affairs, and I overstayed it five days. All that my company commander said to me when I got back was that I seemed to have picked up Canadian habits very quickly. At a review one day in our training camp, I heard a Major say:

"Boys, for God's sake don't call me Harry or spit in the ranks. Here comes the General!"

We found out eventually that there was a reason for the slackness of discipline. The trouble was that men would enlist to get $1.10 a day without working for it, and would desert as soon as anyone made it unpleasant for them. Our officers knew what they were about. Conditions changed instantly we went on shipboard. Discipline tightened up on us like a tie-rope on a colt.

We trained in a sort of casual, easy way in Canada from Nov. 4 to the following April. We had a good deal of trouble keeping our battalion up to strength, and I was sent out several times with other "non-coms" on a recruiting detail. While we were in the training camp at St. Johns I made the acquaintance of a young Canadian who became my "pal." He was Campbell McFarland, nephew of George McFarland, the actor, who is so well known on the American musical stage. He was a Sergeant. When I first knew him he was one of the most delightful and amusing young fellows you could imagine.

The war changed him entirely. He became extremely quiet and seemed to be borne down with the sense of the terrible things which he saw. He never lost the goodfellowship, which was inherent in him, and was always ready to do anything to oblige me, but he formed the habit of sitting alone and silent, for hours at a time, just thinking. It seemed as if he had a premonition about himself, though he never showed fear and never spoke of the dangers we were going into, as the other fellows did. He was killed in the Somme action, in which I was wounded.

I also had been made a Sergeant on account of the fact that I had been at school in the Virginia Military Institute. That is, I was an Acting Sergeant. It was explained to me that my appointment would have to be confirmed in England, and then reconfirmed after three months' service in France. Under the regulations of the Canadian forces, a noncommissioned officer, after final confirmation in his grade, can be reduced to the ranks only by a general courtmartial, though he can escape a courtmartial, when confronted with charges, by reverting to the ranks at his own request.

Forty-two hundred of us sailed for England on the Empress of Britain, sister ship to the Empress of Ireland, which was sunk in the St. Lawrence River. The steamer was, of course, very crowded and uncomfortable, and the eight-day trip across was most unpleasant. We had tripe to eat until we were sick of the sight of it. A Sergeant reported one morning, "eight men and 22 breakfasts absent." There were two other troops ships in our convoy, the Baltic and the Metagama. A British cruiser escorted us until we were 400 miles off the coast of Ireland; then each ship picked up a destroyer which had come out to meet her. At that time, a notice was posted in the purser's office informing us that we were in the war zone and that the ship would not stop for anything, even for a man overboard. That day a soldier fell off the Metagama with $700 in his pocket, and the ship never even hesitated. They left him where he had no chance in the world to spend his money.

Sergt. Alexander McClintock.

February 14th, 1917.

Sergt. Alexander McClintock served in the 87th Battalion Canadian Grenadier Guards from September, 1915, until November, 1916, the last four months of that time at the front in France, where he gained the Distinguished Conduct Medal, by his devotion to duty and bravery under fire.

As his former Commanding Officer, I can testify as to his good qualities, and I consider he would make a valuable officer.

F. S. MEIGHEN,
Brigadier-General,
Comd'g Canadian Training Division.
Bramshott.

Through my training in the V. M. I. I was able to read semaphore signals, and I caught the message from the destroyer which escorted us. It read:

"Each ship for herself now. Make a break!"

We beat the other steamers of our convoy eight hours in getting to dock in Liverpool, and, according to what seemed to be the regular system of our operations at that time, we were the last to disembark.

The majority of our fellows had never been in England before, and they looked on our travels at that time as a fine lark. Everybody cheered and laughed when they dusted off one of those little toy trains and brought it up to take us away in it. After we were aboard of it, we proceeded at the dizzy rate of about four miles an hour, and our regular company humorist—no company complete without one—suggested that they were afraid, if they went any faster, they might run off of the island before they could stop. We were taken to Bramshott camp, in Hampshire, 12 miles from the Aldershott School of Command. The next day we were given "King's leave"—eight days with free transportation anywhere in the British Isles. It is the invariable custom to give this sort of leave to all colonial troops immediately upon their arrival in England. However, in our case, Ireland was barred. Just at that time Ireland was no place for a newly arrived Canadian looking for sport.

After that they really began to make soldiers of us. We thought our training in Canada had amounted to something. We found out that we might as well have been playing croquet. We learned more the first week of our actual training in England than we did from November to April in Canada. I make this statement without fear that any officer or man of the Canadian forces alive today will disagree with me, and I submit it for the thoughtful consideration of the gentlemen who believe that our armies can be prepared for service here at home.

In this war every man has got to be a specialist. He's got to know one thing better than anybody else except those who have had intensive instruction in the same branch. And besides that, he's got to have effective general knowledge of all the specialties in which his fellow soldiers have been particularly trained. I can illustrate this. Immediately upon our return from first leave in England, we were divided into sections for training in eight specialties. They were: Bombing, sniping, scouting, machine-gun fighting, signaling, trench mortar operation, bayonet fighting and stretcher bearing. I was selected for special training in bombing, probably because I was supposed, as an American and a baseball player, to be an expert in throwing. With the other men picked for training in the same specialty I was sent to Aldershot, and there, for three weeks, 12 hours a day, I threw bombs, studied bombs, read about bombs, took bombs to pieces to see what made them tick and put them together again, and did practically everything else that you could do with a bomb, except eat it.

Then I was ordered back along with the other men who had gained this intimate acquaintance with the entire bomb family, and we were put to work teaching the entire battalion all that we had learned. When we were not teaching, we were under instruction ourselves by the men who had taken special training in other branches. Also, at certain periods of the day, we had physical training and rifle practice. Up to the time of our arrival in England intensive training had been merely a fine phrase with us. During our stay there it was a definite and overpowering fact. Day and night we trained and day and night it rained. At 9 o'clock we would fall into our bunks in huts which held from a half to a whole platoon—from 30 to 60 men—and drop into exhausted sleep, only to turn out at 5 a. m. to give a sudden and exact imitation of what we would do to the Germans if they sneaked up on us before breakfast in six inches of mud. Toward the last, when we thought we had been driven to the limit, they told us that we were to have a period of real, intensive training to harden us for actual fighting. They sent up four Imperial Drill Sergeants from the British Grenadier Guards, the senior foot regiment of the British army, and the one with which we were affiliated.

It would be quite unavailing for me to attempt to describe these Drill Sergeants. The British Drill Sergeant is an institution which can be understood only through personal and close contact and is about as cordial as loose electricity. If he thinks a Major-General is wrong, he'll tell him so on the spot in the most emphatic way, but without ever violating a single sacred tradition of the service. The Sergeants, who took us in charge to put on the real polish to our training, had all seen from 20 to 25 years service. They had all been through the

The music had started again and one after another couples seemed to float past in unhesitating hesitation—dowager and debutante, dandy and doddering octogenarian.

"Why," he exclaimed, looking out at the whirling kaleidoscope, 'here is the most advanced epoch, people of culture and intelligence frankly say they are wild' for something primitive.'

"Still," I objected, "dancing even in the wild, stimulating emotional manner you see here need not be merely an incitement to love, need it? May it not be a normal gratification of the love instinct? Perhaps it may represent sex, but not necessarily badly."

Kennedy nodded. Undoubtedly the effect of the dances is in direct ratio to the sexual temperament of the dancer," he admitted.

He paused and again watched the whirl.

"Does Mrs. Seabury herself understand it?" he mused, only half speaking to me. "I'm sure that this Sherburne is clever enough to do so, at any rate.

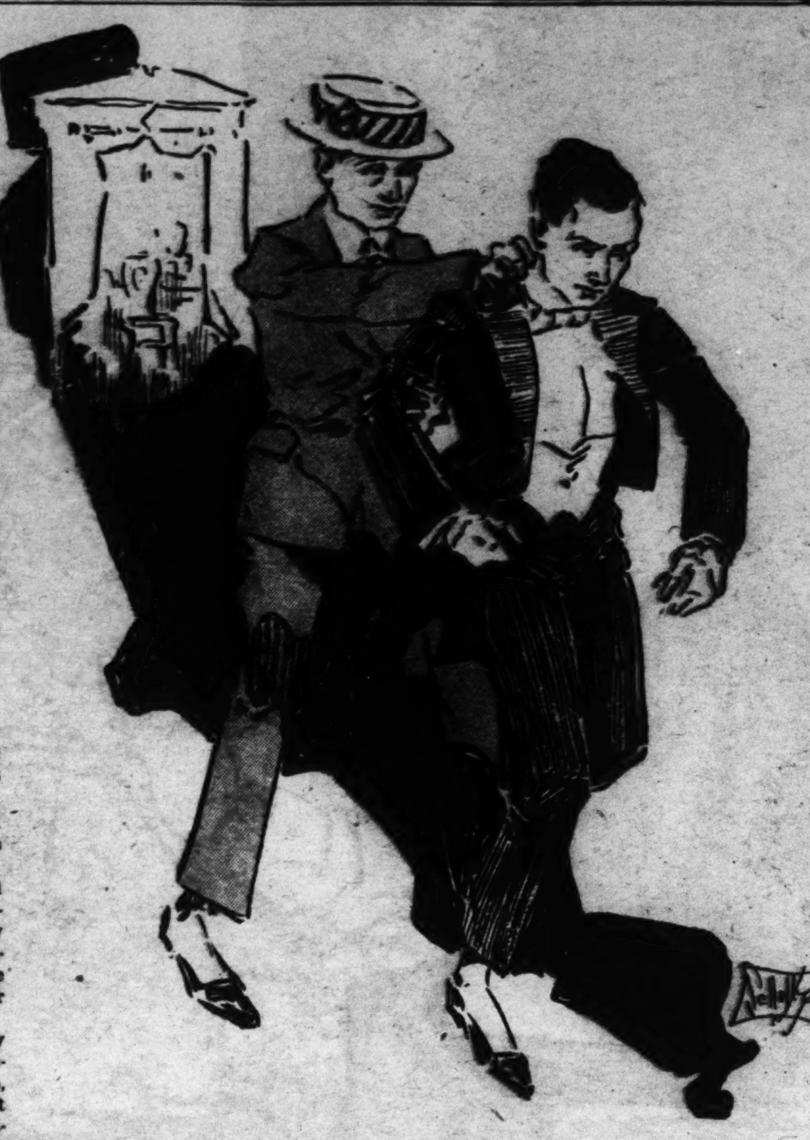
"To my mind," Kennedy went on, "several things seem significant. Many people have noticed that after marriage women lose much of their ardor for dancing. Mrs. Seabury seems not to have lost it."

"Then," I inquired quickly, "you imply that—she is not really as much in love with her husband as she would have us think—or, perhaps, herself believes?"

"Not quite that," he replied doubtfully. "But I am wondering whether there is such a factor that must be considered."

Before I could answer Kennedy touched my arm. Instinctively I followed the direction of his eye and saw Mrs. Seabury step out on the floor across from us. Without a word from Craig, I realized that the man with her must be Sherburne, our "tango thief."

As they passed near us, Mrs. Seabury caught Kennedy's eye in momentary recognition. Her face, flushed with the dance, colored perhaps a shade deeper, but not noticeably to her partner, who was devoting himself wholly and skillfully to leading her in a manner that one could see called forth frequent comment from others, less favored.



For a moment he crumpled up. Then Kennedy seized him and dragged him toward a side door.

As they sat down after this dance and the encore, Craig and I talked together, waiting for developments and they came quickly enough. I happened to glance across the floor and over the heads of those, seated at the tables at a door opposite us. It was my turn hastily to seize Kennedy's elbow.

There in a further doorway of the tea room, stood Judson Seabury himself!

Without a word, Craig rose and quickly crossed the dancing floor, stopping before Mrs. Seabury's table. Instead of waiting to be introduced, he sat down deliberately, as though he had been there all the time, and had just gone out of the room and come back. He did it all so quickly that he was able in a perfectly natural way to turn and see that Seabury himself had been watching and now was advancing slowly, picking his way among the crowded tables.

From around my corner I saw Craig whisper a word or two to Mrs. Seabury, then rise and meet Seabury less than halfway from the door by which he had been standing.

The tension of the situation was too much for Mrs. Seabury. Confounded and bewildered, she fled precipitately, passing within a few feet of my table. Her face was positively ghastly.

As for Sherburne, he merely sat a moment and surveyed the irate husband with calm and studied insolence at a safe distance. Then he, too, rose and turned deliberately on his heel.

Curious to know how Craig would meet the dilemma, I watch eagerly and was surprised to see Seabury, after a moment's whispered talk, turn and leave the tea room by the same door through which he had entered.

"What did you do?" I asked, as Craig rejoined me a few moments later. "What did you say? My hat off to you," I added in admiration.

"Told him I had trailed her here with one of my operatives, but was convinced there was nothing wrong, after all," he returned.

"You mean," I asked as the result of Craig's quick thinking dawned on me, "that you told him Sherburne was your operative?"

Kennedy nodded. "I want to see him, now, if I can," he said simply.

We paid our check and Kennedy and I sauntered in the direction Sherburne had taken, finding him ultimately in the cafe, alone. Without further introduction Kennedy approached him.

"So—you are a detective," sneered Sherburne superciliously, elevating his eyebrows just the fraction of an inch.

"Not exactly," parried Kennedy, seating himself beside Sherburne. "Mr. Sherburne, may I ask just what it is on which you base your claim on Mrs. Seabury. Is it merely meeting her here? If that is so you must know that it amounts to nothing—now."

"Nothing?" cooly retorted Sherburne. "Perhaps not—in itself. But—suppose—I—had—"

He said the words slowly, as he fumbled in his fob pocket, then cut them short as he found what he was looking for. Safely, in the palm of his hand, he displayed a latch-key, momentarily, then with a taunting smile dropped it back into the fob pocket.

"Perhaps she gave it to me—perhaps I was a welcome visitor in her apartment," he insinuated. "How would she relish having that told to Mr. Seabury—backed up by the possession of the key?"

"Thank you," was all that Kennedy said, as he rose. "I wanted to know how far you could go. Perhaps we can meet you halfway."

In silence Kennedy left the hotel and jumped into a cab, directing the driver to the laboratory, where he had asked Mrs. Seabury to wait for him. We found her there, still much agitated.

Hastily Craig explained to her how he had saved the situation, but her mind was too occupied over something else to pay much attention.

"I—I can't blame you, Professor Kennedy," she cried, choking down a sob in her voice, "but I have just discovered—he has told me that it is even worse than I had anticipated."

We were both following her closely, the incident of the latch-key still fresh in mind.

"Some time ago," she hurried on, "I missed my latch-key. I thought nothing of it at the time—thought perhaps I had mislaid it. But today he told me—just after the dance, even while I was making him think I would pay him the money, because—because I liked him—he told me he had it. The brute! He must have picked my handbag!"

Craig pulled out his watch hastily. "It is about 6, Mrs. Seabury," he reassured. "Can you be here at, say, eight?"

"I will be here," she murmured pliantly, realizing her own helplessness.

She had scarcely closed the door when Craig seized the telephone, and hurriedly tried to locate Seabury himself.

"Apparently no trace of him yet," he fumed, as he hung up the receiver. "The first problem is how to get that key. Will you attend to that end of the affair for me, Walter? I have just a little more work here at the laboratory before I am ready. I don't care how you do it, but I want you to convey to Sherburne the welcome news that Mrs. Seabury is prepared to give in, in any way he may see fit, if he will call her up here at 8 o'clock.

Kennedy had already plunged back among the beakers and test tubes, and with these slender instructions I sallied forth in my quest of Sherburne. I had little difficulty in locating him and delivering my message, which he received with a satisfaction that invited assault and battery and mayhem. However, I managed to restrain myself and rejoin Craig in the laboratory, shortly after 7 o'clock.

I had scarcely had time to assure Kennedy of the success of my mission, when we were surprised to see the door open and Seabury himself appear.

His face was actually haggard. Whether or not he had believed the hastily concocted story of Kennedy at the Vendervaer, his mind had not ceased to work on the other fears that had prompted his coming to us in the first place.

"I've been trying to locate you all over," greeted Craig.

Seabury heaved a sigh and passed his hand, with its familiar motion, over his forhead. "I thought perhaps you might be able to find out something from this stuff," he answered, unwrapping a package which he was carrying. "Some samples of the food I've been getting. If you don't find anything in this, I've others I want tested."

As I looked at the man's drawn face, I wondered whether in fact there might be something in his fears. On the surface, the thing did indeed seem to place Agatha Seabury in a bad light. At the sight of the key in Sherburne's possession I had grasped at the straw that he might have conceived some diabolical plan to get rid of Seabury for purposes of his own. But then, I reasoned, would he have been so free in showing the key if he had realized that it might cast suspicion on himself? I was forced to ask myself again whether she might, in her hysterical fear of exposure by the adroit blackmailer, have really attempted to poison her husband.

It was a desperate situation. But Kennedy was apparently ready to meet it though he seemed to take no great interest in the food samples Seabury had just brought.

Instead he seemed to rely wholly on the tests he had already begun with the peculiar tissue I had seen him boiling and the blood serum derived from Seabury himself.

Without a word he took three tubes from the incubator, in which I had seen him place them some time before, and, as they stood in a rack, indicated them lightly with his finger.

"I think I can clear part of this mystery up immediately," he began. "Here I have a tested dialyzer in which has been placed a half cubic centimeter of pure clear serum. Here is another dialyzer with the same amount of serum, but no tissue, such as Mr. Jameson had seen me place in this first one. Here is still another with the tissue in distilled water, but no blood serum. I have placed all the dialyzers in tubes of distilled water and all are covered with a substance known as toluol and corked to keep them from contamination.

Carefully Kennedy took from each tube a few cubic centimeters of the dialzate and into each he poured a little liquid from a tiny vial which I noticed was labeled "Ninhydrin."

"This," he explained as he set down the vial, "is a substance which gives a colorless solution with water, but when mixed with albumins, peptones, or ominoacids becomes violet on boiling. Tube No. 3 must remain colorless. Number 2 may be violet. Number 1 may approximate number 2 or be more deeply colored. If 1 and 2 are about the same I call my test negative. But if 1 is more deeply colored than 2, then it is positive. The other tube is the control."

Impatiently we waited as the three tubes simmered over the heat. What would they show? Seabury's eyes were glued on them, his hand trembled in the presence of some unknown danger.

Slowly the liquid in the second tube turned to violet. But more rapidly and more deeply appeared the violet in number one. The test was positive.

"What is it?" gasped Seabury hoarsely, leaning over close.

"This," exclaimed Kennedy, "is the famous Abderhalden test—serum-diagnosis—discovered by Professer Emile Abderhalden, of Halle. It rests on the fact that when a foreign substance comes into the blood, the blood reacts, with the formation of a protective ferment produced as a result of physiologic and pathologic conditions.

"For instance," he went on, "a certain albumin produces a certain ferment. Presence in the blood stream of blood-foreign substance calls forth a ferment that will digest them and split them into molecules. The forces of nature form and mobilize directly in the blood serum.

"Let me get this clearly. Albumin cannot pass through the pores of an animal membrane, since the individual molecules are too large. If, however, the albumin is broken up by a ferment-action, then the molecules become small enough to pass through."

Seabury was listening like a man on whom a stunning blow was about to descend.

"Thus we can tell," proceeded Kennedy, "whether there is such a ferment in blood serum as would be produced by a certain condition, for when the ferment is there, blood from the individual possessing it will digest a similar proteid in a dialyzing thimble kept at body temperature.

"Wh-what do you find?" reiterated Seabury.

"I have made tests for about everything I can suggest," returned Kennedy, taking the tubes and pouring the liquid from number 2 into number 1 until they were equalized in color, thus testing them, while we watched every action closely.

"You see," he digressed, "to get the two the same shades I have to dilute the first by the second. Now, the dialyzers are not permeable to albumin. Therefore the violet indicates that the blood serum in this case contains ferments which the body is making to split up some foreign substance in the blood, such as I suspected and obtained from the hospital. The test is positive. Mr. Seabury, how long have you felt as you say that you do?"

"Several weeks," the man returned weakly.

"That is fortunate," cried Kennedy, "fortunate that it has not been several months."

He paused, then added the startling statement, "Mr. Seabury I can find no evidence here of poison. As a matter of fact, the wonderful Alderhalden test shows me that you have one of the most common forms of internal disease that occur for the most part in persons at or after middle life, about the age of 50, more common in men than in women—a disease which taken in time, as it has been revealed by this wonderful test, may be cured and you may be saved—incipient cancer of the stomach."

Kennedy paused a moment and listened, I fancied I heard some one in the hall. But he went on, "The person whom you suspect of poisoning you——"

There came a suppressed scream from the door, as it was flung open and Agatha Seabury stood there, staring with fixed, set eyes at Kennedy, then at her husband. Mechanically I looked at my watch. It was precisely 8. Kennedy had evidently prolonged the test for a purpose.

"The person who you suspected," he repeated firmly, "is innocent!"

A moment Agatha stood there, then as the thing dawned on her, she uttered one cry, "Judson!"

And I have—" he ejactulated, then stopped.

Kennedy raised his hand. "Just a moment, please," he interrupted, as he placed Mrs. Seabury in a chair, then glanced hastily at his watch.

She saw the motion and seemed suddenly to realize that it was nearing the time for Sherburne to call up.
